Powers Co. Charged With 72 Building Code Violations

Criminal charges have been placed against a local construction company after police discovered that more than 30 persons were crowded into several vacant farm buildings in Hoffman Estates.

The building, on West Bode Road near the Interlude apartments, were cited for 72 building code violations last week. Several families, all Mexican-Americans, were living in an old farm house, a converted shed and an out-house.

"The conditions are deplorable," said Hoffman Estates Police Det. Ronald Sperandio. He said the buildings were unfit for human habitation. Thirty-two persons, adults and children, were living there.

Sperandio said the house had no running water, no plumbing or heat. He explained there was raw garbage piled in various places throughout the house and the rest of the property.

THE OWNERS of the property, the Powers Construction Co., have been cited for criminal management of property, he said.

Police said company spokesmen claimed they were unaware of the number of people there. Apparently only one family was paying rent. One of the men living there was working for the company on the apartment complex directly east of the house.

The representatives of the company are scheduled to appear in court Oct. 6 in Schaumburg.

Sperandio said all of the families have been given eviction notices and must be out of the house by noon today.

Efforts were being made over the weekend by the police and the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows to find housing for the families involved.

POLICE SAID the house and the other buildings will probably be destroyed next week either by the fire department or a wrecking company.

They said all of the persons living there had entered the country legally and moved to the area when one family rented the house.

Sperandio said the police had learned of the situation about a week ago. Several inspections by the police and the village department led to the charges.

Police will probably level criminal charges against at least one other person this week in connection with the incident, said Sperandio.

The criminal management of property charge, a misdemeanor, carries a penalty of one year in the county jail or a $1,000 fine or both.

Woman Faces Rabies Shots

A Schaumburg woman may have to undergo a painful series of rabies shots if a cat, allegedly cared for by Fred P. Thomas, 718 Boxwood Ln., Schaumburg, is not impounded and watched for symptoms of rabies.

The Cook County Rabies Board mailed a ticket Thursday to Thomas charging failure to impound the cat, requiring him to appear in court Oct. 13 to explain the matter.

Mrs. Charles Kilgore, 519 Hingham Ln., Schaumburg, was scratched by the cat Aug. 10, when she helped a next door neighbor break up a fight between two cats.

According to her husband, one of the cats had just scratched the neighbor's little boy and she called Mrs. Kilgore to help. The two women cornered the cats and called Schaumburg police. When Pat. Thomas Osterman arrived on the scene, one cat scratched Miss Kilgore and ran into Thomas' yard.

SGT. ROBERT HAMMOND said Osterman told Thomas he must impound the cat that evening. According to Sgt. Hammond, Thomas told Osterman he owned the cat. The officer then reported the incident to the Cook County Rabies Control Board.

Miss Karen Phelan of rabies control said she sent out a warden from the sheriff's office the day after the incident, because Thomas did not impound the cat. Thomas told the warden, Miss Phelan said, the cat was not his. He said it was a stray cat he was just feeding. Thomas also told the warden the cat had run away.

According to Miss Phelan, Thomas is technically the owner of the cat if he was feeding it, and therefore is responsible for impounding the cat, as required by law.

"I've been trying through letters and phone calls to get some action on this matter all week. Thomas has been very uncooperative," Miss Phelan said. "If Thomas fails to appear in court Oct. 13 a warrant will be sworn out for his arrest," she said.

THOMAS COULD NOT be reached for comment on the case. His wife said, "All of this could have been avoided if everyone had minded his own business and I have nothing further to say."

The penalty for not impounding a cat that has scratched or bitten someone is not less than $25 and not more than $100.

The hearing is too far in the future to help Mrs. Kilgore avoid the series of rabies shots. The cat that attacked the neighbor's boy has been impounded since Aug. 10, and Miss Kilgore plans to wait and see if that cat has rabies before she decides about having shots.

According to Sgt. Hammond, there have been 58 dog-biting or scratching incidents in Schaumburg and 11 cat-biting or scratching incidents since the first of the year. In such cases, the animals are impounded for 10 to 14 days to determine if they have rabies.

Revise Dog Ordinance To Apply To Felines, Too

In response to citizen complaints, the Schaumburg Village Board of Health is reported the health board Thursday night make the regulations apply to cats, too.

Jerry Sandberg, village health officer, revising its dog control ordinance to begin working on the dog ordinance, inserting the word "cat" in every provision for control of dogs. The revisions are to be presented to the village board in hopes of approval.

In the trustees agree, cats will require licenses and rabies inoculations, and will be restricted to their owner's property unless they are leashed. Other provisions, such as a requirement that a dog which bites a person be impounded, also would apply to cats, Sandberg said.

While the existing ordinance has in its provisions such all inclusive paragraphs as "other animals" which could be applied to cats, said Sandberg, the new ordinance would be specific for felines.

PENALTIES FOR violating the existing ordinance can range from $5 to $200. Sandberg said the board is considering recommending a lower ceiling, perhaps $100.

Also discussed was a complaint by residents of the area behind Schaumburg High School and between Braintree and Wickham Drive. The retention basin there has become swampy, said Sandberg, and weeds are overgrown. Sandberg discussed the matter with Jerry Harker, project manager for Levitt, which developed the site. Levitt has agreed to mow the weeds, he said. While the property eventually is to be deeded to either the village or Schaumburg Park District, said Sandberg, it has not yet been accepted and still is owned by Levitt.

Stolen Briefcase Reward Offered

A reward is being offered for the return of a briefcase believed stolen from the car of John Selke while it was parked in front of his home at 565 Caldwell Ln., Hoffman Estates, between Aug. 9 and 11.

Selke says the locked briefcase contains important papers, books and records for his work as assistant manager of the Schaumburg Civic Pool and for his student teaching at Rolling Meadows High School this fall.

The briefcase may be returned, no questions asked, to Selke, the park district or the police.

... For The 1976 Election

GOP Looking For Candidate

by ROBERT LAHEY

MIAMI BEACH — Republicans are assembled in this sweltering city to select a candidate for President, and the only question appears to be what year they are talking about.

There is no conversation whatever among delegates concerning the candidate for 1972 — they already have him in the White House — but speculation is rampant about who will capture the party's nomination four years hence.

And the name most frequently mentioned, despite the conventional disclaimers by him and his staff, is that of Sen. Charles H. Percy of Illinois. Percy is at the center of the only real question expected to ruffle the surface of this otherwise serene gathering of the GOP. That question concerns how delegates are to be selected in 1976 and what representation will be allotted to the various states.

Percy called it yesterday "the only basic decision to be made by this convention."

The senior senator from Illinois is laboring mightily against strong conservative opposition to put across a plan which would increase the representation of the large urban states and to widen the spectrum of the delegates who will choose a successor to President Richard M. Nixon as the party's candidate.

Republicans here have refused to follow the lead of the Democrats who met here a month ago and opened all their meetings to the press and the public.

A caucus of the Illinois delegation yesterday morning was closed to reporters and lasted for approximately an hour and a half, with the only substantial business being a discussion of Percy's proposal on delegate selection. The extent of conservative opposition to Percy's plan was evident in the fact that his home state failed to endorse the plan, although the delegation also chose not to endorse the program put forth by conservative senators John Tower of Texas and Jack Kemp of New York.

The Tower-Kemp plan, which would favor the smaller, more conservative states of the West and South, has been adopted as the majority report of the party's rules committee. Percy neither won nor lost his plea to his own delegation for support of his reorganization plan. Instead, the delegates emerged with a compromise, appointing a 13-member committee with instructions to arrive at a position which Percy and state central committeewoman Hope McCormick could present to the rules committee. As this was written, that committee was meeting in Percy's room at the Playboy Plaza hotel, and Percy told reporters earlier that he had committed himself to the decision of the committee, which was to report to the rules committee late yesterday.

At the same press conference, Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie told reporters there was general agreement among the delegation that "Illinois is not now equitably represented in this convention."

The governor was reticent, however, about what objections had been raised to Percy's plan to enlarge representation for his state.

Percy and Ogilvie agreed that whatever proposal on delegate selection is approved by this convention, it will result in nearly doubling the number of delegates who convene in 1976.

There are 1,346 delegates in Miami Beach. Percy's proposal would result in 2,130 delegates while the Tower-Kemp proposal would mean a convention of (Continued on Page 5)

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Already musing who their 1976 candidate might be, Republicans worked off-camera Sunday in Miami Beach to patch up the party's sole remaining squabble before the start of a well-rehearsed, three-day television spectacular starring President Nixon. On the eve of the GOP National Convention, party chairman Robert J. Dole said "there is a compromise afoot" to resolve a liberal-conservative struggle over future delegate strength before it spills onto the convention floor — and a nationwide broadcast audience — a few hours before Nixon is renominated tomorrow night.

President Nixon weighed the still secret results of Henry A. Kissinger's around-the-world peace mission and polished the speech he will make to accept the Republican party's nomination for a second term. Nixon was working in the seclusion of Camp David, the presidential retreat in the Catoctin mountains of western Maryland.

As the next step in relaxing Soviet-American tensions, the administration hopes to welcome Russian warships to U.S. ports for the first time since World War II. Navy Secretary John W. Warner outlined the idea in an interview in Seapower, a monthly magazine published by the Navy League.

The State

James Aschenbach, 28, Blacksburg, Va., was killed in an automobile accident near Elk Grove Village. Three other persons were injured in the accident, at Illinois 30 and Oakton Street. Also injured was Aschenbach's brother David, 25, Lake Zurich.

The World

A Protestant man was shot in the head Sunday in Belfast and beaten by a "psychopath" until his body was "just like jelly." He was the latest victim in a five-month string of Northern Ireland assassinations. The unidentified man died en route to a hospital. Belfast police said he was so severely beaten he succumbed before anyone discovered that he also had been shot in the head.

Shock and despair spread among Ugandan citizens of Asian descent as they learned of President Idi Amin's decree that they must join 60,000 non-citizen Asians expelled from the African country.

Radio Hanoi said that the trip to Saigon by presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger was a "cunning trick" to give the illusion that major changes were developing at the Paris peace talks. "It is obvious that the smoke screen spread by President Nixon at this moment is aimed at the presidential race," it said.

The War

Communist troops have overrun a district county capital and a South Vietnamese artillery base in the Que Son valley south of Da Nang, and may be jockeying into position for an artillery attack against South Vietnam's second largest city. Military sources said North Vietnamese soldiers captured Que Son city and artillery base Ross. Que Son is 25 miles southwest of Da Nang and Ross is three miles farther away.

Expect Jayne Murder Trial To Be Delayed Again

by ANNE SLAVICEK
The trial of three men charged with the murder of Inverness horseman George Jayne is expected to be delayed again today.
Asst. State's Atty. Nicholas Motherway said Friday he anticipates the delay because attorney George J. Cotisilos who represents Silas Jayne is currently involved in the Black Panther conspiracy trial of State's Atty. Edward Hanrahan and 13 others.

Silas Jayne, the brother of the murder victim, is charged with murder and conspiracy to commit murder. Other defendants in the case are Joseph LaPlaca of Elgin and Julius Barnes of Chicago.

Cotisilos is defending Asst. State's Atty. Richard S. Jalovec in the Hanrahan case. Jalovec was in charge of Hanrahan's special prosecutions unit at the time of the raid on the Black Panther apartment.

The last time the Jayne case came up before Circuit Court Judge Richard J. Fitzgerald the judge refused a request by LaPlaca that he be allowed to go free on bond. A recent U.S. Supreme Court decision striking down capital punishment had cast doubt on Illinois laws which said anyone accused of a crime punishable by death is not eligible for bail.

Silas Jayne, LaPlaca and Barnes have all been in the Cook County Jail on murder charges since May 22, 1971.

George Jayne was killed Oct. 28, 1970 by a single rifle shot as he sat playing cards with his family in the basement of his Inverness home.

Motherway said Friday attorneys for the defendants may submit motions to Judge Fitzgerald today, but he said the case is not ready for trial yet.
Before the actual trial can be started, both the defense attorneys and the state must turn over to each other whatever reports, transcripts and evidence they have that will aid in preparation of their cases.

A hearing to suppress certain evidence gathered in the murder investigation — three unregistered handguns confiscated from LaPlaca, none of which turned out to be the murder weapon — is also expected to be held before the murder trial can begin.
A fourth man linked to the murder conspiracy, Edwin Nefeld, already has been sentenced to 3 to 10 years in prison by Fitzgerald after he pleaded guilty to conspiracy to commit murder charges in April.

A confession made by Barnes has been ruled valid by Judge Fitzgerald and will also be a part of the trial.
A fifth man involved, Melvin Adams, has been granted immunity from prosecution to testify for the state. His testimony before the grand jury led to the indictments of Silas Jayne, Barnes, La Placa and Nefeld.

Continue School Case To Sept. 19

A court battle between unit and dual school districts for state funds has been continued until Sept. 19.

The dual districts (separation of elementary and high school grades) contend it is unfair for the state to give more aid to unit districts (combination of elementary and high school grades).

A suit, Rothchild vs. Illinois, has been filed in U.S. District Court charging the state aid formula discriminates against dual districts and is unconstitutional.

The Edward Rothchild family of the North Shore and High School Dist. 113 filed the suit Dec. 1, 1971. The battle for state funds includes a lineup of approximately 300 dual districts on the plaintiff's side and approximately 100 unit districts on the defendant's side. Several local districts have joined the plaintiffs.

In an earlier pretrial hearing U.S. Judge James Parsons ordered the suit held in abeyance until a study of school finance and structure is completed. The legislature has allocated $100,000 for the study which is slated for completion by Nov. 30, 1972.

CITED AS THE governor's task force on school organization, the study committee has been directed to "develop a definition of high quality education and to determine which districts will produce the most efficient delivery of high quality education services."

At another pretrial hearing last week, Parsons called for a preliminary report from the commission on Sept. 19. He has urged the commission to complete the final report as soon as possible.

While the study will encompass the full scope of school finance and organization, the judge will only rule on the constitutional issue of discrimination.

The controversy is centered on a constant factor in the state aid formula called the qualifying rate. The qualifying rate is higher for an elementary and high school district combined than for one unit district, and consequently awards more money to unit districts.

If the plaintiffs win their case, they plan to prepare legislation recommending a new state aid formula granting funds on an equal basis to all districts, regardless of structure.

Middleton Denied 3 Post-Trial Motions

Circuit Court Judge Robert J. Downing denied three post-trial motions Friday filed by Dr. James G. Middleton as the Des Plaines physician continued his attempt to have his conviction overturned.

Dr. Middleton, 46, of 969 S. Elmhurst Rd., Des Plaines, was convicted earlier this year of drugging a 23-year-old patient and then sexually assaulting her in his office.

He has been sentenced by Judge Downing to five to 10 years in prison, but has been allowed to remain free on $25,000 bond.

During several scheduled hearings held the past few weeks, Dr. Middleton has alleged that many items taken from his office by arresting policemen Dec. 1, 1970, were never inventoried by the police nor returned to him, as ordered by the court. In one of his motions, he sought recovery of the items, including cash, patient records, personal papers, three handguns, handcuffs, a sword and pyrotechnic devices.

JUDGE DOWNING said the doctor, acting as his own attorney in recent months, had failed to prove the police are in possession of the items, except those categorized as weapons or ammunition. The judge ordered those items be held by the state's attorney's office pending the final disposition of the case.

The judge also denied two other motions filed by Dr. Middleton — one asking the court to impound all records and reports held by the sheriff's office and another asking the court to vacate the motion and the sentence.

Judge Downing said he had already ordered all the records impounded, so there was no need to do so again. He then denied the motion to overturn the verdict, explaining only that he reviewed the record and so there was no reason to reverse the jury's decision and his sentence.

The rulings on the motions — the last outstanding before the court in the case — were expected to signal the end of Dr. Middleton's appearances before the judge in his efforts to win freedom.

Following the rulings Friday, however, the doctor told the Herald he expects to file at least one more motion with Judge Downing's court before taking his case to the appellate court.

Dr. Middleton said news film from Chicago television stations will prove arresting sheriff's policemen Donald Shaw and Richard Lundgren had some of the items under discussion in their possession the day after he was arrested.

Between the Lines Keep Working On Fire Dist. Study

by STEVE BROWN

Six months ago, in response to a great ruckus raised by an ad-hoc community committee, trustees from both the Hoffman Estates Village Board and Hoffman Estates Fire Protection District sat down to study the feasibility of converting the fire protection district into a municipal service.

A series of meetings was held, trustees collected maps, statistics and opinions from a variety of sources.

The committee queried other fire departments as to their style of operation. The concerned citizens group, initially composed of persons who supported the union firefighters, also chipped in their two cents worth.

But after May, the trustees' committee went underground to prepare a rough draft of its findings. The committee has never been heard from since. The public clamor died down too.

Committee Chrmn. Dryle Rathman said recently work is still going on, but vacations and other commitments have prevented the group from making much headway.

It is at least partially understandable that during the summer months little work has been done in this area. The village trustees, especially, have meetings or discussions almost every night of the week. The fire district trustees also have other commitments besides their monthly meeting.

What is intended here is a reminder, not a criticism or a charge of unnecessary delay, to all parties that the information compiled is valuable and the sooner it can be compiled, the sooner village and fire district officials will be able to study it and make some decisions.

The prior efforts of the committee should not be forgotten and left to die. It is hoped that in the next few months their work can be completed.

The report should be valuable to both the village and the fire district for future use.

Let's not waste the time and effort that has gone into the study so far. The report should be finished as soon as possible so that the future of fire protection service in the area can be planned on a sensible and sound basis.

NO SERIOUS INJURIES resulted from a crash Friday at Algonquin and Ela Roads, although both a semi-trailer truck and Volkswagen were overturned in a swamp at the intersection near site while the two drivers were treated for bruises and released from Northwest Community Hospital. (Photo by Bob Strawn)

Report Gains By Health Unit

Although the Hoffman Estates Board of Health did not hold its regular meeting Thursday night, its work is progressing, said Rudi Hafner, a sanitarian.

Hafner said the meeting was cancelled because some members are vacationing, and because the village health department is in the midst of preparing information for the board. Reports on updating health ordinances and on health and safety requirements for indoor skating rinks are due at the Sept. 21 meeting, he said.

Ordinances which are to be updated fall mainly in the categories of food handling and disposing of waste from medical laboratories, said Hafner. These currently are under review, and changes may be recommended.

New ordinances will be devised to protect the health and safety of patrons of indoor ice skating rinks, said Hafner.

Recent reports have indicated that poorly ventilated rinks, or those with improper facilities for maintaining the ice, can present a danger of carbon monoxide poisoning. With poor ventilation, the poisoning can result from the fumes from machinery used to prepare the ice, said Hafner.

The health board will draw up rules governing ventilation and will purchase equipment to test the ice and the ventilation, said Hafner. He has been examining similar equipment used elsewhere in Cook County, and estimates the cost for it would be in the neighborhood of $200.

Weather Delays Fire Station Job

Construction of the Hoffman Estates Fire Protection District's third station will not begin as soon as district officials predicted, according to a report made by Edward Kalasa, deputy fire chief.

Kalasa told the district's board of trustees bad weather has delayed preparation work on the site on Higgins Road west of the Moon Lake Village Apartments. Recent soil tests revealed some soil was unstable, and additional fill and heavier foundations would be needed for the building.

Representatives of Robbins Construction Co., which provided the site, promised to pay additional cost for the extra foundation work, said Kalasa, noting the company guaranteed the site.

The deputy chief also reported specifications and other architectural plans will be ready next week. The board will review the plans before the project is let out for bid.

The board announced Harper Community College, Palatine, will begin offering emergency medical technician training on a regular basis in the fall. The program began last spring under the direction of Dr. Stanley Zydlo of Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights.

The Harper program will last 14 weeks. Classes will meet twice each week and successful completion of the course will earn the student five hours of college credits.

Firemen To Sell 'Dinner' Tickets

Firemen from the Hoffman Estates Fire Protection District will be hitting the streets this week to sell tickets for their annual steak dinner-dance Sept. 2.

Proceeds from the annual event will be used to purchase an ambulance for the district. This year's dinner is the 13th edition of the event.

In addition to the dance tickets, firemen will distribute decals as part of the Jaycees "Operation Redball" program. The firemen hope to reach every home in the community during the drive.

"Operation Redball" is a program designed to convince parents to place a round red decal in their children's bedroom windows so that their location can be easily determined in the event of a fire or other emergency.

Tickets for the event will cost $12 if purchased from a fireman or $15 if obtained the night of the dance. In addition to the door-to-door campaign, tickets also will be available at both fire stations.

Under the Percy plan, however, the state allocations would be based on population and the number of Republican votes cast in the impending presidential election. The Tower-Kemp plan would give less weight to population and more to those states carried by President Nixon, regardless of the number of votes or his winning margin.

Also at stake is the allocation of delegates' seats to various minorities. Percy's original proposal called for greater efforts to seat women, young people, and members of racial minorities.

He quickly dropped the emphasis on this part of his proposal when conservatives raised objections to "quotas" in the delegation.

Percy has contended that he too is opposed to quotas, and is working to achieve an amendment by the party that state organizations encourage participation by those minority factions.

Percy also denied that there is any dispute between him and conservatives, although his delegate selection plan has been strongly opposed by such identifiable conservatives as Rep. Phillip M. Crane, R-13th.

In a conversation on the plane which brought Illinois delegates here Saturday, Percy pointed to a description of himself in the New York Times as a liberal and asked incredulously, "How can they arrive at that conclusion?"

Later, he found a reference in a Chicago newspaper to "moderate Republican Sen. Charles H. Percy," and laughingly declared, "Now there is a good newspaper."

The difficulties between Percy and the conservative element of the party occasionally surface, however.

Talking about the quota controversy, the Senator explained his opposition to quotas in a revealing manner:

"Suppose you say that 20 per cent of the delegation must be under 25. You might get 20 per cent who are members of the Young Americans for Freedom (ultra-right wing conservative youth group of which Crane is a national director). "Suppose 20 per cent over 65. You might get 20 per cent of the old, wealthy party regulars. Quotas just do not guarantee equal representation."

The rules committee recommendation will be presented to the convention tomorrow afternoon, and if there is going to be any excitement at this convention, it will come then.

It seems likely that Senator Charles Percy of Illinois will be the man to decide whether there will be any excitement at this convention.

Ogilvie Changed In Various Ways

by ROBERT LAHEY

Miami Beach — If you had been out of the state for two or three years, the chances are that you wouldn't recognize your governor if you encountered him today.

Governor Richard B. Ogilvie's weight reduction program on which he embarked early this year has been a spectacular success. Eight months ago the governor could fairly have been described as roly-poly.

Today, whether he is sporting a bright orange sport coat as chairman of the Illinois delegation to the Republican National Convention, or a string tie and square dance caller's sport shirt at the Illinois State Fair, Ogilvie appears lean and athletically fit.

Even more noticeable than his change in physical stature is a definite shift in the governor's personality. He can only be described as relaxed, where he has for years been considered by reporters and fellow party members as "uptight."

The governor also shows frequent flashes of humor, which in the first three years of his administration were almost nonexistent.

And he is making an obviously conscious effort to become more personal in his approach to the press and the public. The governor gave a striking example of this when television and newspaper reporters cornered him at an oceanfront party thrown by millionaire W. Clement Stone at the Playboy Plaza hotel here Saturday. It has been common knowledge for many years that one reason the governor does not photograph well is because of a face wound suffered in World War II. That is not to say he is not photogenic or handsome — he is. But regrettably, the face wound means it is not easy for him to smile in a winning way.

The loss of weight seems to have altered that situation favorably.

But in the past, Ogilvie has seemed to be overly self-conscious and the press has respected what they perceive to be his wishes in seldom referring to his facial wound.

Suddenly, however, the governor is declaring it to the world. In a television interview at Stone's party, Ogilvie was asked about his position on amnesty for draft evaders of the Vietnam war.

He declared flat opposition to amnesty and added, "I served in World War II and got my face messed up doing it, and I think other men can be expected to do the same for their country."

At a later TV interview, when the camera crew shut down its lights, the governor grabbed the reporter by the sleeve and urged him, "Ask me about amnesty." When the lights went back on and the reporter dutifully fed him the question, Ogilvie repeated his statement, including the reference to getting his face "messed up."

Ogilvie's sudden willingness to talk about this personal matter is generally regarded as remarkable by reporters who have known him in the past as a very private man.

Accompanying this new openness is a refreshing flair of humor which was also absent in his first years as governor.

At a press conference yesterday, Ogilvie told the reporters that his Illinois delegation had voted to bar the press from meetings because the delegates did not wish to see themselves pictured back home acting as "dumbbells if they should in fact commit some indiscretion."

Win At Bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Oswald: "One of the most important things declarer should do is just to play carefully. It is surprising how many contracts will be saved by following this precept."

Jim: "South might well have raised his partner to two hearts instead of bidding one spade, but that is a matter of style and no one can really criticize that spade bid."

Oswald: "A four-heart contract would breeze in. Defending against four spades, West opens a diamond and three rounds of diamonds are played. South ruffs the third diamond and leads a low spade toward dummy."

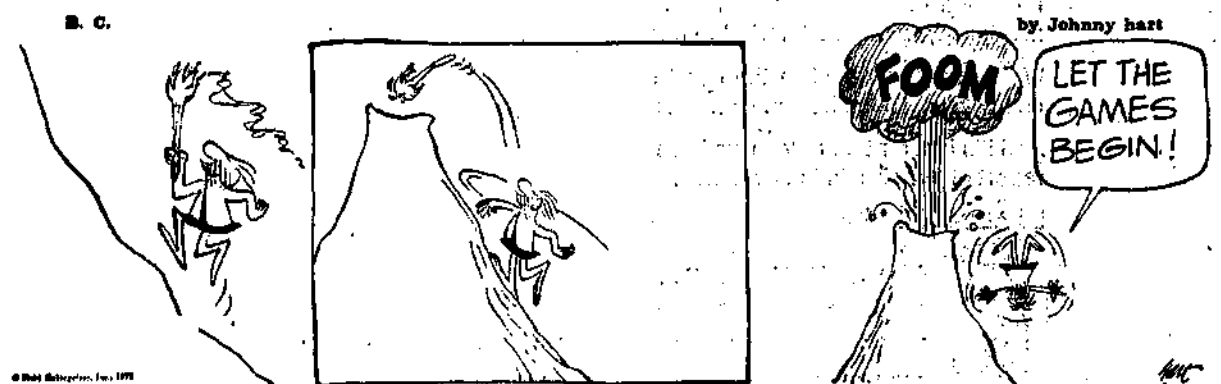

Jim: "If West clatters up with the ace there will be no problem about the rest of the tricks, but West ducks."

Oswald: "Now it is about time for declarer to take a little care. If he leads a gal 290-trump back to his king, West will take his ace and lead a fourth diamond. There will be no way to keep East's trump 10 from taking the setting trick."

Jim: "There is an easy way to guard against this. South just enters his hand with a club and leads a low spade. West must play his ace and now South is wait-

WASHINGTON (UPI) — There are all sorts of opportunities open these days to professional psychologists.

Some do clinical work. Some do private consultations. Some become associated with large companies. And some make guest appearances on television talk shows.

The main requirement for a talk-show psychologist is an ability to see everything in terms of sexual imputations.

Every time a new fad or fashion gets started some other talk show psychologist comes along and links it up with the libido.

They have found Freudian overtones emanating from such seemingly platonic pleasures as yo-yos, pogo sticks, hula hoops, badminton, platform shoes, skateboards, yogurt, flycasting and barbershop singing.

EVEN FRISBEE has been associated with fetishism. If you can imagine that.

Just the other day a psychologist attributed the growing popularity of motorcycles to a need for "sexual liberation."

Another identified upswipe hairdos as a symbol of male rejection. If your date has a bouffant, forget it, Charlie.

On a recent evening, while watching a TV talk show, it occurred to me that there must be some sort of sexual connotation in the current upsurge of interest in chess.

So I sought an interview with Dr. Sigmund Slaters, who is presently playing out his option as backup psychologist on the New Fagles talk show.

"Dr. Slaters," I said, "thousands of Americans who previously had exhibited no interest in chess and know nothing about the game have suddenly become enthralled with the Fischer-Spassky championship match. How do you explain that?"

"It's quite simple, dear boy," Slaters replied. "If you observe chess players closely you will note that they spend most of their time with their elbows on the table, chins cupped in hands, contemplating their next moves."

"Now most Americans grew up in homes where they were taught that it was bad manners to put your elbows on the table. This usually happened at an age when they also were learning the facts of life."

"ONCE SEX EDUCATION was often vague and misleading, many children got it confused with their etiquette lessons. As a result, they grew up thinking that the rule against putting your elbows on the table was some sort of sexual taboo."

"Very well. Chess games usually are played in private by consenting adults. Most Americans never saw one. When pictures of the Fischer-Spassky games began showing up on television and in the papers, it was like the old story of the forbidden fruit. The sight of those elbows pressed against the table drove people wild."

I said, "Thank you, Doctor. And if that doesn't get you a shot on the Dick Cavett show, nothing will."

ABC Plans Olympic Coverage

by STEVE WILSTEIN

NEW YORK (UPI) — Four years in planning, ABC-TV is gearing the coverage of the 1972 Olympic Games in Munich toward the electronic spectacle of the decade.

By caroming electronic impulses off communication satellites 22,300 miles in space, ABC will package two weeks of events into 6 1/2 hours of live coverage, stop action, instant replay and Howard Cosell.

The games, which will run from Saturday, Aug. 26, through Sunday, Sept. 10, get an unofficial television send-off at 8 p.m. EDT Aug. 25 with an ABC preview that takes its viewers to Delphi, Greece, site of the Pythian games.

At this ancient and beautiful site, Bill Toomey, winner of the decathlon at the 1968 Olympics and now a commentator for ABC-Sports, and Rafer Johnson, winner of the 1960 decathlon, don loincloths in an Erich (Love-Story) Segal-narrated effort to duplicate the competition of the Greeks.

THE ORIGINAL Olympians, of course, exercised their bodies in the nude and women never played a part in the competition. But then the original Olympics didn't have 1 billion viewers.

A report from Ampex Corp., whose videotape and audio recorders will be prominent in the international coverage of the Olympics, says:

"Events taking place in Munich will be televised worldwide via communication satellites 22,300 miles in space. These fixed space relay stations will carry the Munich events to any of six continents in four-tenths of a second.

"In addition to replaying pictures and accompanying sound, each satellite has transmission channels for up to 21 commentators. Four satellites will thus have a capacity of over 80 languages."

American viewers, after the opening pageantry Aug. 26, see a wave of events beginning Sunday, Aug. 27, with live broadcasts of boxing, basketball, gymnastics, diving, volleyball and wrestling between 3:30-6 p.m. EDT. Another hour will be shown at 8 p.m. EDT.

ABC HIRED PEOPLE over the last year to gather and record information on virtually every contestant at the games. A computer supplying information to the scoreboards and press center already includes more than anyone will want to know about Olympic history and the statistics on various athletes.

ABC will telecast Monday through Friday both weeks between 8-11 p.m. EDT with the exception of Tuesday, Aug. 29 when coverage begins at 7:30 p.m. Three telecasts will be made Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 2 and 3 in the afternoon, early evening and night.

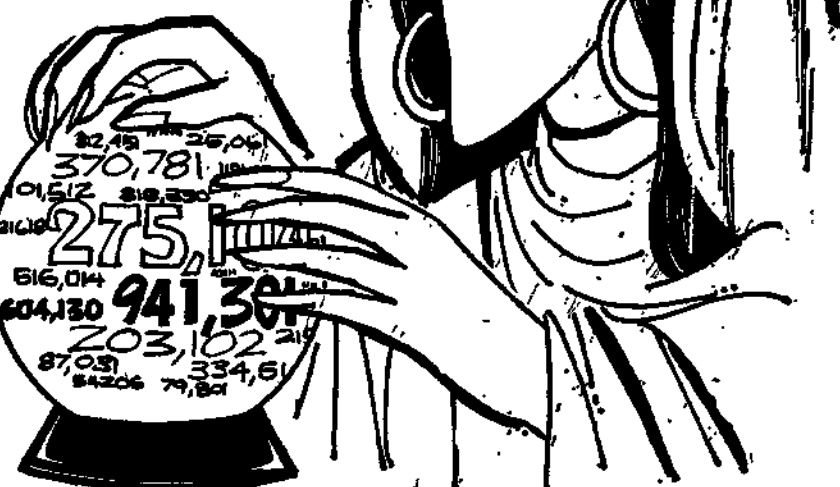

On Monday, Labor Day, viewers will get two telecasts, one at 4 p.m., the other at 8 p.m. On Saturday, Sept. 9, ABC will telecast three separate times.

We read a good deal about advertising research and are frequently reminded of some mystical incantation—figures mysteriously projected, multiplied, divided, contorted to form a supposedly attractive story.

What ever happened to the good old how-many-copies-were-really-sold counts? That's the kind of stuff advertising rates are based on!

And it's just for that reason we have a no-nonsense, no-mystery ABC audit report of our circulation audience.

ARTESIA, N.M.—Here in this town of 10,000 in southeast New Mexico is a clergyman whose wit and intrepid candor may help provide a lead in the much needed recovery from what Evelyn Waugh once described as "the Church's silly season."

The Rev. William Barrett has been willing to incur the wrath (and very possibly the parochial assignment blacklisting) of Episcopal bishops in 11 western states, because of his trenchant critique of last year's bizarre consecration service for the new Episcopal Bishop of Utah — in which the 11 prelates participated.

The consecration of a bishop, whom most Episcopalians regard (literally, or at least symbolically) as a successor to the 12 Apostles, has traditionally and appropriately been done according to St. Paul's prescription, "decently and in order."

mentary for Christian Challenge magazine, he noted that the service included:

"Firecrackers, noisemakers, balloons, cowbells, confetti, cheers, shouts, kisses, guitars, psychedelic vestments, flutes, whirrs, blue-jeaned trumpeters, tiptoe teen agers (who gazed and emptied the Holy Communion chalices as if it were a beer bust) and a choir that was forbidden to vest and told instead to wear 'fun clothes'."

—Bishop-elect Charles' hair, "which covered his ears and neck, made him almost indistinguishable from a portly matron."

"Feel free! Feel free!" a silly priest kept shouting at the service. Free? A lot of people felt sick and still do."

The chairman of the committee which arranged this exciting event (which Father Barrett described as "an ecclesiastical hootenanny" with "unbelievable vulgarity and puerility") was the newly elected Episcopal Bishop of Nevada, the Right Reverend Wolfgang Wesley Frensdorff.

Bishop Frensdorff wrote The Christian Challenge that he had obtained the signatures of his fellow prelates in Oklahoma City, Portland, Salina, Seattle, Phoenix, Bend, Sioux Falls, San Francisco, Grand Forks and Los Angeles — for a group denunciation of the New Mexico parish priest.

Barrett's critique of what Bishop Frensdorff wrote as "the consecration," (sic) came as a "shockto" (sic) him and the bery of "bishop's" (sic).

"I am glad to hear that," replied Father Barrett, amazingly calm in the face of such a multi-Apostolic anathema. "I would have assumed that anyone who was in charge of the committee who planned this 'spectacular' would be immune to shock."

Bishop Frensdorff went on to note with obvious scorn that Father Barrett was not even present at the ceremony — to which Barrett responded that he wasn't present at the Civil War, either, but reserved his right to comment based on reliable evidence.

The Bishop then deplored Father Barrett's description of the occasion as "an ecclesiastical hootenanny."

THIS APPARENTLY touched the New Mexico parish priest. "Bishop Frensdorff is probably right on this point," he conceded. "Hootenanny was definitely too mild... 'circus' is what my correspondents in Utah tell me was most commonly used there."

The Nevada bishop also decried Father Barrett's remarks on the length of Bishop Charles' hair as: "most certainly lacking the kind of Christian charity one might have reason to expect from a priest."

Replied Barrett: "It is a very old trick of certain people to accuse others, when they express an opinion contrary to their own, of a lack of Christian charity."

But apparently the Frensdorff remonstrance again touched Father Barrett. For after observing that "Charity suffereth long (hair — or hairdo)," he offered the protesting prelate a revised version of his hirsute locubration:

"The new bishop's hair — stylishly long and meticulously coiffed — gave him a dashing look that belied his age."

Dear Dr. Lamb — I hope you can help our family with an important decision. Our daughter, who is 13, has been wearing glasses, for many years. The lenses are quite thick. She wants the soft contact lenses so badly she is willing to save half of her babysitting money. If she wears the contact lenses will her eyes get so accustomed to them and their strength that she will not be able to go back to wearing ordinary glasses? I understand you cannot wear the contacts all the time, so will she also need other glasses?

Dear Reader — To obtain the soft contact lenses she'll have to be examined and fitted by an eye specialist. Although there are differences in professional opinions on the use of contact lenses, the general picture reported thus far on the soft contact lenses is very bright.

They have been worn for long periods of time as a sort of bandage over the front of the eye when it has been irritated. They do not cause the irritation and problems noticed with hard contact lenses. Studies have been done with the lenses being worn for hours and hours without irritating the eyes, but I would prefer that you rely on the eye doctor who examines your daughter for advice on this point. I only want to reassure you that it's possible that she might be able to wear them for long periods of time without the kind of difficulty normally attributed to hard contact lenses. If she is able to wear them a sufficient length of time each day, it's possible she might not need other glasses. Some test subjects have worn them day and night without experiencing difficulty.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Our son has gone on a health food diet, eating mostly mixed nuts, seeds, wheat germ and lots of milk. Every time he gets up from a sitting position, his bones in his legs and hips pop like they were breaking. Could this be from too much calcium? Please give us your opinion of this diet?

Dear Reader — No, the joint popping that you describe is not too uncommon in young growing people and it can be caused by a number of factors, but not from too much calcium in the diet.

As far as the "health diet" that you're describing, I take a relatively dim view of it. Food fads of this type often result in diets deficient in essential nutrients. If he insists on following this diet, he should take one of the daily vitamin tablets that can be obtained at any supermarket and take one each day just to cover him for a possible vitamin deficiency. A person also needs a variety of different types of protein and he will be getting a variety from the milk, which is a good source of protein, and the seeds, particularly if the seeds happen to be soybean seeds. I would still be happier if he were getting more protein from animal sources. His diet probably wouldn't forbid him using egg whites, for example.

Vegetarians get by with diets devoid of meat, poultry, or fish, but they are usually pretty smart in planning their diets. I am not sure that all these health food diets of the type you are describing measure up to a good vegetarian's diet.

Suburban Living

ESPECIALLY FOR THE FAMILY

FOUR YEARS AGO John Rechteris couldn't hold a paint brush in his hand, much less turn out lifelike geese in flight. He suffered a severe stroke that paralyzed him from the neck down.

John And Gloria Rechteris

Live The Impossible Dream

by DOROTHY OLIVER

John and Gloria Rechteris lived a pretty typical suburban life four years ago. He worked as a mold maker, was well respected in his job. She was a housewife with her own interests and hobbies.

The couple had just moved into a two-story Georgian style house near the center of Des Plaines and had already begun to rip out the insides of their five-room home to remodel it as they had done with earlier homes.

In a matter of hours life changed. John was at work when his knee gave out. At noon he went home to bed. By evening one side of his body was paralyzed. Twenty-four hours later he was paralyzed from the neck down — the victim of a stroke.

A BLOOD CLOT AT the base of the brain kept John at Holy Family Hospital for five weeks. His doctor tried to prepare Gloria for her husband's expected death. With the permission of the Sisters, who had cared for Gloria only four months earlier when she was in Holy Family with a perforated stomach, she slept in a sleeping bag on the floor next to John's bed.

John lived, but he remained totally paralyzed. Physical therapists at Holy Family taught Gloria how to exercise his useless muscles and she brought him home. They rented a lift and a hospital bed and Gloria took over as nurse, therapist and head of household.

The doctors were not optimistic about John's future, but that meant little to Gloria and John. Each day Gloria exercised him; twice a week two therapists from Lutheran General Hospital helped. Gloria took a part-time job and friends cared for John while she was gone.

SLOWLY FEELING and movement returned. Although he spends most of his time in a wheelchair John now can stand and take a few steps with a walker. He has regained complete use of the upper part of his body.

"I never thought I'd get to this point and if it hadn't been for my wife I wouldn't be here . . . she's the one who pushed me," he smiled as he spoke.

And push him she did. When things looked the most dismal, Gloria's optimism was rewarded when both friends and strangers helped.

As John got better he became bored with reading and television. Gloria encouraged him to work on ceramics — her hobby for years.

"I WAS A TOOL and dye maker all my life, I never thought I could paint or make ceramics," John said. "I couldn't believe it until I was pushed into it."

He started with small bottles of slip and student molds small and light enough for him to handle. Friends taught John how to use stains and paints. Gloria bought bigger, better molds each time he succeeded with a smaller one.

They were given a large kiln and really went to work. They converted one of the two upstairs bedrooms into John's workshop. Supplies, paints and pieces of ceramics in various stages of completion fill the room. The molds and kiln (pouring and firing have remained Gloria's job) are set up in the basement.

"THE WORK I used to do was more or less related to all this. I was working with molds — but they were steel molds. I'm using some of that knowledge for this work by modifying the molds we buy," John said.

He spends six or seven hours a day cleaning the greenware, removing seams and defects, staining, painting and glazing. Rewards are two-fold: ceramics occupy his mind and time providing both physical and mental therapy; they are also an important part of the Rechteris' income.

"John sold his first piece a year and a half ago," Gloria said. "Friends saw a set of ducks he had made. They were so impressed with how lifelike they were, they asked to buy them. As other people saw them, they wanted things, too."

"JUST RECENTLY WE started showing John's work at flea markets. We began with the Des Plaines Historical Society flea market and John demonstrated staining," she said.

Ceramics is leading John to other art forms. He is experimenting with painting on china and porcelain and is in the midst of working on busts of a young boy and girl.

"For years Gloria has been telling me, 'You're an artist.' It's taken me a long time to believe her," he said.

Samples of John's talent abound everywhere in their home: bright, laughing clowns; ducks, birds and geese poised for flight; small figurines which have often been mistaken for Hummels; owls, frogs, angels, shells — everything lifelike.

"I wouldn't want to sit around and do nothing," John said. "I find ceramics fulfilling. When I started I couldn't even hold a paint brush so I'm real satisfied to be able to do this."

DREAMS AND MIRACLES have kept John and Gloria going for the last four years. Still more dreams keep smiles on their faces when they talk about their future. Gloria is taking exams to be certified as a ceramics teacher. They hope to some day move into a one-level home with a store front so she can teach and John can sell his wares.

"I guess you have to be way down to know what it is to go back up," Gloria said. "We've made it with the helping hands and strong backs of others. Every time we've come up against a stone wall we talk to God and overcome it."

"We're still struggling along now," she continued. "But someday we hope we'll be in a position to help other people. Our theme song is 'Impossible Dream' and believe me, the most impossible ones have come true."

BEER STEINS, SANTAS, angels, animals, birds and a variety of other ceramic pieces come out of the kiln ready for the artistic touches of John and Gloria Rechteris. Ceramics has grown from Gloria's hobby to a full-time job and source of income for the Des Plaines couple.

Fashion

by Genie

Don't worry any longer about your split ends, dark roots or even that first grey hair. Throw out hair conditioners, home permanents and tints. If Vidal Sassoon's predictions come true, we'll only need soap and water to shine up our scalps.

The Londoner, who has made his mark in the world by fashioning coiffures, recently told spokesmen at Women's Wear Daily that men and women could be bald within the decade.

Sassoon agrees with designer Rudi Gernreich (also ahead of his time . . . remember the topless swim suit?) that the shiny scalp is the future shape.

Personally I can see both pros and cons to the future style of a complete hairless look. Hairstyles have often been able to alter one's appearance to the better. Even exceedingly round or long faces can be camouflaged by the right hairdo. With no hair, there will be no hiding. Your face is completely on its own.

BUT THEN AGAIN, with no hair, one would have absolutely no hair care problems. And balding men . . . why they would be the most fortunate of all, not even requiring a head shave from time to time.

For those who can't go along completely with the Isaac Hayes set, Sassoon predicts, "Hair cut close to the scalp with strong geometric shapes to accent the skull's shape. There will be an increased awareness of pattern, shape and form." The hairdresser firmly believes. "The human head is a superb shape, sculptural and sexy. Hair should complement, not hide it."

You're worried because you have a bump or two on your noggin from childhood falls?

That's no cause to become upset. Your version of the "hairless" can be modified.

FOR BUMPS and imperfections, Sassoon foresees hair cut to compensate for those oddities of nature and other proportional problems.

"For perfect baldness, there must be strong cheekbones and a good head shape of course," he said. "For most people, hair helps bone structure."

He predicted further that blacks will become the inspirational source of future hairstyles.

"After the first huge Afros, blacks started shaping their hairdos to complement the shape of their heads," he said. "Afros got smaller and some of the more avant garde shaved their heads, often balancing the look with a beard." (He's referring to men naturally.)

"BLACK WOMEN are also discovering how sexy a shiny pate can be," he continued. "And many are accenting their head shape with beautiful decorative patterns of partings and braids."

He foresees hair sectioning as a developing style for future fashionables who want to wear some hair and for baldies who want to wear their shiny look.

"Long hair will become part of history within the decade," he further predicts. "It isn't practical," he added.

An advocate of organically grown food, he feels, that unless there is a change in our diets, "It simply won't be possible to grow really long hair anymore."

O. K. so now that I have explained it, who is going to be the first to try it out?

Every household should have a freezer. The advantages are obvious. One can have extra food on hand for last minute guests. A great deal of economy is in store for those who buy extras at sale prices. The problem of spoilage is practically eliminated.

The most important advantage, however, is one not promoted by the food freezer industry: it is an excellent place to store clothes dampened for ironing.

I had had my freezer for a while before I discovered this ingenious way to put it to use. And it was my friend and next door neighbor, Alice Flaxton, who brought it to my attention.

"Oh, I've been freezing clothes for years," Alice told me casually. "Most of the time I iron out of necessity and only get to essential items. So when I have frilly dresses and table cloths that can wait until I'm in the mood, I pop them in the freezer."

"That sounds great," I said enthusiastically. "It sure beats the mildew problem and things are always iron-ready if you should ever happen to want to iron."

"Right. Nothing could be more simple or more convenient," Alice affirmed.

"Tell me, Alice, since I'm relatively new at this freezer business, can you re-freeze clothes once they've thawed if you haven't gotten to ironing them?"

"Well," Alice said thoughtfully, "Some home economists say you can re-freeze them if there are still ice crystals in them, but others say one should iron them immediately."

"And what about different fabrics? Do you have to prepare wools for freezing in a different way from cottons? Do linens need any special pre-freezing treatment?"

Alice was very tolerant of my ignorance in this area. "Not really. Just dampen them for ironing, roll them up, put them in a plastic bag and stick them in the freezer."

Nothing could sound easier, and I told Alice that.

"There are some problems, though," Alice admitted. "Once I thought I was defrosting a roast, and it turned out to be sixteen luncheon napkins."

"I'll bet you had tuna that night," I observed.

"Precisely. And another problem is that the thing tends to, ah, snowball. The other day I defrosted a roll of clothes that I had apparently put in the freezer in 1967. They didn't fit anyone in the family anymore."

"It's easy to understand how that could happen. I suppose one should date the ironing as one dates meat and rotate it as well."

Alice thought that was a good idea. "There is one thing for sure," she said in a conclusive tone. "When a housewife has a freezer, there's no need for her to lose her cool over ironing!"

All The Family Took Part

The bride's three sisters and brother and the groom's sister were all in the wedding party of Patricia McGeehan of Arlington Heights and James Klepper of Mount Prospect.

Eileen McGeehan was maid of honor, while Nancy and Beth McGeehan were bridesmaids and Dan McGeehan an usher. Karen (Mrs. Richard) Johnson of Lake of the Hills, the groom's sister, was the other bridesmaid.

The wedding took place July 29 in St. James Church, uniting two area families, the Thomas J. McGeehans of 2017 E. Euclid Ave., Arlington, and the Millard Kleppers of 1428 E. Lowden Lane, Mount Prospect.

MRS. KLEPPER turned dressmaker during the pre-wedding days. She made the gowns worn by the bride and her attendants, and the groom's grandmother, Mrs. John Hecke, did the lacework on Pat's wedding gown.

The gown was of white silk organza over tulle, princess styled with cowl neckline and lantern sleeves. Two rows of Alençon lace ran from shoulder to hemline.

The bride wore a lace Juliet cap with a cathedral veil and carried a bouquet of phalaenopsis orchids and stephanotis.

Her attendants' gowns were made of yellow chiffon printed with orange flowers. The girls carried yellow carnations and orange roses.

ALSO in the wedding party were John Serra of Palatine as best man and Richard Johnson, Lake of the Hills, and Robert Rued, Mount Prospect, as ushers,

Mr. and Mrs. James Klepper along with the bride's brother.

After the noon wedding ceremony there was a reception for 60 guests at Old Orchard Country Club.

The newlyweds are living in Buffalo Grove after a week's honeymoon in northern Wisconsin and Michigan.

The bride attended Ohio State University and graduated from Harrington Institute of Interior Design. The groom is a graduate of Wheeling High School, then attended Indiana Institute of Technology and Harper College. He is assistant manager for Wohl Shoe Co. in Winnetka.

Wed In Pink, White Color Scheme

A pink and white color scheme surrounded Brenda Diane Fowler on July 29 as she became the bride of Steven Jack Gowan. The couple exchanged vows and rings at two in the afternoon in Eastminister Presbyterian Church of East Lansing, Mich. where they both have been attending school.

The bride, daughter of the Gordon Fowlers of Jonesville, Mich., is a graduate of State Data Systems in East Lansing, where her bridegroom is also a graduate. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Gowan of 824 S. Prindle, Arlington Heights.

Brenda wore an ivory bridal gown fashioned with a lace Empire bodice and chiffon floor-length skirt and train. Her floor-length bouffant veil was edged with the same lace as her gown. She carried white carnations and pink rosebuds to complement the color in her attendants' attire.

MRS. STEVEN DECK, Brenda's sister, was her matron of honor. She wore a pink chiffon gown trimmed with ivory lace at the Empire waist, on the high collar and cuffs of the sleeves. She carried a long-stemmed pink rose with a pink gardenia.

Mrs. Steven Gowan

Another sister, Roberta Fowler, was a bridesmaid along with Agnes George, East Lansing, and Mrs. Jerry Rockwood, Hillsdale, Mich. They were gowned exactly as the matron of honor.

David Gowan of Saginaw, Mich., was his brother's best man, and groomsmen included Stanley Dyer, Grass Lake, Mich.; William Dittman, Hanover Park; and Robert Rutherford, Mount Prospect.

SEATING THE wedding guest were the bride's two brothers, Willard and Bruce Fowler.

A reception at the Country House in Okemos, Mich., followed the wedding. Afterwards the newlyweds spent a week's honeymoon traveling through the southwest.

They are at home in Wheeling.

Brenda attended Michigan State University for two years to study interior decorating before going to State Data Systems. Steven spent two years studying accounting at Central Michigan University prior to State Data. He now works for Rock Road Construction Co., Dea Plaines.

Evening Out Can Help Hay Fever

Going to an air-conditioned movie, theatre or restaurant is good medicine for hay fever victims. It sometimes helps to prevent serious attacks when the air is thick with pollen.

At home a central unit that filters out pollens and controls humidity is recommended for those who can afford it. Physicians advise that the patient weigh the cost of a unit against days lost from work, or the expense of travel and vacations to avoid the offending pollens.

Antihistamines taken internally or in nasal spray form are sometimes recommended. So are decongestants. It is advisable to follow directions carefully for all medications. Antihistamines, especially in tablet form, sometimes cause drowsiness and should not be taken when driving or working with anything dangerous, or when caring for a young child.

NOW Observes Anniversary Of Suffrage

Chicago Chapter for the National Organization for Women (NOW) is observing the 52nd anniversary of women's suffrage with a week-long schedule of activities.

The observance began yesterday with "Columbia Day," a gathering at the Columbia statue in Jackson Park that included a wreath laying at the statue constructed for the 1893 Columbia Exposition. It was at this site that a women's building was constructed to house the Women's Congress of 1893. Intended to be a permanent building devoted to women's arts, politics and education, it is no longer standing.

Different emphasis will be placed on each day of the week relating to various aspects of women's rights. Monday will be "Yellow Arm Band Day," with all women urged to wear the official yellow arm band in support of legislative changes to achieve such rights as the Equal Rights Amendment.

THE WEEK will end Saturday with a women's fair at Church of Our Savior, 530 W. Fullerton. Booths on the themes stressed during the week will be featured along with other community interest groups, women artists and craftsmen.

Specific issues to be highlighted during the week include birth control, and abortion, marriage and divorce, child care, job discrimination, stereotyping in education and the media and women in religion.

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: We lived in a small apartment up to now and so could never accommodate overnight guests. But now not only are we in a house with the extra room, but we face the prospect of a relative moving in for a little time. I'm puzzled as to just what to get so that the room is not only attractive, but still serves the basic purpose. The convertible sofas are attractive, but are they comfortable for night-after-night sleeping? — Diane S.

Dear Dorothy: I've got a cocktail party coming up and wonder if I have to worry about the warm weather spoiling a dip made with sour cream? — Abby M.

Sour cream will stay fine at room temperature for two to three hours. In other words, it is a little more resistant to spoilage than related dairy products.

Dear Dorothy: If you want to stretch a pair of shoes that are made of man-made materials, put a slightly damp cloth over the part to be stretched. Then hold a hot steam iron over it until the material is warm and soft. Then easily and carefully pull the material until the fullness is just right. Synthetic patent leather responds especially well. — Barbara H.

Planning To Change Their Names

Kathleen Mitrenga

A September wedding is planned by Kathleen Marie Mitrenga and James Patrick Landers Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. James P. Landers, Chicago. The couple's engagement and approaching marriage are announced by Kathleen's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Mitrenga, Mount Prospect.

Kathleen attended the American Academy of Art, Chicago, and is now a stewardess for United Air Lines. Her fiancé is a graduate of Illinois Wesleyan University, Bloomington, Ill.

Carol
Robinson

The engagement of Carol Joy Robinson to Arthur Edwin Gould, son of the Joseph Goulds of Skokie, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis H. Robinson, 293 Maywood Lane, Hoffman Estates. A June '73 wedding is planned.

A graduate of Conant High School in 1970, Carol will enter her senior year in pre-med at Northwestern University. Her fiancé graduated this year from the University of Illinois and will enter law school there in fall.

Deborah Verfurth

Mr. and Mrs. William F. Verfurth of Westchester announce the engagement of their daughter, Deborah Anne, to Thomas E. Kaiser, son of the Frederick H. Kaisers of Palatine.

Deborah will graduate from Northern Illinois University in January with a degree in elementary education. Her fiancé, a '69 graduate of Fremd High School, will receive his degree from Northern Illinois next June. He is majoring in industry and technology.

The couple plan to be married next June in Divine Providence Church, Westchester.

Linda
Meadors

At an open house Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Howard C. Meadors of 437 N. Inverway, Inverness, announced the engagement of their daughter, Linda, to Laird Salisbury, son of Dr. and Mrs. Glenn W. Salisbury of Urbana, Ill. After the open house, the couple and their families dined at Inverness Country Club.

Linda is a graduate of Palatine High School and the University of Illinois. She works for Scott, Foreman & Co., Glenview, as an advertising product specialist. Her fiancé also has a degree from the U of I and is a second year law student there.

A June '73 wedding is planned.

Household Product Ads Under Fire From FTC

by MONICA WILCH

Did you ever wonder what the "catch" is in these TV commercials that conduct an experiment before the cameras to "prove" the superior qualities of a particular product?

The Federal Trade Commission, in a recent order prohibiting American Home Products Corp. from using deceptive advertising for its various household products, released descriptions of the offending procedures.

For instance, in the case of "Easy-Off Window Cleaner," half a window is sprayed with Easy-Off, the other half with "brand X." Both are allowed to dry, and the announcer points out that the Easy-Off half is spotless while the other side has spots. According to the complaint, if the brand X half had been wiped as directed, no spots would have formed.

SIMILARLY, in another ad two crystal bowls are shown, one filled with Aero-wax, which dries clear, and the other with another wax, which dries cloudy. But Aerowax is a polishing wax, the complaint says, and was compared with a cleaning wax. Furthermore, neither was used in its intended manner.

A more subtle technically operates in commercials for the firm's insecticide, Black Flag Ant and Roach Killer. Cockroaches are put in two containers, one treated with Black Flag, the other with a leading brand insecticide. The roaches in the Black Flag container die, but the others do not. According to the complaint, the roaches in the competitive brand containers were a type known to have developed a resistance to that product's active ingredient.

Black Flag, incidentally, was judged "too hazardous for household use" by Consumer Reports in its August issue. The consumer testing organization said that Black Flag contains dichlorvos, a chemical that is both toxic and persistent, producing long-lasting fumes that are harmful when breathed.

THE FOURTH product named in the complaint was Easy-On starch. A shirt is sprayed with Easy-On, and the other side with another brand starch. A hot iron is then placed on both, and when lifted, the Easy-On side stays white while the other side is scorched. The complaint charges that no scorching would have occurred if the shirt had been ironed in the normal manner.

But the FTC emphasizes that cease and desist orders issued by the agency in such cases "do not constitute an admission by the respondent that he has violated the law."

Area Construction Women Will Head For Convention

The 17th annual convention of the National Association of Women in Construction (NAWIC) will open in Portland, Ore. on Thursday, Sept. 21.

Jayne Baker Spain, vice chairman of the U.S. Civil Service Commission, will present the keynote address on "Women Can Be People" to an estimated 1,000 members. On Sept. 22, Mrs. Marjorie M. Wintermute, Portland architect, will address the delegates and alternates from 164 NAWIC chapters in 42 states and the District of Columbia.

Delegates to the convention from the northwest suburban area will include Des Plaines resident Geraldine Corrick of Charlson Co. Plumbing, Des Plaines, who is the Chicago Chapter president; and Wheeling resident Cathy Anderson, of L.S. & S. Construction Corp., Chicago. Alternates will include Buffalo Grove resident Arlene Snyder who is employed by the Egyptian Construction Co. in Des Plaines; and Lorraine Wiegand, employed by Jay's Hy-Lift Mfg. Co. of Wheeling.

Members of NAWIC are employed in one of the following phases of construction: architecture, general construction, subcontracting, material supplying, construction engineering, construction news services, and construction trade associations.

Mobile Unit Helps Prevent Heart Deaths

More than half of all deaths from heart attacks occur within the first hour after the attack — before the victim is reached by medical treatment of any kind. Many of these deaths could have been prevented by early emergency care.

An organization known as ACT (Advanced Coronary Treatment) Foundation has been formed to encourage the development of mobile intensive care units with emphasis on cardiac treatment capable of bringing appropriately trained personnel and sophisticated equipment right to the heart attack victim, wherever he may be.

ACT serves as a source of information on Mobile Intensive Care and a funding organization of the National Committee on Early Coronary Care. Supported by eight member-companies of the pharmaceutical industry, its president is Kenneth M. Webb, vice president of marketing for CIBA Pharmaceutical Co. The Foundation provides educational kits and a film to physicians and community groups interested in starting local campaigns for mobile intensive care units.

Don't Misuse Court System

The actions of Cook County Assessor P. J. Cullerton in his current battle with Gov. Richard Ogilvie and the Illinois Department of Local Government Affairs are discomforting in more ways than one.

Without discussing the relative worth of the opposing positions in the argument over the state equalization multiplier, Cullerton's turning is all too familiar.

Cullerton has claimed that the state, through the LGA, has cheated the county out of $38 million through the "fraudulent, intentional and illegal manipulation of the state multiplier."

What bothers us, however, is that Cullerton waited until less than three months before the November election to make known his allegation.

The coincidence of the accusation with the pending election indicates a motive steeped in political considerations.

The situation with the state multiplier has not changed significantly in the past few years, but Cullerton has made no previous accusation that the people of Cook County have been cheated.

Moreover, the county had a three day period in the spring to appeal the multiplier, but failed to do so.

Equally distressing is that Cullerton has chosen to use the county circuit court as his vehicle of publicizing this political rhetoric.

More politicians, in recent years, are filing more lawsuits in an attempt to use the courts as tools to further their own political ambitions or those of the party.

That type of exploitation of the courts certainly is not limited to the Democratic Party. A recent suit filed by attorney Robert Sklodowski against County Treas. Bernard Korzen and County Clerk Matthew Danaher carried with it political overtones. Sklodowski is the Republican candidate for county clerk.

These political suits serve only to attract public attention to the particular political campaign and to further increase the burden on the courts.

All too often the suit is abandoned once the election is over, further indication of the unworthy motive for filing it in the first place.

Government for the people every four years has become intolerable. The voters can no longer be asked to vote for a candidate who displays his interest in the welfare of the people only in election years.

Certainly other avenues are open to politicians from both parties to convey their opinions and campaign issues to the public, and we urge them to refrain from misusing the court system for political purposes.

Movies Go Ape

Those who say the movies are going to the dogs are wrong.

The movies used to be going to the dogs when Lassie and Rin Tin Tin and Shasta were around.

But if you will take a look at current films being shown around the country, you will see that in fact movies today are going to the frogs, the rattlesnakes, the rats and the apes.

You can't stop progress.

Yet Another Choice

Who says American voters never have a choice, only an echo? A fellow named Jacob J. Gordon of Worcester, Mass., has declared himself a candidate for president on the National Government ticket with a platform that makes those of every other party look like exercises in nambypambyism.

Stating that "all Americans and the entire world realizes (sic) the present existing federal government of the United States is totally, completely and hopelessly corrupt from top to bottom," Gordon offers a platform which includes the following pledges:

(1) The complete removal of American troops from Vietnam within 72 hours. (2) Guaranteed $10,000 earned minimum annual income for all families and $500 minimum monthly pension for all elderly. (3) Replacement of all federal employees with new employees. (4) Bar all lawyers from serving as judges in any court (5) Abolish the national debt. (6) Abolish all labor unions, which will no longer be necessary. (7) Eliminate crime, inflation and unemployment for all time and return morality and God to the United States for all time. (8) Reduce all taxes by a minimum of 75 per cent.

Incidentally, "the armed services will in no way be effected (sic) by the transition of government."

The platform will be adopted in convention assembled in New York City on Sept. 1. For those who can't attend, at the bottom of Gordon's campaign literature is a handy form for applying for a job in the new "National Government of the United States," with a space for the position applied for — "Congressman, Judge, Clerk, other positions available."

"Three million government jobs are yours for the asking!" says Gordon.

Tom Wellman's Column

Exposing Truth About Rose Lawn

Last weekend this reporter covered — if you'll excuse the overworked pun — the Miss Nude, Mr. Nude and Mrs. Nude America contest in Rose Lawn, Indiana

In response to a never-ending string of questions and dirty jokes from fellow reporters, several observations about the experience are in order

—No, I left my clothes on, for my physique resembles that of Don Knotts on his deathbed. I burn easily, too

However, it seemed easy to adjust to the fact that, all around you, people were taking off their clothes. You stopped staring after the first five minutes, because nudity began to seem as natural as growing a beard or a mustache.

—There was no sex displayed, except one minor but hilarious incident which cannot be reported in a family newspaper Sorry

Tom Wellman

—The entire contest was a non-news event, staged for the financial and publicity benefit of the persons who run Naked City.

It cost $10 to get in the gate, or $5 if you had press credentials. The lower price, it is reasoned, will bring in newspaper or magazine publicity which will bring others in future years to Naked City to spend $10 or $5, etc. etc. etc.

Money pervaded the weekend. The photographers generally used fancy, professional equipment — there were few Kodak Instamatics in evidence.

And the photographers seem attracted like vultures to carnal. Indeed, one picture of a naked woman can probably be sold for $10 or more.

The whole process of nudity-for-profit should have encouraged at least a cynical chuckle or two. But the photographers were too preoccupied to be amused by the process.

—The unclothed women were primarily the contestants and the few that lived on the Naked City grounds in the tiny one or two-room shacks which were spotted everywhere. Few other women dared to take off their clothes

But the men were not bashful about taking off their clothes — I'd estimate a couple hundred were running around getting sunburned all over. But I didn't spot anybody photographing them.

—Yes, the contest exploits women. But none of the female contestants seem to complain, for the winner gets $1,000 and a host of free publicity. Perhaps there's even a movie contract in it for the winner

Oddly enough, the last names of the contestants or their home towns are not mentioned. Such a step adds to the stag-film nature of the whole event.

—The best part of the trip was the "before" and "after" reactions which occurred in the Herald's newsroom.

BEFORE Nobody, it seemed, had ever attended a nudist colony or covered a Miss Nude America contest. I detected — perhaps through paranoia — the reactions of "Wellman's gone off the deep end AGAIN" and "you mean I'd have to take off ALL of my clothes?" (a thought that did indeed cross my mind).

I asked the office's girl-watcher if he wanted to go to Rose Lawn, and he had a Saturday morning shopping trip that couldn't be missed. Other male members of the staff reported an uneasiness about convincing their wives that they should go to the event.

AFTER: People I've never met before have asked me about what really happened in Rose Lawn, and I've resisted the temptation to make the story larger than life.

Indeed, though, there are now more volunteers for next year's visit to Rose Lawn — both male AND female. It's the old story about being the first one to sample the soup to see if it's poisoned, or jumping into the pool to see if the water's OK.

However, if you go to Rose Lawn, don't bother to bring a bathing suit.

Fence Post Letters To The Editor

Percy's Record On Elderly Defended

I would like to correct misrepresentations of Senator Charles H. Percy's record in Michael Taras' letter to the editor of July 17. Mr. Taras' suggestion that the Senator has failed to solve the problems of the elderly could not be further from the truth. Equally false is Mr. Taras' implication that the Senator did not vote on an important housing bill. Both accusations are untenable in light of the Senator's record.

The elderly have long been one of Chuck Percy's primary concerns. He authored a package of seven bills providing special approaches to the elderly's problems of transportation, housing, nursing homes, and recreation. In addition, he has introduced social security benefits to widows over 65, granting automatic increases in social security benefits to correspond with increases in the cost of living and extending Medicare benefits to cover almost all prescription drugs for older Americans.

In addition, the Senator has cosponsored legislation to allocate increased funds for nutrition programs for the elderly and has vigorously supported efforts to improve enforcement of the Age of Discrimination in Employment Act.

It is not happenstance that Senator Percy recently was given the Award of Merit by the National Council of Senior Citizens, Inc., for his exceptional concern for the welfare of these important citizens.

With regard to the housing vote Mr. Taras claimed Senator Percy missed, I can only say the Senator has not missed any vote on housing all year. In fact, he not only voted for the passage of the Omnibus Housing Act of 1972, but introduced an amendment which passed the Senate providing for the creation of an Assistant Secretary of HUD for the Elderly. He also voted in favor of passage of the HUD Appropriations.

In short, the Senator's record reflects a strong commitment to the elderly and a clear understanding of his responsibilities as a United States Senator. I, for one, will work to insure his continued representation of Illinois.

Butcher Editorial Is Praised

I praise your editorial on broadening butcher's hours. I may be un-informed when it comes to the union's point of view, but as a consumer I would like the convenience of more hours to shop for meat.

Convenience for the consumer seems to be the name of the retail game. If the consumer has the money power, the retailer should cater to him (or her). In the case of the larger chain stores this is the practice. Obviously, they feel the longer hours are worth the salaries involved to man the stores.

Some of your readers disagree. One states that 24 meat-buying hours a week are enough. The reality is that these 24 hours are not enough. It is difficult for many people to shop before 6 p.m. even on Saturday. As for the unfair advantage to the small butcher shop, it is my experience that people patronize it for the quality and special service not the convenience.

Another reader says the meat cutters are preserving the "American way of life." I'd have to question the correctness of calling not having "father" home for dinner and church-going "not the American way." Calling all the husbands home for dinner by avoiding the jobs they hold would take the "way" out of phrase by destroying the economy.

Your editorial is fair in asking not for butcher's hours 24 hours-a-day but for a skeleton crew for the weekend. I would add until 8 or 9 p.m. on weekdays. I would also like to question the logic of a customer not being able to buy meat when it is in the display case in the evening as is often the case.

Would additional hours mean higher prices? If full scale activity were continued, higher prices most likely would follow. However, if the skeleton crew idea were allowed as your editorial suggests, what would be the difference? I'd be interested to know. Butchers' longer hours need not be blamed for higher prices. What have been the reasons all along? Certainly not just labor.

Wreck Ruins 18-Year-Old

I would like it to be noted that the Palatine Police aren't as bigoted idiots as people put them out to be.

On Sunday evening, August 13, my friends, Howard, Debbie and Greg and I were out driving and were waiting to pull into North States on Palatine Road when a man plowed into us. It appeared that he was smashed. He then threw his beer can out and began to leave. Howard and I chased him and got him cornered into a building until the wagon came.

The police found some more beer in the car along with the lights in the drunk's car not even being on. Luckily no one was hurt, just a little sore from our necks almost cracking off.

The part of the Palatine Police was done well in my mind. But what about Greg and his car? He's out of a car.

Because of someone who can't hold a little beer, and to lose a car that's a lot to an 18-year-old.

ONE WHO ATTEMPTS TO WIN FAVOR OR ADVANCE HIMSELF BY FLATTERING PERSONS OF INFLUENCE

Business Today

by GERARD LOUGHRAN

DUBAI, Persian Gulf (UPI) — The cable from Dubai said MOHAMMED HAS PASSED EXAMS. The reply from India five days later said: CONGRATULATIONS.

That exchange marked the successful completion of a $240,000 gold-smuggling operation, part of a multimillion dollar trade which has been described as the national industry of this thriving city-state.

Dubai long has been the booming commercial center of the southern Gulf area. Re-exports account for 60 per cent of its gross national product. Textiles, watches, liquor, tobacco and other luxury goods all are sent secretly to India, Pakistan or Iran where there are high import duties or outright embargoes.

But gold is the big profit maker. Not as much now that gold prices have shot skyward, but still a money maker.

AN EXPERT on the trade explained the mechanics of the business.

"The gold comes from Switzerland, Scandinavia, Italy and other European countries and is handled perfectly legally by all of Dubai's 17 banks," he said.

"It arrives in the shape of matchbox-size bars worth $240 each or perhaps in the form of fake sovereigns or commemorative coins of such countries as Mexico, the United States, Austria or Turkey. Sometimes there are genuine sovereigns and South African two-rand pieces.

"The consignments arrive by air in packing cases and you can see them at Dubai airport if you keep your eyes open.

"Dubai merchants buy the gold for dollars and then load it secretly at night aboard motorized dhows. The bars are sealed in polythene bags and hidden under tackle.

"THE DESTINATION usually is India,

Pakistan or Iran, but sometimes consignments are moved onwards to Singapore and Hong Kong.

"The average shipment is worth about $240,000, and a fake code cable is usually sent to the receiver to indicate the cargo is on its way.

"The journey by a 10-man motorized dhow to India takes four or five days. The dhow lands the gold at a pre-arranged point — usually a deserted strip of beach — where the buyer has half a dozen men with donkeys waiting to take delivery.

"He pays for the gold in dollars — which are brought back to Dubai and exchanged on the free currency market — and sends a coded reply cable indicating the gold arrived safely."

The expert said millions of dollars a year were involved in gold smuggling.

"It has been a national industry here for years. But now it has become a higher risk, lower profit operation.

"WHEN GOLD was fixed at $34 an ounce the profit was colossal — as much as 75 per cent to the dealer. Now the gold price is up to $65 and profits are down to about five per cent.

"In addition, the receiving countries are mounting increasing security measures, using helicopters, fast patrol boats and even hovercraft."

Sometimes, if a dhow is challenged by customs men, the skipper dumps the gold overboard. If he is not quick enough, he and his men face stiff jail sentences and the gold is confiscated.

Among other hazards the gold merchants face are the possibility a skipper may decamp with the loot even though he is paid well or the chances of raids by pirates.

There is a small return trade from the East, usually drugs for Europe or illegal immigrants attracted to the oil-rich Gulf by high wages.

AM Divisions Lease Office Building In Schaumburg

Addressograph Multigraph Corporation, a business-equipment company, leased a new five-story office building in Walden Office Square in Schaumburg as the headquarters location for two Chicago-based divisions.

The 75,000-square-foot facility, to be called the AM Building, will house the Bruning Division staff, which will move from Des Plaines, and the Graphics Service and Supplies Division staff. The latter is a new AM division formed July 1.

Nearly 300 employees will be based in the building, first of three contemporary office buildings in a planned $200-million development of Walden Investment Corp. The building is located at the corner of the Northwest Tollway and Route 53. Occupancy of the AM Building is slated to begin Sept. 15.

begins Sept. 15

The 35,000-square-foot Times Drive facility will be converted into Bruning's engineering center, according to A. T. Craft, vice president and general manager. Bruning, a manufacturer and marketer of diazo reproduction equipment and supplies of microfilm and micrographic products, has manufacturing facilities in Mount Prospect, Guilford, Conn., Broomall, Pa., and City of Industry and Menlo Park, Calif. In all, the division employs about 1,600 persons.

Personal Finance

Most of us tend to avoid thinking about unpleasant subjects. For example, most have never looked into what would happen to the family income if the breadwinner were disabled in a job-related accident.

Two Columbia University sociologists have looked into it and have just completed a report for a federal commission. They found that among serious financial hazards against which the family is least protected, this is one that urgently needs attention.

Wage earners and their families suffer "severe financial attrition" when disability results from job-related injuries, says Walter Adams and A. J. Jaffe of the university's Bureau of Applied Social Research. And, surprisingly, they found that while low-income workers fared poorly, "the affluent fared worst, in the sense that they had the most to lose and indeed lost a great deal."

WORKMEN'S compensation benefits, they concluded, aren't related to the realities of either family income needs or inflation. Interviews with 121 disabled wage earners showed that:

They had earned an average $7,363 a year before their accidents. That was 71 per cent of the total household income.

After their accidents, they drew an average $2,012 in "workmen's comp" benefits. That was only 24 per cent of the household income. In other words, wives and other family members had to find jobs and produce three-fourths of the family income.

And there were other inequities. Many of those interviewed — about 20 per cent of them — received no disability payments for a year or more after their accidents. Several were given only lump-sum settlements, "and received them after long delays."

Legislators who write the workmen's comp laws appear never to have heard of inflation. Payments, says the Adams-Jaffe report, "did not begin to replace lost earnings in constant dollars. Inflation played a major role in this attrition." The households of those interviewed had lost, on the average, just over a third of the purchasing power they'd enjoyed before the disability.

One of the major faults of workmen's comp laws, the two sociologists concluded, is their failure to take into account the effect of a disability on an entire household. All injured workers receive the same compensation — the same for a young single worker supporting only himself and for a breadwinner with several mouths to feed.

THE REPORT, prepared for the National Commission on State Workmen's Compensation Laws, faults the system heavily and recommends some major overhauls.

The family breadwinner, meanwhile, can't count on such action being taken in the near future, if ever. For the family's own financial security, he could examine and overhaul as necessary his private income-protection insurance.

One problem to be considered is the nonoverlap feature of most disability-income policies. Typically, according to the Health Insurance Institute, workmen's comp benefits will be "carved out" of the payments due under a private policy. Find out how much your workmen's comp benefits would be, in case of disability, and how much income you're assured of from other sources.

And, since many insurers will insist on waiting until a workmen's comp case has been settled, try to choose coverage that will give your family a source of income meanwhile.

UOP, Douglas Agree

Universal Oil Products Co. (UOP) has reached an agreement with McDonnell-Douglas Corp. in connection with UOP's termination in 1971 of a galley supply contract.

J. O. Logan, president and chief executive officer, said, "Negotiators for both parties have reached an agreement releasing UOP and MDC from all further obligations to each other. However, the negotiations were carried out in an atmosphere of mutual goodwill and UOP expects to bid upon future MDC requirements."

Children Teach Themselves At Montessori Preschool

by NANCY PRATT

STAMFORD, Conn. — Before designing the Early Learning Center here, architect Egon Allougi spent three days sitting on a floor to get a three-year-old's eye view.

So all the shelves are low, knee-high to the preverbal grasshopper and the windows afford a limitless view.

The classrooms in this unorthodox school bear none of the trappings commonly found around little children in school. None of the standard holiday silhouette cutouts made by the teacher and colored by the child, the cutesy bunny rabbit word books or the huge bins containing haphazardly the "playthings" children could uninventively spend their days with.

Play refrigerators, play stoves, play dishes, play world.

INSTEAD, THE core area resembles a chaste art gallery colored warmly. To the side of the 24-square-foot core area is a three-part honeycomb of small specialized rooms — approachable by an overhead catwalk or a narrow opening. The older children curl up and read, build or imagine they are invisible in the security of the shag-carpeted catwalk. At one end of the core area is a divided section devoted to cooking, music and the senses. Walls are nonexistent in the main area.

Outer walls are mostly floor-to-ceiling windows, sliding doors with a floor-to-ceiling black-and-white abstract painting on one wall. Museum overhead lights send muted daylight playing over the room. Carpeting hushes footsteps. Healthy large plants (watered by children) stand or hang near light. A hot pink flokati rug covers a gelatinlike water bed.

Mrs. Margaret Skutch, a smallish woman with determined, brown eyes, began the school seven years back. Her action was promoted by two things:

There was no community preschool for her son that looked like anything more than an extended baby tending session. Second, she found a Montessori school in another community and decided that Stamford should have one.

THE MONTESSORI movement based on new concepts in learning developed by the Italian educator and medical doctor, Maria Montessori, in the '20s and '30s has now grown to more than 1,100 schools, some state supported.

The Montessori teacher receives training that stresses respect for children and a guiding rather than managing role as teacher.

Mrs. Skutch received this training, combined her own and the spirit of Montessori to begin the Early Learning Center.

(A church basement housed the school for the first two years. But a $4,000 grant from Educational Facilities Laboratories, an off-shoot of the Ford Foundation, provided the then Stamford Montessori School with its present inexpensive, flexible building.)

Fees for children attending the center range from $800 per year for pre-primary (2½ to 5 years) to $975 for primary (5 to 6 years). The summer session is $125 for both groups.

The orderly, unchaotic environment reflects what Margaret Skutch is like. "Chaos doesn't have to accompany creativity," said Mrs. Skutch.

MRS. SKUTCH and her teachers order the environment and stock it with learning materials that invite independent use and mastery. Montessori materials, British learning equipment, electric typewriters, tools, adding machines — all, with minimal explanation, can be used even by two-year-olds. Many materials, such as the Montessori sandpaper letters, are multisensory. A child can feel as well as see the shape. Or the cutout letters. Tangible learning.

Teachers often invent their own materials. Children write their own stories. They bake real cakes, real cookies, even — quiche lorraine.

Young children succeed when given the opportunity to have alternatives, said Mrs. Skutch.

—They choose their activity. From reading to climbing to cooking.

—They decide whether to explore inside or out.

—They take juice and crackers when they need it, which is quite an independent act for a three-year-old.

These choices, made within the rule-framework of not harming oneself, the environment, or another child, produce what Margaret Skutch calls "quiet confidence."

The teachers, as observers, take daily notes. Notes and daily discussions about the children allow for a picture of how each child is changing.

THE TEACHER might suggest, not insist on, an activity when it appears a child may benefit from it.

Mrs. Skutch has written a book on preschools, "To Start a School" (Little, Brown and Co.). She also is a consultant for the Far West Lab for Educational Research and Development in Berkeley, Calif., training people to work with children in their own communities, rather than call in some highly trained hot-shot educators to do their job.

Mrs. Skutch feels that Early Learning Center children leave the school with great self-confidence.

"They are," she said, "comfortable with themselves."

Northwest suburban senior citizens will be notified by the Cook County assessor whether their applications for the 1972 homestead tax exemption have been approved.

Homeowners whose application for the exemption have been denied are currently being notified by the assessor's office.

The 100,000 county residents whose applications have been approved will be notified in October, County Assessor P. J. Cullerton said.

The exemption allows a $1,500 reduction on the equalized value of a person's home and property. People over 65 who own and live on the property are eligible for the exemption.

The exemption can result in a savings of $115 on a tax bill payable next year.

Cullerton said many senior citizens who have filed for the exemption have been calling or writing the assessor's office to see if they have qualified for the exemption.

Because both those whose applications have been approved and those whose applications have been denied will be notified, Cullerton said it is not necessary for property owners to contact his office.

Property owners who still have not filed the forms for the exemption may do so at Cullerton's office at 118 N. Clark St. in Chicago. Homeowners may also obtain forms through the mail by calling 321-6151. Requirements for the exemption include a completed application swearing that the owner lived in his home as of Jan. 1, 1972, proof of ownership of the property, and proof of age.

Asia, Africa Water Used In Celebration

Metropolitan Sanitary District officials poured some very special water into a Chicago fountain earlier this month in an observance of the anniversary of the founding of the district.

Water samples from Europe, Asia, and Africa were flown in for the special ceremonies to commemorate Pure Water Day Aug. 2.

Designed as a symbol of world-wide concern over water pollution, the water poured into the Pioneer Court fountain came from the Thames river in England; the Seine River in France; the Neckar, Main and Rhine rivers in Germany; the Tone, Edo, Tama, Ara and Sagami rivers in Japan; and from the local water supplies of Casablanca, Morocco.

The MSD laboratories tested the water for purity before it was poured into the city fountain, apparently in an effort to avoid polluted water like that which caused an epidemic 87 years ago in the city and led to the founding of the MSD.

Union Oil Monday Captures Team Honors In 23rd Paddock Golf Meet

Palatine Hills obviously is a good place to tune up for the Paddock Publications Inter-League Handicap Golf Tournament.

Teams that call Palatine Hills their home in the twilight season placed a solid 1-2 yesterday in the 23rd edition of the Paddock headliner.

Union Oil Monday of the Union Oil Co. division toured the Golden Acres Country Club layout in 293, four shots ahead of American Can of the American Can Co. League.

Thirty-three teams accepted the Golden Acres challenge, and scores were generally higher than expected on this warm August afternoon.

Union Oil Monday, projected to be among the tourney front-runners after the first nine holes Sunday, didn't let up over the final nine.

Dennis Harrod, carrying a seven handicap into the competition, paved the way for the 1972 champs with a sharp 79 gross 68 net. Harrod had nine of 40-35 over the par 72 course.

There were other heroes on the champs with Bob McGowan, a 21-handicapper, coming in at 91 for a 70, Frank Castleberry with a 102-29-73, and Dan Pemberton at 102-20-82.

American Can remained in contention until the finish with a quartet of Scott Johnson, Fred Kudert, Pat Urso, and Wayne Nixon.

Nixon led the way with an 86-18-70 and Johnson was right behind with 95-24-71. Rounding out the strong showing of this Palatine Hills entry were a 76 (91-15) by Pat Urso and 88 (104-28) by Fred Kudert.

The two Palatine Hills outfits had fairly comfortable advantages for the top spots with third place Arlington Elks of the Elk division at Arlington Country Club 12 strokes off the winning pace.

The Elks made a good run for the top prize with particular thanks to the hot-shooting of Nick Barkulis and Ed Rogan II. Barkulis, a 26-handicapper, came in at 88 for a net 67 that took home a dozen golf balls. Rogan had a 93-24-89.

Also contributing to the third place effort were an 83 by Tony Schiller (101-18) and 86 by Dick Steffens.

The winning total of 293 was the lowest ever shot in the three previous Paddock headliners at Golden Acres. Busse Texaco had won in 1968 with a 296 (84 handicap) and Tioga VFW took the 1966 prize at Golden Acres with a 358-64-294.

Jack Dages, playing for the Buffalo Grove Men's league, took low gross honors for the day with a sizzling 74.

Dages was steady with a pair of 37s. He had 6s on the first hole of each nine but then settled down for some remarkably consistent scoring that featured five 3s, eight 4s, and three 5s.

Jack had three birdies in his round and favored the long holes, cashing for a 4 on the 498-yard 9th on the Red Nine and a 4 on the 510-yard White Nine 4th.

PATROLLING FIRST base for the Arlington Heights American Legion in the regional playoffs this week will be Dave Giles, a long-ball threat and

Nicklaus Saves The Show; Cancer Research Benefits

In show biz tradition of "the show must go on" Jack Nicklaus made a surprise visit to the Chicago area to rescue the American Cancer Society's Benefit Golf Exhibition recently at Thorngate Country Club.

The exhibition's original billing featured Lee Trevino, Glen Campbell, and local celebs Wally Phillips and Johnny Morris, but an early morning call dropped the bombshell that Trevino had been hit with a throat infection and would be unable to appear.

"The call came at about 8:30 a.m.," said Phil Emmons, co-chairman of Special Events for the Cancer Society. "There were a few moments of panic to say the least—but then we decided to take a long shot and give Jack Nicklaus a try."

Less than 24 hours after winning the Westchester classic, the golf's greatest name was contacted and accepted. Nicklaus left Florida by air immediately and at 2 p.m. arrived in the Thorngate driveway.

Moments later, he was on the first tee with Campbell, Phillips of WGN and TV sportscaster Morris, a resident of Inverness.

Phillips, wearing what he claimed to be the latest in knickers, provided the comic relief in the absence of the fast-talking Trevino.

He created fear in the large gallery when his first ball went straight into the crowd after a flight of about 40 feet. "Is he really that bad?" asked one of the spectators.

The super golfer Nicklaus launched some exhibition balls down the fairway. The crowd applauded appreciatively.

A storm stopped the show after only three holes, but the stars remained in the clubhouse to meet their fans and to sign autographs. The ticket holders went home well satisfied.

Close to $20,000 was raised for the fight against cancer due to a top team of Chicagoland volunteers. Leaders who donated their time and effort were Raymond J. Schmidt, President, Thorngate Country Club; Robert Doran, Special Events Chairman, American Cancer Society; Mr. and Mrs. Wally Phillips;

Harold Sortor, 1972 Chicago Unit Crusade Chairman; Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Morris; Earl L. Collins, Golf Event Chairman, A.C.S.; Phil Emmons, Special Events Coordinator, A.C.S. and N. P. Crockett, Ticket Chairman, A.C.S.

Etienne Resigns Harper Post For Iowa Prep Job

by PAUL LOGAN

Dave Etienne, who led Harper College's basketball team to its finest season in four years, is resigning. Etienne will become Cedar Rapids (Iowa) Kennedy High School head coach in basketball.

Coming from Coe College in Cedar Rapids last year, Etienne established a run-and-gun offense and an aggressive defense which carried the Hawks to a very fine 18-11 record. At one stretch during that time, the Hawks were 7-1.

Etienne said that he and his family had made Cedar Rapids their adopted home and — when the job opportunity opened up — the temptation to return was just too great.

Besides returning to his old surroundings, Etienne is also taking over the defending state championship basketball team. The team has been to the state finals the past two years because of the work of 6-9½ soon-to-be-senior Mark Wright. Etienne had this already two-time all-stater in a summer program a few years back and labels him "one of the best if not the best high school senior in the Midwest."

Etienne admitted that his leaving, however, brought on mixed emotions:

"The staff I have worked with is one of the finest I've ever been associated with. I can't think of any that is more solid teaching and coaching-wise."

"The kids were good, too, last year. I can't say enough for them. They should have a winning season this year." After Etienne's team dropped a 100-83 decision to Wright College of Chicago, it rolled up seven straight successes. Included in that turnaround was a 114-59 romp over Prairie State and a 101-79 waltz past Elgin.

One of the high points in the season came when the Hawks edged always powerful Joliet, 86-84, in the very competitive Highland Classic Holiday Tournament at Freeport.

Harper was in contention for the Skyway Conference title for most of the season. Although just missing in winning it, the Hawks of Etienne did hand Triton — the SC champ — one of its few losses in the season in the final conference game.

Closest Can-Am Ever Forecast Aug. 27

The closest Can-Am ever!! That's what followers of the 1972 Canadian-American Challenge Cup series are seeing this year — both the closest in point standings and in wide-open competition at Elkhart Lake, Wis.

When on Aug. 27 Road America's 200-mile is the mid-point of the nine-race, continent-covering million dollar series, any one of three men could be leading the international championship point parade — and a dozen others could be very, very close behind.

In past previous Can-Am series of the past six years at the midway spot in the schedule the near-invincible Team McLaren was far out front so that the major excitement focused more on who would finish second (or third, since Danny Hulme and Peter Revson and the late Bruce McLaren usually wound up 1-2). But not, after the first four races, consider this scramble for the championship:

Hulme, Gulf McLaren M20 50 pts
Follmer, L&M Porsche 917 48 pts
Minter, Vasek Porsche 917 40 pts

With 20 points going to the winner of a race (scoring is 20-15-12-10-8-6-4-3-2-1) any of this trio could quickly be No. One.

But there are others contesting for top honors, and a high finish at Elkhart Lake could be them "right in there":

Revson, Gulf-McLaren M20 27 pts
Gulf-McLaren M20 27 pts
Hobbs, Steed Lola T310 20 pts
Kemp, Holiday Inn Lola T222 20 pts
Motschenbacher, MRE 16 pts
McLarenM&D 16 pts
Gregg, Kendall Porsche 917 16 pts
Oliver, Uop Shadow 15 pts
Young, Young Am. McLaren M8F 15 pts
Donohue, L&M Porsche 917 15 pts

After 200 miles on the four-mile-long Road America circuit (longest track of the Can-Am series), anything could happen as far as the point standings go.

Here is a rundown on how the first four Can-Am's of '72 have gone:

MOSPORT, Canada (Labatt's Blue Trophy) — Hulme began by driving his 496-cubic inch Chevy-powered McLaren to victory by a 55 second margin over surprisingly-tough Donohue in the new Porsche 917 set up by Roger Penske's slickly-run operation. Hulme averaged a record 110.655 mph, although the fastest race lap was turned by teammate Revson at 117.716 and the fastest qualifier was Donohue at 119.307 (all records).

ROAD ATLANTA, Georgia — Both Team McLaren cars were unable to finish here, Hulme wiping out his in a bad accident, and Follmer stunned racegoers by winning in his 305-cubic inch turbocharged Porsche (and by more than a lap). He proved to be a "super sub" for hospitalized Donohue, injured in an earlier crash, averaging a record 113.96 mph. However, the McLaren's came up with the fastest race lap (118.926 by Revson) and qualifying time (122.364 by Hulme), both records.

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. — Again it was a McLaren show as Hulme and Revson placed 1-2, now both with 512 cubes of Chevy power. Hulme's winning margin averaging 114.44 mph for the race was only a second and a half over his teammate. That speed was a record along with Revson's fastest competition lap at 116.560 and qualifying speed at 122.565.

MID-OHIO, Ohio — It was Follmer's turn to win this one, again capitalizing on McLaren team misfortunes as Revson went out with transmission troubles and Hulme had five pit stops because of rain tires and vibration. But Follmer showed plenty of muscle in beating Jackie Oliver and the Shadow by a minute and a half and averaging a near-record 92.876 miles an hour in a drizzle—besides qualifying fastest at 102.945-per. Hulme fired-up on the last lap of the race to clock the fastest competition lap at 102.37-per.

That's how it has gone in the first four Can-Am's. Now it's Road America's turn come the weekend of August 25-27.

Need Bowlers

Sim's Country Lanes in Lake Zurich is interested in recruiting two five-man bowling teams to play in a scratch league beginning Sept. 11.

The team should average $25 or under, or five individuals may enter and be placed together as a team. The individuals must have averages of 185 or better. The league will play at 6:45 p.m. on Mondays.

For further information call Mrs. Behrens at 438-7231.

Schmoyer Twins Win Again

The Schmoyer twins just keep adding titles to their already impressive collection.

They did it again Friday. The talented tennis players, daughters of the Fred Schmoyers of Arlington Heights, ruled the Western Women's championships at the Oak Brook Bath and Tennis Club.

Claire Schmoyer, who has been teaching at Plum Grove this summer, won the singles championship and teamed with sister Kay, who has been working at the Arlington Heights Park District, for the doubles crown.

The stiff women's competition included entries from Illinois, Michigan, Indiana, Wisconsin and Ohio.

The Schmoyers left immediately after their successes for Arizona State University, where they will be sophomores and returning regulars on the women's team that won the NCAA championship last spring.

Harper College Holding Practices

Athletes interested in trying out for the Harper College football team should report to the college field tonight at 6:30.

Throughout the week head coach John Eliasik will be holding conditioning workouts at that time. Equipment will be issued on Saturday.

Athletes are advised to get a physical as soon as possible. The one taken by freshmen upon enrolling in school is sufficient, according to Eliasik.

Eliasik wants prospective Hawk players to bring T-shirts, shorts and spikes to this week's workouts. Gym shoes are acceptable this week.

Dart Players Taking Aim On Bigger, Better Things

by RALPH NOVAK
NEW YORK — (NEA)—Consider the possibilities.
The World Series of Darts;
A Most Valuable Darter holding out for a $300,000 contract;
Monday Night Darts;

Construction of a special pub to hold 30,000 people for dart matches;
Howard Cosell making sharply aimed comments.
This is the country, you'll remember, where Harold Robbins, Martha Mitchell, McDonald's hamburgers and Trey Darnell have risen to fame and fortune, so why not the game of darts?

There are already organizations called the National Dart League and the United States Dart Association, sometimes known as USDA to those who were not born on farms. They estimate, perhaps with understandable overzealousness, that there are 3 million dart players in the United States today, 10,000 of whom are involved in regular league play, mostly in "pubs" (which are to be differentiated, by dart players at least, from "bars").
And the latest feather in the darters' cap is a project creating a British vs. American tournament along Davis Cup lines, although this one will be fought for the Pimm's Cup, named after an alcoholic beverage whose maker is sponsoring the competition.

As expert darters play it, the game is one of finesse. None of this ferociously zinging darts into the board, as if it were the kid down the block who always steals your bike. The approved technique is more like shooting a free throw in basketball, all delicacy and precision, a lissaz flick of the wrist to send the dart on a lazy arc to the board eight feet away.

Darts, surrounded as it is by images of English fog and Sherlock Holmes, is a white collar equivalent to bowling. Among the players competing here recently for a spot on the American Pimm's Cup team were an economist, an advertising man, a real estate salesman and a whole commuter train full of young executive types.

Anybody who has passed the pin-the-tail-on-the-donkey stage has his own personal set of three darts that he carries in a compact plastic case (it's true that you don't have to worry about stabbing yourself with a bowling ball but then it doesn't hurt you if you drop a dart on your foot). Some of the more snobbish competitors even have custom-made darts that cost $50 a set.

There are, as yet, no professional dart players.
For instance, Adele Nutter, the 1972 national women's champion — darts, for no reason other than tradition, is sexually segregated — is a vision therapist who became interested in darts when she went to a New York pub where a game was in progress.

That was two years ago. Now she practices two hours a day on her home board, plays for two organized teams and has become what dart insiders call "a score monger," otherwise known as a fanatic. "I've become addicted to it," she says. "I wish it was a pill so I could take it."

Darts, she has discovered, is a game for between or during drinks and atmosphere is everything.

"I play best where there's a jukebox playing and people yelling and screaming all around us," Ms. Nutter says. "It makes me nervous if it's too quiet."

Whether darts is about to become a sport for the masses is uncertain.

It will not help you keep your weight down, since as Ms. Nutter says, "If you can walk up to the board to pull your darts out, you're in good enough shape to play."

It can be expensive, especially if you toss more drinks than you do darts.

And it could be dangerous if somebody gets carried away and yells, "Stick it in his ear."

But then bowling, golf and curling all had to scratch their way up from obscurity, too.

As Jack Guilfoyle, executive director of the National Dart League, says, unflexingly, "What began as a pastime has reached the point of serious competition."

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Adele Nutter, 1972 national women's champion.

4 Winners In Special Event

As the league moved into the final weeks of the golfing season for the Thursday Morning Ladies Golf at Buffalo Grove, the pace picked up.

Winners of the special event, closest to the pin on the par 3 eighth hole were Jerry Johnson, Barb Feller, Mary Patterson, and Gerry Callahan.

Each girl took the honors for her flight. Low gross scores for the day were Judy Schmitt in "A" Flight with a 46; Barb Feller with a 57 for "B" Flight; Mary Patterson with a 56 for "C" Flight; and Bernice Leep with a 72 for "D" Flight.

At a meeting following golf the slate of officers were elected for the 1973 golf year: President — Pat Young; Vice-President — Terry Cole; Treasurer — Rosemary Emmet; Handicap Secretary — Mary White; Assistant Handicap Secretary — Ginny Alvidsen; and Recording Secretary — Judy Rischall.

Members are reminded of the Awards Banquet which will be held at Landers Chalet in Elk Grove Village at 6:30 on Sept. 15. Make your reservations by calling Hildegarde Maher at 537-6492.

Palatine Begins Issuing Gear

Prospective Palatine High School football players will be issued equipment today and Tuesday, according to head coach Arv Herstedt.

Seniors and juniors will be able to get their gear and lockers beginning at 9 a.m. today. Sophomores are asked to come at 1 p.m.

Freshmen will report at 9 a.m. Tuesday.

Before equipment and a locker can be obtained, an athlete must present these completed papers — parent permission slip, medical certificate and insurance slip.

Practice will begin on Wednesday at 7 a.m.

Roger Basrak, an instructor in industrial arts, will join the coaching staff as an assistant Fresh B coach. He is the son of Niles West head coach Mike Basrak.

Falcons To Issue Grid Gear Today

Football equipment will be issued at Forest View High School today, according to head coach Paul Jordan.

Juniors and seniors should report from 1 p.m. to 2 p.m. in the boys gymnasium; sophomores from 2:00 to 3:00; and freshmen at 3:00.

Boys should bring parent permission cards, physicals, and insurance when they report for equipment.

Campy's Records

NEW YORK (UPI)—Roy Campanella in 1953 set major league records for the most home runs, 41, and most runs batted in, 142, by a catcher. As to be expected, the Dodgers' receiver was voted the National League's most Valuable Player that season and won MVP awards in 1951 and 1955.

Mucking Through

Edward Lawrence Packard, a leading golf course architect, says land that may be too swampy for building purposes can be transformed into a golf course.

Packard said that wet areas can be dug out to form manmade lakes or graded higher for trees and fairways.

Fish Favorite

LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — Michigan anglers spent more time in 1971 fishing for bluegills, crappies and other members of the panfish family than for any other type of fish.

A Department of National Resources survey showed that 487,940 anglers dangled their lines for panfish for more than 7 million days. No. 2 in fishing attention was black bass which lured some 463,360 anglers into some 5.3 million days of action.

Khan's Course

PORTO CERVO, Sardinia (UPI) — The newest addition to the ranks of European golf courses recently opened on Pevero Bay in Karim, Aga Khan's Costa Smeralda resort development.

It is an 18-hole course designed by American Robert Trent Jones.

Meadows' Fall Registration And Grid Gear Issue Today

Rolling Meadows head football coach Angelo Barro reminds all prospective players that they must be registered between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. today for the coming season. All fall athletes (cross country included) are asked to register in the Commons area at Rolling Meadows High School.

Football equipment will be issued in the school's indoor track area this evening, but before the gear can be handed out, every player must have a parent consent form signed, must have taken a physical examination and must have paid their insurance or bring a signed waiver from their parents.

All forms will be available during registration today. Equipment will be issued to freshmen between 6-7 p.m. tonight at which time they'll receive football shoes at a cost of $7.
Varsity players (juniors and seniors) will be issued gear between 7-8 p.m. while sophomores will receive their equipment between 8-9 p.m.
Practice will begin Wednesday morning at 8 in shorts, tee shirts, helmets and football shoes. Details of the practice will be made clear at a meeting following the issuing of equipment tonight.

Illinois H.S. Grid Playoff In Final Planning Stages

A state football playoff may become a reality in Illinois for the first time in 1973.

The Illinois High School Association has a plan in its final stages of preparation (although it is too late to change procedures for 1972). A good guess from past experience is that the IHSA will present this plan to High School principals this fall in the form of a letter and ballot for yes-no vote.

Many football coaches in the state want the opportunity to play for the state title as in other sports. Meet coaches want a class system but will welcome any workable plan.

The IHSA also made the following announcements:

Coach of the Year awards will be made next year by using trustees and representatives for nomination. How many areas will have such awards is undetermined at this time.

Steps have been taken to investigate the possibility of a state all-star football game.

A football-basketball clinic will be held at Carbondale at Southern Illinois University Friday, Sept. 15.

New officers and trustees were elected at the General Convention and clinic this summer at the Sheraton-O'Hare Hotel in Rosemont. Officers are: President, Merv Haycock of Peoria Spalding High School; First Vice-President, Bill Duchon of Glenbard West; Second Vice-President, Vern Pollock of Carbondale; Third Vice-President, Ed Zembal of Oak Park; Secretary-Treasurer, Phil Salzer of Peoria. Twelve trustees were also elected.

Nixon Sizzles 'Y' Twilight

Ed Nixon nearly copped everything in sight for the YMCA Twilight Golf League as he carded low gross honors with a one-over-par 38, low net with a 32 and steered home two birdies on No. 10 and 17.

Joining Nixon on the birdie parade were Bart Kenay and Mike Gotham on 13 and Cliff Stock on 12. Bruce Campbell ranked behind Nixon in both low gross (39) and low net (33).

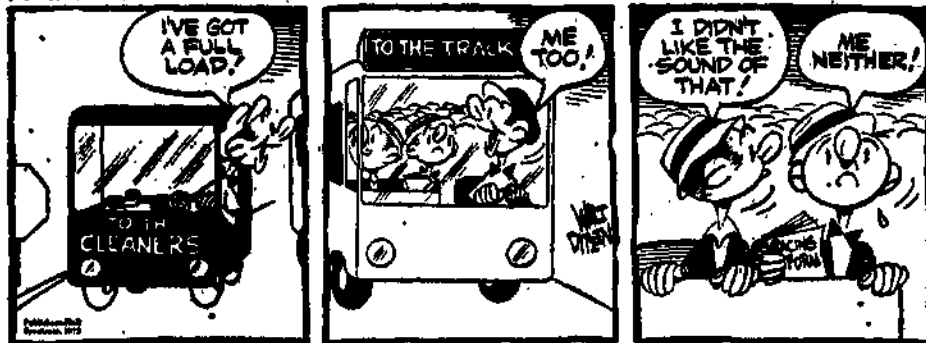

Kre-Ken Patterns and Bank & Trust of Arlington Heights share the team standings with 20½ points apiece. Members of Kre-Ken Patterns include Captain Harold Schlichting, Dick Hoyt, Bart Kenay, Ed

Thomas and Ralph Newlin.
Bank & Trust is comprised of Captain Joe Pokorni, Mike Gotham, Hal Petersen, Dale Clausen and Dieter Schmid.

'Mini-Workshops' Will Improve Teacher Skills

The administration of Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59 will establish a series of "mini-workshops" to improve teachers' skills.

Erwin Stevenson, assistant superintendent of instruction, said workshops will assist a teacher in developing a certain specific skill.

Stevenson said teachers receive enough theory and rhetoric during their college education, but they do not get an opportunity to prove they have acquired basic teaching skills.

Stevenson said it was not the fault of the individual teachers that they have not acquired practical experience in some of the basic skills. He blamed the teacher education process in the colleges and universities, saying teacher education courses were oriented too much toward lectures and not enough toward practical training.

THE WORKSHOPS will give the teachers the opportunity to add to their skills. Before completing the workshop, teachers will be required to demonstrate they have actually acquired the abilities taught during the workshop, through either actual classroom work or simulated problems.

Stevenson called the "mini-workshop" program, "relatively unique" in the country.

Workshops will be conducted for math, reading and art. A special consultant will lead the workshops.

Plans call for the workshops to run in sessions from two to a possible maximum of 15 hours. Each workshop will be limited to a small number of teachers. Popular workshops will be repeated during the year.

Stevenson said the workshops are part of the district's program to "humanize" education. He said studies have shown that the organization of the classroom and the choice of material presented was not as important as the learning process as the ability of the teacher.

A survey was taken in February among the teachers, asking what topics they would like taught in the workshops.

One of the most popular requests was for workshop training in diagnoses of problems. The teachers wanted help in recognizing and handling learning problems of the students.

Sept. 18 Is Vote Signup Deadline

New Elk Grove Village residents have until Sept. 18 to register at the village building, 901 Wellington, to vote in the November elections.

Fay Bishop, assistant village clerk, said the only requirements for a person to register are to be at least 18 years old and have been a Cook County resident for at least 30 days. Young people should bring some proof of age when they come to register.

The village clerk's office will be open 8:30 a.m. - 5 p.m. Monday - Friday and 9 - 12 Saturday mornings for registration.

The village building also will be open from 7 to 9 p.m. Sept. 14 and 18 for registration.

Village residents may also register at the Elk Grove Township Hall, 2400 S. Arlington Heights Rd. The township hall will accept registrations until Oct. 2.

The township hall will be open for registration 9 a.m. - 4 p.m. Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Fridays and 9 a.m. - noon Wednesdays and Saturdays.

The town hall will also be open for registration from 7 - 9 p.m., Sept. 28 and 29; 9 a.m. - 3 p.m. and 9 a.m. - 8 p.m. Oct. 2.

Residents who have previously registered in the village do not have to register again providing they still live at their registered address.

Previously registered residents who have moved within the village do not have to register again, but they must mail their voter's card to the county building with their new address.

School District Book Fee Payment Day Is Aug. 30

Parents of children who will attend the elementary and junior high schools of Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54 are reminded that Wednesday Aug. 30 has been scheduled as book fee payment day.

Parents are asked to go to the school their child will attend and pay book rental and other fees. Teacher and room assignments for the 1972-73 school year will be available. Students who are eligible for bus transportation also will receive bus assignments and routes on that day.

Book rental fee and weekly newspaper cost will be $8.25 for children in grades one through six. Junior high school student fees will be $8.75 to cover book rental and newspaper cost. There also is an optional $3.75 towel fee for all students in seventh and eighth grades. The kindergarten fee is $3.75 per child. There has been no increase in book rental and towel fees over last year.

STUDENT ACCIDENT insurance will again be offered, and may be purchased on a voluntary basis. Brochures explaining the program will be sent home with students during the first week of school.

Book fee payment hours are 9 to 11:30 a.m. for people with last names beginning with letters A-L and 1 to 3 p.m. for those with last names beginning with M-Z. Fees also may be paid at each school 7 to 9 p.m. the same day.

Area Man Hurt In Cycle Accident

George Poplawski, 25, of 500 N. Third Ave., Des Plaines was treated and released for lacerations early Friday afternoon at Alexian Brothers Medical Center following a motorcycle accident in Elk Grove Village.

Poplawski was injured when he was struck by a car driven by Marian Segal, 2629 Elm Street, Evanston.

Police said Miss Segal struck Poplawski as she was turning into a driveway at 300 Lee St. Miss Segal was issued a ticket for failure to yield the right-of-way.

Parents of kindergarten children who have been assigned to schools other than the ones in their neighborhoods may pay fees at either their neighborhoods or assigned schools.

Still under construction but expected to be completed by the first day of school is Dist. 54's 22nd school, the John Muir Elementary school, located on a site in the Barrington Square-Hilldale Village area of Hoffman Estates.

Families new to the area who have not enrolled their children may do so at their neighborhood schools beginning Thursday.

... For The 1976 Election

GOP Looking For Candidate

by ROBERT LAHEY

MIAMI BEACH — Republicans are assembling in this sweltering city to select a candidate for President, and the only question appears to be what year they are talking about.

There is no conversation whatever among delegates concerning the candidate for 1972 — they already have him in the White House — but speculation is rampant about who will capture the party's nomination four years hence.

And the name most frequently mentioned, despite the conventional disclaimers by him and his staff, is that of Sen. Charles H. Percy of Illinois. Percy is at the center of the only real question expected to ruffle the surface of this otherwise serene gathering of the GOP. That question concerns how delegates are to be selected in 1976 and what representation will be allotted to the various states.

Percy called it yesterday "the only basic decision to be made by this convention."

The senior senator from Illinois is laboring mightily against strong conservative opposition to put across a plan which would increase the representation of the large urban states and to widen the spectrum of the delegates who will choose a successor to President Richard M. Nixon as the party's candidate.

Republicans here have refused to follow the lead of the Democrats who met here a month ago and opened all their meetings to the press and the public.

A caucus of the Illinois delegation yesterday morning was closed to reporters and lasted for approximately an hour and a half, with the only substantial business being a discussion of Percy's proposal on delegate selection. The extent of conservative opposition to Percy's plan was evident in the fact that his home state failed to endorse the plan, although the delegation also chose not to endorse the program put forth by conservative senators John Tower of Texas and Jack Kemp of New York.

The Tower-Kemp plan, which would favor the smaller, more conservative states of the West and South, has been adopted as the majority report of the party's rules committee. Percy neither won nor lost his plea to his own delegation for support of his reorganization plan. Instead, the delegates emerged with a compromise, appointing a 12-member committee with instructions to arrive at a position which Percy and state central committeewoman Hope McCormick could present to the rules committee. As this was written, that committee was meeting in Percy's room at the Playboy Plaza hotel, and Percy told reporters earlier that he had committed himself to the decision of the committee, which was to report to the rules committee late yesterday.

The governor was reticent, however, about what objections had been raised to Percy's plan to enlarge representation for his state.

Percy and Ogilvie agreed that whatever proposal on delegate selection is approved by this convention, it will result in nearly doubling the number of delegates who convene in 1976.

There are 1,346 delegates in Miami Beach. Percy's proposal would result in 2,130 delegates while the Tower-Kemp proposal would mean a convention of

Powers Co. Charged With 72 Violations

Criminal charges have been placed against a local construction company after police discovered that more than 30 persons were crowded into several vacant farm buildings in Hoffman Estates.

The building, on West Bode Road near the Interlodge apartments, were cited for 72 building code violations last week. Several families, all Mexican-Americans, were living in an old farm house, a converted shed and an out-house.

"The conditions are deplorable," said Hoffman Estates Police Det. Ronald Sperandio. He said the buildings were unfit for human habitation. Thirty-two persons, adults and children, were living there.

Sperandio said the house had no running water, no plumbing or heat. He explained there was raw garbage piled in various places throughout the house and the rest of the property.

THE OWNERS of the property, the Powers Construction Co., have been cited for criminal management of property, he said.

Police said company spokesmen claimed they were unaware of the number of people there. Apparently only one family was paying rent. One of the men living there was working for the company on the apartment complex directly east of the house.

Already musing who their 1976 candidate might be, Republicans worked off-camera Sunday in Miami Beach to patch up the party's sole remaining squabble before the start of a well-rehearsed, three-day television spectacular starring President Nixon. On the eve of the GOP National Convention, party chairman Robert J. Area Woman To Face Painful Rabies Shots

A Schaumburg woman may have to undergo a painful series of rabies shots if a cat, allegedly cared for by Fred P. Thomas, 718 Baxwood Ln., Schaumburg, is not impounded and watched for symptoms of rabies.

The Cook County Rabies Board mailed a ticket Thursday to Thomas charging failure to impound the cat, requiring him to appear in court Oct. 13 to explain the matter.

Mrs. Charles Kilgore, 519 Hingham Ln., Schaumburg, was scratched by the cat Aug. 10, when she helped a next door neighbor break up a fight between two cats.

According to her husband, one of the cats had just scratched the neighbor's little boy and she called Mrs. Kilgore to help. The two women cornered the cats and called Schaumburg police. When Pat. Thomas Osterman arrived on the scene, one cat scratched Miss Kilgore and ran into Thomas' yard.

SGT. ROBERT HAMMOND said Osterman told Thomas he must impound the cat that evening. According to Sgt. Hammond, Thomas told Osterman he owned the cat. The officer then reported the incident to the Cook County Rabies Control Board.

Miss Karen Phelan of rabies control said she sent out a warden from the sheriff's office the day after the incident, because Thomas did not impound the cat. Thomas told the warden, Miss Phelan said, the cat was not his. He said it was a stray cat he was just feeding. Thomas also told the warden the cat had run away.

According to Miss Phelan, Thomas is technically the owner of the cat if he was feeding it, and therefore is responsible for impounding the cat, as required by law.

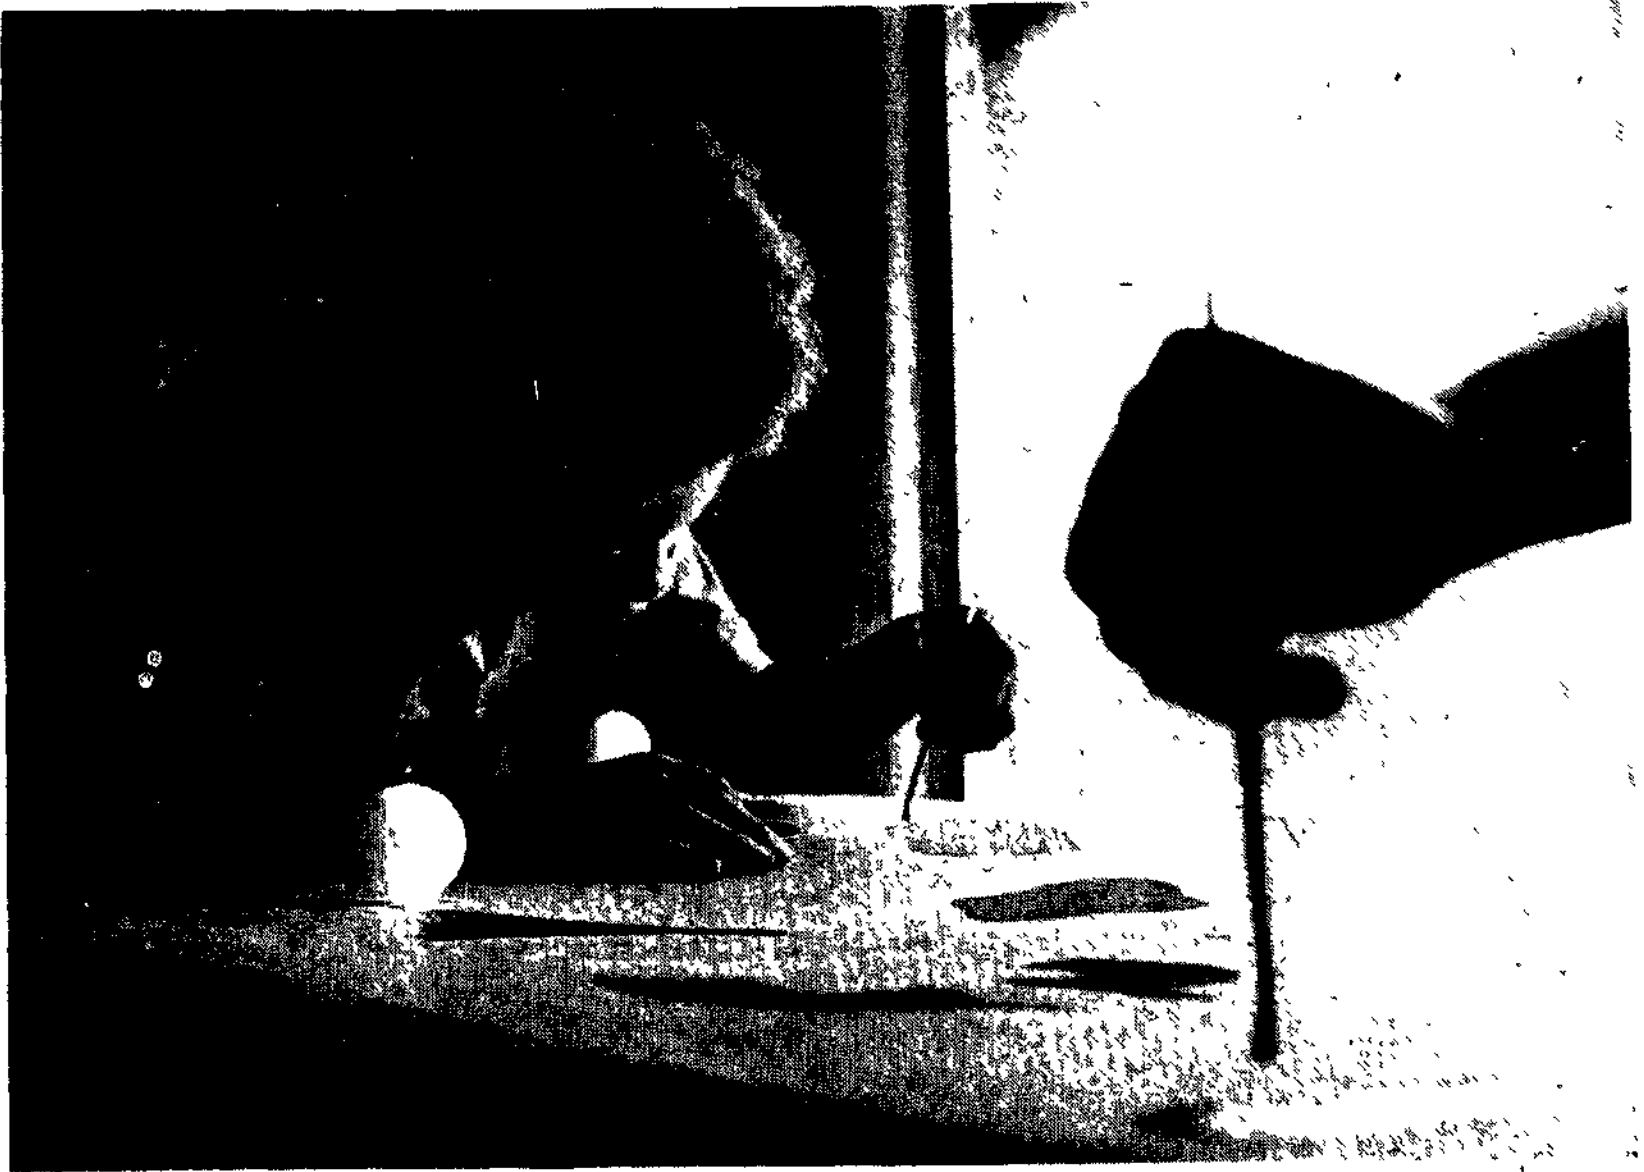

"I've been trying through letters and phone calls to get some action on this matter all week. Thomas has been very uncooperative," Miss Phelan said. "If Thomas fails to appear in court Oct. 13 a warrant will be sworn out for his arrest," she said.

THOMAS COULD NOT be reached for comment on the case. His wife said, "All of this could have been avoided if everyone had minded his own business and I have nothing further to say."

The penalty for not impounding a cat that has scratched or bitten someone is not less than $25 and not more than $100.

The hearing is too far in the future to help Mrs. Kilgore avoid the series of rabies shots. The cat that attacked the neighbor's boy has been impounded since Aug. 10, and Miss Kilgore plans to wait and see if that cat has rabies before she decides about having shots.

According to Sgt. Hammond, there have been 56 dog-biting or scratching incidents in Schaumburg and 11 cat-biting or scratching incidents since the first of the year. In such cases, the animals are impounded for 10 to 14 days to determine if they have rabies.

LIFE IN ARLINGTON PARK'S backstretch area often is void of the recreational opportunities many suburban residents take for granted. The Salt Creek Park District, however, is attempting to even more elaborate summer activities during next summer's racing season.

Track Park Programs To Be Expanded

by KEN KOZAK

It's a strange place to find a park. You have to look hard to find it at all, tucked in among red, yellow and blue barns, a lot full of long, shiny house trailers and a place called "SMITH'S Kitchen."

It's the backstretch at Arlington Park Race Track, and it rings more often with the sounds of horsemen plying their trade than with kids playing games.

But Salt Creek Rural Park District is trying to bring what amounts to a complete park program to the kids in the track backstretch.

ALL THEY HAVE there now is a small green recreation building that the track has donated for their use. And the kids.

The kids come from the families who live in the backstretch trailer lot from May through August and then move out on the different southern racing circuits.

Park district director Jim DeVos feels

it's time some kind of programs were offered to the families who live at the track, which is within the Salt Creek District's boundaries.

With the track's cooperation, the park district brought recreation programs, arts and crafts and softball to the kids at the track about six weeks ago. DeVos said about 30 kids participate in the programs, which will be expanded next year.

"Next year whatever we do in the other parks we are going to be doing here," DeVos said.

The programs are offered free of charge to the kids from the track, who are also included in outings and field trips that the district sponsors for its residents.

The track and park district share a peculiar relationship. Since it is within the district's boundaries, the track pays about $20,000 in taxes annually to the district. It also provides use of the Arlington Park Towers hotel swimming pool and golf course for park programs.

BUT THE TRACK benefits too, both from good publicity that grows from its community involvement, and from the fact that Salt Creek has one of the lowest park tax rates in the area.

The important part about the relationship, however, according to DeVos, is that it is finally beginning to benefit the families in the backstretch with the program that will end in two weeks when the track closes for the season, but will resume next May.

"We're very happy to be offering them some good things to do in the summer," DeVos said.

are scheduled to appear in court Oct. 8 in Schaumburg.

Sperandeo said all of the families have been given eviction notices and must be out of the house by noon today.

Efforts were being made over the weekend by the police and the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows to find housing for the families involved.

POLICE SAID the house and the other buildings will probably be destroyed next week either by the fire department or a wrecking company.

They said all of the persons living there had entered the country legally and moved to the area when one family rented the house.

Sperandeo said the police had learned of the situation about a week ago. Several inspections by the police and the village department led to the charges.

Police will probably level criminal charges against at least one other person this week in connection with the incident, said Sperandeo.

The criminal management of property charge, a misdemeanor, carries a penalty of one year in the county jail or a $1,000 fine or both.

Juvenile Offenses

Juvenile offense statistics from the Elk Grove Village Police Department show:

—An average of 150 new cases each month.

—Average age of an offender is 14.3 years.

—Boys outnumber girls in police contacts by more than five to one.

—Juvenile offenses increased 110 per cent in January to July 1972, compared with the same period last year.

—Repeated offenders accounted for approximately half of all new cases.

Ol' Art Of Winemaking Comes Back

by JOANN VAN WYE

Just scanning the shelves is enough to give one's salivary glands a real work out.

Try imagining rhubarb wine.

Or perhaps you'd prefer marionberry or gooseberry wine.

Starting with African fruit passion and ending with zinfandel, dozens of different blends and different kinds of concentrated grapes line the shelves of the Wine-Art store in the Rolling Meadows Shopping Center.

The concentrated grapes are from as far away as Africa and Italy or as close as California.

Cherry and apple are the favorites of the amateur enologists who wander into the shop, according to Don Cowles, owner.

"THE FRUIT IS interesting in that it's different but wine in the truest sense is made only with grapes," he said.

Cowles opened his shop in June to capitalize on the rebirth of the ancient art of winemaking.

He says the store stocks everything necessary to get one started in the wine-making business from corks to vats and including such things as hydrometer sets and siphon hoses.

"Most people start here. They come in interested in winemaking as a hobby and learn from us."

With an initial investment of $15 in equipment people can be turning out wine for 10 cents a bottle if they have their own fruit trees, according to Cowles. The process of making wine takes about four months from the time it is started to the time it is bottled.

WHILE HE contends it is economical to make wine, Cowles also thinks of it as more of an ego-trip than a money saver. People like the idea of serving their own wine, he said.

"Ninety-five per cent of all commercial wines fall in the category of ordinary or good. The home winemaker can consistently make wine in the good category and if he accepts the challenge, can make fine wine."

"If you're going to make good wine you have to have good ingredients," said Cowles. Concentrated grapes and blends in the store range from $4 for five gallons to $40 for cabernet sauvignon, a most expensive grape.

Most amateur enologists start with a fruit blend or concentrated grape from Spain but before long they start moving into the better and more expensive concentrates, he said.

A CORNER of the store has been labeled the "problem corner." It contains tablets and powders to take care of just about every problem one might have in making wine, like getting it cloudy or fermentation stopping too soon.

Legally winemaking is limited to the head of a household. The head of a household is allowed to make up to 200 gallons a year tax free for consumption by his immediate family.

See Dispute Developing Over Rezoning Of Land

A dispute is developing between Wheeling Village officials and the Prospect Heights Park District over the rezoning of property south of the VIP Apartments between Cornell Avenue and Waterman Lane.

The Wheeling Village Board tonight will consider a recommendation from the zoning board that the property be rezoned for a 300-unit condominium development to be built by Meister Neiberg Co., Inc.

The site is within the Wheeling village limits, and the Prospect Heights Park District. The park district must therefore make special arrangements with Wheeling before planning parks in the area.

RONALD GREENBERG, superintendent of the Prospect Heights Park District, claims the land was supposed to be set aside for park use on the official village map. He said the park district met with the Wheeling Park Commission last year and both parties agreed to set the land aside.

According to Trustee Michael Valenza, the village never agreed to set the land aside for park use. He said the park district had asked that the land be reserved for public use at a plan commission hearing to amend the official village map. Valenza added, however, that the sites proposed by the park district were not thought to be feasible park locations.

"They had ideas of their own," Valenza said. "And one of their ideas was to take 10 acres of a man's 22-acre site. The sites they asked for just didn't fit in with our planning."

Valenza said Wheeling had agreed to reserve property near the John Muir School for the park district. He said that since the meeting the village has been waiting for the park district to propose new sites.

Greenberg stated his objections to the condominium development in a letter received by the board last week. He also attended last week's board meeting to protest the rezoning because he had not been aware of zoning hearings being held for the property.

IN HIS LETTER, Greenberg said he had been told that action in reserving the park land had been delayed because Wheeling wanted an agreement allowing easements on the property.

"We feel that it is part of the obligation of all local governments to do whatever they can to preserve open space and recreational facilities for their residents, both present and future," Greenberg wrote. "Our district cannot understand what the delay has been in the assigning of designations of park lands on your official map."

Greenberg also said that recreational facilities proposed by the developers would not be adequate to serve the community.

"They cannot provide large open space for facilities such as ball fields, large playgrounds and football fields," he wrote.

Board May Extend Building Deadlines

The Wheeling Village Board tonight is expected to approve an ordinance extending the length of time a builder can have to begin construction before his property reverts to its original zoning.

Under the existing ordinance, developers have six months after a zoning certificate is issued to substantially begin construction. The new ordinance would extend this time limit to two years.

The six-month time limit was originally supposed to discourage people from buying land on speculation. Village Atty. Paul Hamer proposed extending the time limit because the six-month period was unreasonable.

According to Hamer, a builder could conceivably miss an entire building season and thus not be able to start construction within six months of rezoning his property.

AFTER HOLDING hearings on the proposed ordinance, the zoning board recommended that the ordinance require 25 per cent of the construction cost be completed in two years or the property would revert to its original zoning. They also recommended that builders be required to go through zoning procedures to regain the proper zoning for their property.

Trustee Michael Valenza objected to the 25 per cent limitation because he thought nothing would be accomplished by halting construction on buildings that were already started.

Valenza also asked the village attorney to make provision for builders to petition the village board for relief, instead of making them go through costly zoning procedures.

The ordinance will include Valenza's suggestions, and is expected to be passed without further modification.

The board will also consider changing the zoning of property at 2808 N. Cornell Ave. to allow for the expansion of the VIP Apartments.

Correction

A typographical error in a sentence in the Herald yesterday inadvertently changed the meaning of the story.

The sentence in the story about the drainage dispute in the Jackson Drive area should have read "The suit, however, was reopened earlier this year when Harold Haar, a Jackson Drive property owner, claimed that the drainage system had not alleviated the flooding."

The word "not" was mistakenly printed as "now."

Attends Wesleyan Summer Music Camp

Deborah Sue Brown, 201 N. Schoenbeck Rd., Prospect Heights, attended Illinois Wesleyan University's annual summer music camp, Lake Bloomington.

Students took part in two of three groups — band, orchestra, and chorus. They also participated in smaller ensembles, received private instruction, had a choice of recreational activities and heard recitals by members of the Wesleyan faculty.

'The Heat's On' Criminals, Too

It's no news to Buffalo Grove and Wheeling residents that "We're having a heat wave." But surprisingly, village officials report the weather has caused no major problems.

Police and firemen say they have had no increase in the amount of calls received during the unusually hot weather that has plagued the area.

According to Lt. Bob Krause of the Buffalo Grove Fire Department, no calls had been attributed to the weather up to Friday.

Commenting on the heat, a policeman said, "It's even too hot for crime."

THE WHEELING and Buffalo Grove Public Works Departments have not received any calls relating to problems caused by the excessive heat.

Buffalo Grove Public Works director Bill Davis said Friday the weather had not strained the village's water supply. However, he predicted the amount of water used by residents would triple over the weekend.

Dave Phillips, superintendent of the Wheeling Park District, was one of the few people happy with the 90-degree temperatures. Phillips said attendance at Wheeling's outdoor swimming pool was way up. He added that even though it was hot, at least it wasn't raining, so the softball tournament could be played on dry ground.

Park Board Cancels Meet

Business scheduled for Thursday night's Wheeling Park Board meeting was postponed because of a lack of a quorum.

The board will have a special session Thursday night to discuss the park district's financial situation.

GOP Looking For Candidate

by ROBERT LAHEY

MIAMI BEACH — Republicans are assembled in this sweltering city to select a candidate for President, and the only question appears to be what year they are talking about.

There is no conversation whatever among delegates concerning the candidate for 1972 — they already have him in the White House — but speculation is rampant about who will capture the party's nomination four years hence.

And the name most frequently mentioned, despite the conventional disclaimers by him and his staff, is that of Sen. Charles H. Percy of Illinois. Percy is at the center of the only real question expected to ruffle the surface of this otherwise serene gathering of the GOP. That question concerns how delegates are to be selected in 1976 and what representation will be allotted to the various states.

Percy called it yesterday "the only basic decision to be made by this convention."

The senior senator from Illinois is laboring mightily against strong conservative opposition to put across a plan which would increase the representation of the large urban states and to widen the spectrum of the delegates who will choose a successor to President Richard M. Nixon as the party's candidate.

Republicans here have refused to follow the lead of the Democrats who met here a month ago and opened all their meetings to the press and the public.

A caucus of the Illinois delegation yesterday morning was closed to reporters and lasted for approximately an hour and a half, with the only substantial business being a discussion of Percy's proposal on delegate selection. The extent of conservative opposition to Percy's plan was evident in the fact that his home state failed to endorse the plan, although the delegation also chose not to endorse the program put forth by conservative senators John Tower of Texas and Jack Kemp of New York.

The Tower-Kemp plan, which would favor the smaller, more conservative states of the West and South, has been adopted as the majority report of the party's rules committee. Percy neither won nor lost his plea to his own delegation for support of his reorganization plan. Instead, the delegates emerged with a compromise, appointing a 12-member committee with instructions to arrive at a position which Percy and state central committeewoman Hope McCormick could present to the rules committee. As this was written, that committee was meeting in Percy's room at the Playboy Plaza hotel, and Percy told reporters earlier that he had committed himself to the decision of the committee, which was to report to the rules committee late yesterday.

At the same press conference, Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie told reporters there was general agreement among the delegation that "Illinois is not now equitably represented in this convention."

WHEELING TOWNSHIP HIGHWAY Department Commissioner Larry Carrozza, the highway department is responsible for filling chuckholes, removing debris, snow removal and other maintenance along some 55 miles of township roads.

Request For Teacher Housing Called Fantastic

The response to a request for housing for 17 student teachers in Dist. 21 homes this fall has been "fantastic," according to Robert Gerry, administrative intern.

Gerry said he has had requests from 30 residents to house the student teachers, and all but two or three of the 17 students have been placed. "We could still use a few families in the Longfellow and Hawthorne school areas. This way all the student teachers will be within walking distance to the schools," he said.

Gerry added that any homes that were not filled this time may be used in the future. "Just because we have found housing for this group doesn't mean we are going to throw away any names. We are going to form a bank of names for future use."

"Therefore," he said, "if people would still like to give their names to us they should feel free to call me."

DIST. 21 entered into an agreement earlier this year with Northern Illinois University (NIU) for its student teaching program. Twenty-nine sophomores from NIU will begin their teaching careers by observing teaching techniques and classroom management at the Hawthorne and Longfellow schools. This will take place during nine-week periods throughout the school year.

The program also offers Dist. 21's staff members graduate level courses from NIU instructors who will be in the schools observing and evaluating the student teachers.

Residents who house the student teachers in the program will either be paid full room and board or only room costs during the students' stay. Gerry can be contacted for more information by calling 537-8270.

Some Residents Say Roads Too Good

by JOHN MAES

The roads are good in Prospect Heights — too good, say some residents. They fear the population growth in the area and the "overimproved roads" could lead to heavy traffic throughout the community.

An increase in the Prospect Heights population to more than 13,000 as of mid-1970 has brought a proportionate increase in traffic density to the area's approximately 13 miles of county and state thoroughfares.

A count taken by the Illinois Division of Highways showed that in a 24-hour period in 1971, 17,000 vehicles traversed the two-mile stretch of Ill. Rte. 83 between Rand and Palatine roads. A similar count in 1969 showed a total of 11,000.

Other 1969 counts revealed that 14,000 vehicles used Schoenbeck Road between Camp McDonald and Hintz roads and 15,000 used Palatine Road between Schoenbeck and Wheeling roads.

THE FEAR HAS been that added density causes more wear and tear on the roads which in turn puts them in need of more extensive repair. Subsequently, the rejuvenated road invites even more traffic and thus becomes overused.

"It's part of a continuing cycle which may eventually turn some of Prospect Heights' main roads into veritable speedways," said Jack Gilligan, president of the Prospect Heights Improvement Association (PHIA).

"The amount of traffic has increased phenomenally over the last five years," said Gilligan, an eight-year resident of Prospect Heights.

He called the two-lane, mile-long stretch of Rte. 83 between Palatine and Hintz Roads a "deathtrap" in that it is too heavily used for its size. "And necessary improvements will bring only more traffic there," he said.

Gilligan went on to note that improvements on Waterman Road, south of Palatine Road have turned that area into a "dragstrip for teenagers."

Gilligan however, was not critical of the township, state or county highway departments, saying they are efficient in needed repairs and snow removal.

But the problem, he said, stems partly from land developers and builders who "present unreasonable plans for development and completely disregard the traffic problems new housing complexes can cause."

THE ANSWER LIES, according to Gilligan, in fighting rezoning petitions.

"If this type of land development can be held in check," he said, "traffic problems and maybe over improvement of roads can be held down."

John Stull, a Dist. 23 official also feels Prospect Heights roads are well cared for and maintained.

Stull, a six-year resident of Prospect Heights, feels the Old Orchard Country Club housing development will create traffic problems at the intersection of Rte. 83 and Euclid Avenue.

"The number of cars going to and from Colony Country (The Old Orchard Complex), are going to put stress on that intersection."

The complex, consisting of 2,100 apartment, condominium and country home housing units, is expected to be ready for occupancy sometime next March.

The potential of "speedways in Prospect Heights is also seen by residents in the Wolf-Mandel subdivision.

"IT'S BEEN EASY to see the increase in traffic down Mandel Lane," said Abner Bauman of the Wolf-Mandel Homeowners' Association and a six-year resident of the subdivision.

"Our situation is that nearby housing developments are causing more cars to come off Willow Road and Camp McDonald to use Mandel Lane rather than Wolf Road."

Mandel Lane lies just east of Wolf between Willow and Camp McDonald Road. Hillcrest homeowners have also watched traffic increase on Hillcrest Drive in their subdivision.

"That's why we were pushing for improvements on Willow Road, to ease the tension on Hillcrest Drive," said Jack Maloney, of the Hillcrest Homeowners Association.

Township roads in Prospect Heights are not as heavily used as county and state roads however.

"Usually there's no more traffic on township roads than from the people who live in the area," said Larry Carrozza, Wheeling Township highway commissioner and caretaker of Prospect Heights township roads. "They're not main streets, so they're not used as much."

His crews keep up a routine for maintaining the 55 miles of township roads. Maintenance includes repairing chuckholes, sweeping, and snow removal in the winter. Also, roads are periodically seal coated, a road surfacing process involving tar and gravel.

This spring, 18 miles of township roads were resurfaced at a cost of about $30,000.

Of $249,000 levied for road care in the township for 1971-72, $11,000 was not spent. His leftover money has been channeled into a working cash fund for 1972-73 on which the township can draw until new tax revenues come in.

Eventually the amount of taxes that have to be collected in the future drops, said Marshall Theroux, Wheeling Township assessor.

"Prospect Heights probably has better cared for roads than any other unincorporated area in Cook County," said Stull, "but we probably also have more traffic, too."

Buffalo Grove Chamber On Way To Becoming Reality

The proposed Buffalo Grove Chamber of Commerce is well on its way to becoming a reality, according to Stan Lieberman, who suggested the creation of the organization at the first President's Roundtable last March.

Lieberman said he and several other local businessmen were interested in establishing the chamber to give business and professional people in the village a united voice in community affairs.

"We want to make sure the village grows in the right direction," Lieberman said. "We're trying to build our tax base now and we want to make sure we attract the type of business to Buffalo Grove the residents really want."

AN ORGANIZATIONAL meeting to discuss the formation of the Buffalo Grove chamber is set for Sept. 14. Lieberman said fliers have been mailed to several business and professional people who have expressed an interest in the chamber, but he added, "anyone interested in the future of the village" is welcome to attend.

Jerry McComb, executive vice president of the Elgin Chamber of Commerce, will be the speaker at the luncheon meeting. He will discuss the advantages of organizing a local business community. Dave Shoemaker, executive vice president of the Palatine Chamber of Commerce, will also attend.

"This will basically be an indoctrination meeting to acquaint everybody with the operations of a Chamber of Commerce," Lieberman said. He added he also expects to appoint a temporary chairman and committee heads.

"THE GROUP will meet on a monthly basis until a permanent chamber is organized — hopefully within the next six to eight months, Lieberman said. He expects the permanent chamber to affiliate with the national organization, the U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

"I'm sure we'll be able to use the expertise and know-how of chambers across the country who have encountered problems we may run across," Lieberman said.

Right now the state chamber is helping the Buffalo Grove group set up its organization. The Chicago office had provided the group with a model constitution and by-laws and arranged for McComb to speak at the Sept. 14 meeting.

Lieberman said he hopes the initial membership in the local chamber will number "at least 50 or 60."

Old Post And Carriageway

Dead - End Streets Urged

A group of Mill Creek residents tonight will present the village board with petitions asking trustees to close Old Post Road and Carriageway Drive at the proposed junction with Frenchmen's Cove.

Concerned about construction traffic through the area from the Frenchmen's Cove development, Mill Creek residents are asking the board to vacate the streets, in effect, making them deadends.

Fearing traffic problems, Mill Creek homeowners objected to the planned street pattern for Frenchmen's Cove last February. Although the development is in Arlington Heights, the only planned exits are onto Dundee Road and into Mill Creek.

At that time, homeowners agreed to the board's suggestion to postpone registering an official objection until the Arlington Heights Plan Commission approved the proposed street layouts.

According to a letter written to the Buffalo Grove Board by George Van Hoorbeke, president of the Mill Creek Homeowners Association, the street lay-outs will probably not be presented to the Arlington Heights Plan Commission until later this year.

Van Hoorbeke's letter reads in part:

"OLD POST ROAD is now being used by heavy construction trucks going into and out of Frenchmen's Cove, with some of the trucks exiting at the south end on Carriageway. Not only is this traffic potentially more dangerous than the proposed auto traffic, but it certainly does not help the basic street underlayment, which has not yet been brought up to finished grade and delivered to the village."

Van Hoorbeke said Ted Moeller, who lives at the end of Old Post Road, will speak in behalf of the homeowners tonight. Walsh assumed his duties last half dozen residents will also attend the meeting.

Harry Walsh, recently named Buffalo Grove police chief, will be sworn in tonight. Walsh assumed his duties last Tuesday.

In other business, the board is scheduled to:

—Appoint Burton Chotiner to the board of health.

—Award a contract for the purchase of a snow and ice removal vehicle by the public works department.

—Review a request for a donation from Kay's Animal Shelter.

—Consider an ordinance outlining specifications for Portland Cement driveway aprons.

Correction

A typographical error in a sentence in the Herald yesterday inadvertently changed the meaning of the story.

The sentence in the story about the drainage dispute in the Jackson Drive area should have read "The suit, however, was reopened earlier this year when Harold Haar, a Jackson Drive property owner, claimed that the drainage system had not alleviated the flooding."

The word "not" was mistakenly printed as "now."

'The Heat's On' Criminals, Too

It's no news to Buffalo Grove and Wheeling residents that "We're having a heat wave." But surprisingly, village officials report the weather has caused no major problems.

Police and firemen say they have had no increase in the amount of calls received during the unusually hot weather that has plagued the area.

According to Lt. Bob Krause of the Buffalo Grove Fire Department, no calls had been attributed to the weather up to Friday.

THE WHEELING and Buffalo Grove Public Works Departments have not received any calls relating to problems caused by the excessive heat.

Buffalo Grove Public Works director Bill Davis said Friday the weather had not strained the village's water supply. However, he predicted the amount of water used by residents would triple over the weekend.

Dave Phillips, superintendent of the Wheeling Park District, was one of the few people happy with the 90-degree temperatures. Phillips said attendance at Wheeling's outdoor swimming pool was way up. He added that even though it was hot, at least it wasn't raining, so the softball tournament could be played on dry ground.

GOP Looking For Candidate

by ROBERT LAHEY

MIAMI BEACH — Republicans are assembled in this sweltering city to select a candidate for President, and the only question appears to be what year they are talking about.

There is no conversation whatever among delegates concerning the candidate for 1972 — they already have him in the White House — but speculation is rampant about who will capture the party's nomination four years hence.

And the name most frequently mentioned, despite the conventional disclaimers by him and his staff, is that of Sen. Charles H. Percy of Illinois. Percy is at the center of the only real question expected to ruffle the surface of this otherwise serene gathering of the GOP. That question concerns how delegates are to be selected in 1976 and what representation will be allotted to the various states.

Percy called it yesterday "the only basic decision to be made by this convention."

The senior senator from Illinois is laboring mightily against strong conservative opposition to put across a plan which would increase the representation of the large urban states and to widen the spectrum of the delegates who will choose a successor to President Richard M. Nixon as the party's candidate.

Republicans here have refused to follow the lead of the Democrats who met here a month ago and opened all their meetings to the press and the public.

A caucus of the Illinois delegation yesterday morning was closed to reporters and lasted for approximately an hour and a half, with the only substantial business being a discussion of Percy's proposal on delegate selection. The extent of conservative opposition to Percy's plan was evident in the fact that his home state failed to endorse the plan, although the delegation also chose not to endorse the program put forth by conservative senators John Tower of Texas and Jack Kemp of New York.

The Tower-Kemp plan, which would favor the smaller, more conservative states of the West and South, has been adopted as the majority report of the party's rules committee. Percy neither won nor lost his plea to his own delegation for support of his reorganization plan. Instead, the delegates emerged with a compromise, appointing a 12-member committee with instructions to arrive at a position which Percy and state central committeewoman Hope McCormick could present to the rules committee. As this was written, that committee was meeting in Percy's room at the Playboy Plaza hotel, and Percy told reporters earlier that he had committed himself to the decision of the committee, which was to report to the rules committee late yesterday.

At the same press conference, Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie told reporters there was general agreement among the delegation that "Illinois is not now equitably represented in this convention."

The governor was reticent, however, about what objections had been raised to Percy's plan to enlarge representation for his state.

Percy and Ogilvie agreed that whatever proposal on delegate selection is approved by this convention, it will result in nearly doubling the number of delegates who convene in 1976.

There are 1,346 delegates in Miami Beach. Percy's proposal would result in 2,130 delegates while the Tower-Kemp proposal would mean a convention of

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Already musing who their 1976 candidate might be, Republicans worked off-camera Sunday in Miami Beach to patch up the party's sole remaining squabble before the start of a well-rehearsed, three-day television spectacular starring President Nixon. On the eve of the GOP National Convention, party chairman Robert J. Dole said "there is a compromise afoot" to resolve a liberal-conservative struggle over future delegate strength before it spills onto the convention floor — and a nationwide broadcast audience — a few hours before Nixon is renominated tomorrow night.

President Nixon weighed the still secret results of Henry A. Kissinger's around-the-world peace mission and polished the speech he will make to accept the Republican party's nomination for a second term. Nixon was working in the seclusion of Camp David, the presidential retreat in the Catoctin mountains of western Maryland.

As the next step in relaxing Soviet-American tensions, the administration hopes to welcome Russian warships to U.S. ports for the first time since World War II. Navy Secretary John W. Warner outlined the idea in an interview in Seapower, a monthly magazine published by the Navy League.

The State

James Aschenbach, 28, Blackburn, Va., was killed in an automobile accident near Elk Grove Village. Three other persons were injured in the accident, at Illinois 83 and Oakton Street. Also injured was Aschenbach's brother David, 25, Lake Zurich.

The World

A Protestant man was shot in the head Sunday in Belfast and beaten by a "psychopath" until his body was "just like jelly." He was the latest victim in a five-month string of Northern Ireland assassinations. The unidentified man died en route to a hospital. Belfast police said he was so severely beaten he succumbed before anyone discovered that he also had been shot in the head.

Bobby Fischer, holding an official protest in his breast pocket and complaining three times onstage during the game, finally offered a draw to titleholder Boris Spassky after 60 moves of a "crazy" 16th game in the world chess championship.

Radio Hanoi said that the trip to Saigon by presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger was a "cunning trick" to give the illusion that major changes were developing at the Paris peace talks. "It is obvious that the smoke screen spread by President Nixon at this moment is aimed at the presidential race," it said.

The War

Communist troops have overrun a district county capital and a South Vietnamese artillery base in the Que Son valley south of Da Nang, and may be jockeying into position for an artillery attack against South Vietnam's second largest city. Military sources said North Vietnamese soldiers captured Que Son city and artillery base Ross. Que Son is 25 miles southwest of Da Nang and Ross is three miles farther away.

'Condominiums Fine' But Not In North View

by MARCIA KRAMER
Residents of the North View subdivision in Palatine have nothing against condominiums.

In fact, they'll concede, if the buildings are low profile and high class they can be reasonably attractive.

But not next door.

Mention a good reason why condominiums should be built on the six lots at Northwest Highway and Benton Street, and a North View resident can come back with 6, 8, 10 reasons why they shouldn't.

Traffic sewage. Home value. Not to mention spot zoning, possibly flooding, the domino theory.

"We've lived here about a year," said Mrs. Robert L. Richards, 118 Chewink Ct., "and we would consider moving because of it."

IF THE CONDOMINIUM proposal is rejected, but replaced by the courts with commercial development of the property: "We would definitely move."

That attitude is shared in varying degrees by the other three families whose homes, like the Richards', directly face the undeveloped lots.

Said one neighbor, who has lived in North View for nearly three years: "We were assured when we bought this house that the neighborhood would stay (single family) residential. It was quite a shock to us when this all started a few months ago."

"I don't think we would even have bought here if we thought that would happen."

The 114 North View homes are valued at upwards of $40,000.

The homeowners haven't gotten professional appraisals of what their property would be worth if a condominium or shopping center went up on the outer fringe of the subdivision, but they're convinced the home value would most likely go down.

"I don't see how it could go up," says Wilma Plazak, whose home at 142 Chewink is directly across the street from the undeveloped property.

SOME OF THE homeowners, particularly those closest to the six lots, are attempting to gather some $60,000 to buy the lots and turn them over to a local contractor for development of single family homes.

They haven't checked whether the owner of the property, Edward T. Burley, would agree to sell.

Another possibility some of the homeowners raised was using the property for construction of the new Palatine Public Library.

The idea arose as some 30 North View residents heard of the library board's difficulty in finding a suitable site while awaiting their turn on the village board agenda last week.

The Burley property is about half the price the library board was willing to pay for land, and the homeowners says, is somewhat centrally located.

Besides, they argue, though a library would cause an increase in the traffic load of the neighborhood, it would not decrease the value of their homes.

Nearby residents are especially concerned that a commercial development, which would front on Northwest Highway, would have its deliveries and garbage on the Chewink side of the property.

Other reasons they oppose commercial,

North View Subdivision: Village Loses Either Way

Palatine village trustees can't win, and at the same time, can't lose in making a decision on the six undeveloped lots in the North View subdivision.

No matter what they decide the zoning of the property should be, the issue is destined to wind up in court.

Both sides in the rezoning dispute have vowed to file suit if the trustees' decision goes against them.

The trustees are expected to consider the matter at their meeting next Monday.

The property, on the northeast corner of Northwest Highway and Benton Street, is zoned R-2, single-family residential district.

THAT'S HOW the area residents want it to stay.

But the owner of the property, Edward T. Burley, wants a change in zoning to R-3, multi-family residential district.

And if he doesn't get that from the village board, he says, he'll take the village to court and ask for commercial zoning — what he wanted in the first place.

The original request was turned down by the village board last fall. Another request, for 24 units of condominiums, also was rejected.

The North View homeowners want nothing more than single-family homes on the Burley property, and they say they'll take the village to court to restore the zoning if the village grants Burley's multi-family request.

BURLEY HAS indicated that development of single-family homes on the site would be economically unfeasible.

Because of the number of signatures on petitions submitted by North View residents opposing a zoning change five of the seven village trustees most vote for the rezoning for it to be approved.

Two trustees are known to be against the rezoning request, and observers consider it unlikely that Burley can muster the support of the remaining five.

The North View residents reject the possibility that the trustees would be "doing us a favor" by approving the request for multi-family zoning.

SOME OF THE trustees have indicated their belief that if they reject the request and Burley files suit, the court would rule in Burley's favor, thus earmarking the property for commercial development.

The residents, however, feel strongly enough that they would prefer to risk that possibility in an effort to retain single-family zoning.

"If you feel a certain way about a thing, you should stick with it and not give in," said one resident. "It's such a little piece of property," she added, "but it means so much to the people who live here."

Better Keep Signs In Your Own Yard

Signs don't last long in Palatine unless they're in your own front yard, as the Warner Stoekels discovered last week.

The clash between the Stoekels, at 36 S. Hickory St., and the Palatine building inspectors came after Stoekel posted a sign on the corner down the block from his home advertising his garage sale.

The tug-of-war began when the inspector pulled down the sign and took it to village hall. Mrs. Stoekel said when she went to reclaim the sign, it was broken in half, which angered her so much she put the sign up again.

Then Friday morning, the inspector took it down the second time.

ACCORDING TO a village ordinance, such signs are only permitted on the advertiser's private property. Public right of ways and other people's private property, even with their permission, are out of bounds for over-eager sellers.

Warren Stoekel's complaints with the village department are two-fold. First, he claims the village did not let him know about the violation the first time they removed the sign. And second, he feels the inspectors were inconsistent in their sign removal.

At a garage sale in June, Stoekel said he had a sign professionally painted. When it disappeared from the corner, he thought someone had stolen it to use for their own sale.

"I never would have done it again if I'd known the signs were illegal the first time," Mrs. Stoekel said.

A village employee who would identify himself only as Warren said the five village inspectors had orders to remove all such signs and put them behind the village hall. But they don't break or destroy them, he said.

The rationale for the sign ban is that the signs create a traffic hazard as people slow down to read them, Warren said.

Violation of the ordinance could bring a minimum fine of $25 to a maximum of $500 a day if the matter gets to court.

Garage sales don't seem to be very popular in the village building department. Warren said that if more than one family goes together in a sale, it would constitute a business, which not only requires a license, but is also illegal in a residential district.

A Protestant man was shot in the head Sunday in Belfast and beaten by a "psychopath" until his body was "just like jelly." He was the latest victim in a five-month string of Northern Ireland assassinations. The unidentified man died en route to a hospital. Belfast police said he was so severely beaten he succumbed before anyone discovered that he also had been shot in the head.

Bobby Fischer, holding an official protest in his breast pocket and complaining three times onstage during the game, finally offered a draw to titleholder Boris Spassky after 60 moves of a "crazy" 16th game in the world chess championship.

"It is obvious that the smoke screen spread by President Nixon at this moment is aimed at the presidential race," it said.

The War

Communist troops have overrun a district county capital and a South Vietnamese artillery base in the Que Son valley south of Da Nang, and may be jockeying into position for an artillery attack against South Vietnam's second largest city. Military sources said North Vietnamese soldiers captured Que Son city and artillery base Ross. Que Son is 35 miles southwest of Da Nang and Ross is three miles farther away.

NORTH VIEW kids used to play ball on the Burley property (foreground), but it's been overrun this year with weeds and wild flowers. The residents would just as soon it stayed that way, rather than be developed as the property owner prefers. The 13-story Selligren building looms ominously in the background, a reminder of when the village board at first turned down, then, following considerable negotiating, agreed to annex the controversial project. Many North View residents remain bitter over that decision, and vow to fight the village on any attempt to allow multi-family dwellings on the south side of their subdivision.

Track Park Programs To Be Expanded

by KEN KOZAK

It's a strange place to find a park. You have to look hard to find it at all, tucked in among red, yellow and blue barns, a lot full of long, shiny house trailers and a place called "SMITH'S Kitchen."

It's the backstretch at Arlington Park Race Track, and it rings more often with the sounds of horsemen playing their trade than with kids playing games.

But Salt Creek Rural Park District is trying to bring what amounts to a complete park program to the kids in the track backstretch.

ALL THEY HAVE there now is a small green recreation building that the track has donated for their use. And the kids.

The kids come from the families who live in the backstretch trailer lot from May through August and then move out on the different southern racing circuits.

Park district director Jim DeVos feels it's time some kind of programs were offered to the families who live at the track, which is within the Salt Creek District's boundaries.

With the track's cooperation, the park district brought recreation programs, arts and crafts and softball to the kids at the track about six weeks ago. DeVos said about 30 kids participate in the programs, which will be expanded next year.

"Next year whatever we do in the other parks we are going to be doing here," DeVos said.

The programs are offered free of charge to the kids from the track, who are also included in outings and field trips that the district sponsors for its residents.

The track and park district share a peculiar relationship. Since it is within the district's boundaries, the track pays about $20,000 in taxes annually to the district. It also provides use of the Arlington Park Towers hotel swimming pool and golf course for park programs.

BUT THE TRACK benefits too, both from good publicity that grows from its community involvement, and from the fact that Salt Creek has one of the lowest park tax rates in the area.

The important part about the relationship, however, according to DeVos, is that it is finally beginning to benefit the families in the backstretch with the program that will end in two weeks when the track closes for the season, but will resume next May.

"We're very happy to be offering them some good things to do in the summer," DeVos said.

Runs Out Of Gas And Into Trouble

Rodney Hunter ran out of gas and into trouble Saturday when Palatine police discovered firearms in a stolen car he was driving.

Palatine Patrolman Michael McDonald noticed the auto Saturday afternoon while it was parked on the outside lane of eastbound Rte. 14 near Rt. 53. A stolen auto check through Washington, D.C., revealed that the 1970 vehicle was taken May 30 from Gary, Ind.

When Hunter, 36, returned to the car, McDonald arrested him for possession of a stolen vehicle.

An inventory of the auto revealed a .25

LIFE IN ARLINGTON PARK'S backstretch area often is void of the recreational opportunities many suburban residents take for granted. The Salt

Creek Park District, however, is attempting to bring park programs to the backstretch and plans even more elaborate summer activities during next summer's racing season.

—Traffic: It's already a "nightmare." Some residents are known to turn west onto Northwest Highway from Benton and Eagle streets, then head back east to get to the Palatine Plaza, rather than cross traffic on the highway.

—Sewage: That too, is "bad enough already," residents report. "If everybody

Rolling Meadows Health Fair Seeking Volunteers

Volunteers are being sought to work at the Rolling Meadows Health Fair, Sept. 13, 14 and 15.

City Sanitarian Donald Schindler said he is looking for 50 adults to work up to three hours each assisting representatives of 27 area health agencies and the coordinators of the fair.

The workers will assist visitors to the fair in filling out testing forms and registration cards and will take surveys. They will also distribute literature, and some will help set up and break down displays. Volunteers will also man a fair information booth.

The health fair will bring together representatives from 27 health agencies from throughout the Chicago and suburban area. Mobile units and displays will provide information on various health and environmental problems.

Persons interested in working at the fair are asked to call 394-8500, ext. 21, before noon Monday.

There will be an organizational workshop for all volunteer fair workers at 1:30 p.m. Monday in the city council chambers at city hall.

Charge Ex-Palatine Man Robbed Bank

Former Palatine resident Ernest L. Kelly was arrested by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents Saturday on charges of bank robbery.

Kelly was seen fleeing from Argo Savings and Loan Association in Argo, Ill., after a recent robbery when two other men were arrested at the scene. The men had burglary tools and firearms in their possession at the time of their arrest, the FBI reported.

Palatine police were called to assist in tracing Kelly, who was eventually located at a trailer park in Park Ridge.

He's A Volunteer

Timothy I. Miller of Inverness has been serving as volunteer coordinator of the student Volunteer Service Center at Pennsylvania State University, where he will be a senior.

Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Miller Jr., 1826 W. Thos. Atkinson Rd., is majoring in elementary and kindergarten education.

Fire Protection District Under City Control OKd

Rolling Meadows residents voted overwhelmingly Saturday to allow the city to take control of the fire protection district.

There were two questions on the referendum ballot and both passed by about a 10 to 1 margin.

The first proposition asked residents whether they favored city control of local fire protection. The question passed with 623 residents voting in favor and 73 voters against. The second proposition asked for an annual city council tax levy of .40 per cent — the same rate being levied by the fire protection district — and voters responded with 651 affirmative and 60 against.

Mayor Roland Meyer said Saturday night the turnout represented some 10 per cent of all registered voters and indicated he was pleased with the apparent strong support.

THE RESULTS NOW will be taken to the Cook County Circuit Court for final approval. Meyer said he expects city council to have control of the fire protection district by January 1.

"We still have some things to iron out," Meyer said before the merger of the two taxing bodies takes place. "The trustees (the three fire protection district officials) will work with us for six or seven months" in an advisory capacity, he added.

Both aldermen and fire district trustees look upon the merger of the two groups as a solution to financial problems encountered by the fire district for the past several years. The district is at the limit of its taxing power and fire department costs continue to rise.

The two groups agreed that city control of fire protection would provide a more sound financial base and allow more complete fire protection.

The city, as part of the agreement which was worked out over the past few months, will hire three full-time firemen immediately and three more when the courts approve the merger.

THE FIRE DISTRICT admitted to financial problems recently. In 1971, for only the second time in the history of the district, it was forced to borrow $32,000 in tax anticipation warrants because of late returning real estate tax returns.

Fire district trustees began considering a merger at that time. However, preliminary talks by the two groups have been going on for several years.

The Rolling Meadows Fire Protection District was formed in 1958 as a volunteer fire department. Originally there were 39 volunteers.

As the city expanded in residences and industries, the department became staffed with full-time firefighters and now has 12 firemen and 26 volunteers.

The district was formed by referendum in 1958.

AS THE CITY continues to grow, especially in the south industrial park where several high-rise buildings are planned, a new fire department substation will be needed, officials predict, as well as additional manpower and equipment.

Trustees and aldermen acknowledge the city council is in better financial condition to provide the bolstered fire protection. The city plans to expand the fire department with funds for the sales tax surplus and not to exceed the .40 tax levy.

Ol' Art Of Winemaking Comes Back

by JOANN VAN WYE

Just scanning the shelves is enough to give one's salivary glands a real work out.

Try imagining rhubarb wine. Or perhaps you'd prefer marionberry or gooseberry wine.

Starting with African fruit passion and ending with zinfandel, dozens of different blends and different kinds of concentrated grapes line the shelves of the Wine-Art store in the Rolling Meadows Shopping Center.

The concentrated grapes are from as far away as Africa and Italy or as close as California.

Cherry and apple are the favorites of the amateur enologists who wander into the shop, according to Don Cowles, owner.

"THE FRUIT IS interesting in that it's different but wine in the truest sense is made only with grapes," he said.

Cowles opened his shop in June to capitalize on the rebirth of the ancient art of winemaking.

He says the store stocks everything necessary to get one started in the wine-making business from corks to vats and including such things as hydrometer sets and syphon hoses.

"Most people start here. They come in interested in winemaking as a hobby and learn from us."

With an initial investment of $15 in equipment people can be turning out wine for 10 cents a bottle if they have their own fruit trees, according to Cowles. The process of making wine takes about four months from the time it is started to the time it is bottled.

WHILE HE contends it is economical to make wine, Cowles also thinks of it as more of an ego trip than a money saver. People like the idea of serving their own wine, he said.

"Ninety-five per cent of all commercial wines fall in the category of ordinary or good. The home winemaker can consistently make wine in the good category and if he accepts the challenge, can make fine wine."

"If you're going to make good wine you have to have good ingredients," said Cowles. Concentrated grapes and blends in the store range from $4 for five gallons to $48 for cabernet sauvignon, a most expensive grape.

Most amateur enologists start with a fruit blend or concentrated grape from Spain but before long they start moving into the better and more expensive concentrates, he said.

A CORNER OF the store has been labeled the "problem corner." It contains tablets and powders to take care of just about every problem one might have in making wine, like getting it cloudy or fermentation stopping too soon.

Legally winemaking is limited to the head of a household. The head of a household is allowed to make up to 200 gallons a year tax free for consumption by his immediate family.

GOP Looking For Candidate

by ROBERT LAHEY

MIAMI BEACH — Republicans are assembled in this sweltering city to select a candidate for President, and the only question appears to be what year they are talking about.

There is no conversation whatever among delegates concerning the candidate for 1972 — they already have him in the White House — but speculation is rampant about who will capture the party's nomination four years hence.

And the name most frequently mentioned, despite the conventional disclaimers by him and his staff, is that of Sen. Charles H. Percy of Illinois. Percy is at the center of the only real question expected to ruffle the surface of this otherwise serene gathering of the GOP. That question concerns how delegates are to be selected in 1976 and what representation will be allotted to the various states.

Percy called it yesterday "the only basic decision to be made by this convention."

The senior senator from Illinois is laboring mightily against strong conservative opposition to put across a plan which would increase the representation of the large urban states and to widen the spectrum of the delegates who will choose a successor to President Richard M. Nixon as the party's candidate.

Republicans here have refused to follow the lead of the Democrats who met here a month ago and opened all their meetings to the press and the public.

A caucus of the Illinois delegation yesterday morning was closed to reporters and lasted for approximately an hour and a half, with the only substantial business being a discussion of Percy's proposal on delegate selection. The extent of conservative opposition to Percy's plan was evident in the fact that his home state failed to endorse the plan, although the delegation also chose not to endorse the program put forth by conservative senators John Tower of Texas and Jack Kemp of New York.

The Tower-Kemp plan, which would favor the smaller, more conservative states of the West and South, has been adopted as the majority report of the party's rules committee. Percy neither won nor lost his plea to his own delegation for support of his reorganization plan. Instead, the delegates emerged with a compromise, appointing a 12-member committee with instructions to arrive at a position which Percy and state central committeewoman Hope McCormick could present to the rules committee. As this was written, that committee was meeting in Percy's room at the Playboy Plaza hotel, and Percy told reporters earlier that he had committed himself to the decision of the committee, which was to report to the rules committee late yesterday.

At the same press conference, Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie told reporters there was general agreement among the delegation that "Illinois is not now equitably represented in this convention."

The governor was reticent, however, about what objections had been raised to Percy's plan to enlarge representation for his state.

Percy and Ogilvie agreed that whatever proposal on delegate selection is approved by this convention, it will result in nearly doubling the number of delegates who convene in 1976.

There are 1,346 delegates in Miami Beach. Percy's proposal would result in 2,130 delegates while the Tower-Kemp proposal would mean a convention of (Continued on Page 5)

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Already musing who their 1976 candidate might be, Republicans worked off-camera Sunday in Miami Beach to patch up the party's sole remaining squabble before the start of a well-rehearsed, three-day television spectacular starring President Nixon. On the eve of the GOP National Convention, party chairman Robert J. Dole said "there is a compromise afoot" to resolve a liberal-conservative struggle over future delegate strength before it spills onto the convention floor — and a nationwide broadcast audience — a few hours before Nixon is renominated tomorrow night.

President Nixon weighed the still secret results of Henry A. Kissinger's around-the-world peace mission and polished the speech he will make to accept the Republican party's nomination for a second term. Nixon was working in the seclusion of Camp David, the presidential retreat in the Catoctin mountains of western Maryland.

As the next step in relaxing Soviet-American tensions, the administration hopes to welcome Russian warships to U.S. ports for the first time since World War II. Navy Secretary John W. Warner outlined the idea in an interview in Seapower, a monthly magazine published by the Navy League.

The State

James Aschenbach, 28, Blacksburg, Va., was killed in an automobile accident near Elk Grove Village. Three other persons were injured in the accident, at Illinois 63 and Oakton Street. Also injured was Aschenbach's brother David, 26, Lake Zurich.

Village, Police To Meet On Salaries, Benefits

The Mount Prospect Village Board will meet informally with police patrolmen twice this week in an effort to learn what complaints the men have and what changes they might like to see, especially concerning salary and fringe benefits.

Village board members are currently in the midst of studying the municipality's labor relations with its employees. The study comes out of efforts by some patrolmen to be represented by an outside bargaining agent in future salary talks and from the efforts by other policemen to get longevity pay increases.

About 21 patrolmen (out of a force of 44 men) last May formed a local chapter of the Combined Counties Police Association and elected Patrolman Warren A. Fischer president. The group is now seeking recognition from the village board as the policemen's bargaining agent.

THE LONGEVITY raises being sought would be 2 per cent of salary at the end of the 5th, 10th, 15th and 25th year of service.

Village Board members have indicated they feel longevity pay is a good concept. However, they have taken no action with regard to the union movement.

The two meetings will be held between 7:30 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. tomorrow and between 2 p.m. and 4 p.m. Saturday.

Fischer, who had not yet seen the letter Friday, said he did not consider the meetings a threat to his group.

"Any way they would be interested in the problems of the police department would be a help," he said. "Our biggest problem is lack of communication."

As for his group being recognized by the village board, Fischer said, "We would like to be recognized as soon as possible, of course."

He said that letters from the CCPA have been sent to the village but he was unsure as to how close the local chapter is to being recognized. He added that he felt the village "has been dragging their feet" however.

Scouts To Hold Recycling Drive

Mount Prospect Boy Scout Troop 153 will hold a newspaper recycling drive Aug. 26. Papers will be picked up at the curb in the area between Gregory School and Weller Creek and Rte. 53 and Mount Prospect Road. Those not on this route are asked to deliver their papers to Gregory School, 400 E. Gregory, between 9 a.m. and 7 p.m.

Other paper drives will be held on Sept. 23, Oct. 28, Nov. 18 and Dec. 16. For more information, call Chris Booth at 392-8528.

$3 Million School Budget Hearing Slated Tonight

A public hearing on the 1972-73 budget for Mount Prospect School Dist. 57 will be held tonight during the meeting of the Dist. 57 School Board.

A tentative budget of $3,960,610 was approved by the board in June. Tonight board members will discuss any changes they plan to make as well as listen to any questions from the public. According to J. C. Busenhardt, Assistant superintendent, the only change the board plans to make is an increase of $7,000 in the building fund to provide for learning resource centers in four of the district schools. Outside of this change, it is expected the budget will be approved as stated in the tentative outline, Busenhardt said.

ALSO ON THE agenda for tonight's meeting is the adoption of the school tax levy and approval of a resolution for two National Defense Education Act (NDEA) claims, one for a mathematics program, the other for a social studies program.

There is a possibility that approval of a supplemental band program, sponsored by parents, for fifth and sixth graders may be placed on tonight's agenda. The group, called the Mount Prospect Music Boosters, and headed by David Metzler, former Dist. 57 band instructor, needs approval to use school facilities for their program.

"To my knowledge, the board is supposed to be acting on the plan Monday," Metzler said. But according to Busenhardt, as of Friday afternoon, the program was still not on the agenda.

All American City Award Sought Here

Mount Prospect will make a bid for one of this year's All America City awards.

The national awards are sponsored by the National Municipal League. In the past, "Look" Magazine has cosponsored the awards, but with that magazine's demise the revitalized "Saturday Evening Post" will act as cosponsor.

A nine-man committee, representing a broad spectrum of municipal service groups, has been appointed by Mayor Robert D. Teichert. Teichert picked Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley to head the committee. Eppley was city manager for Wheaton when it won the award in 1967.

The committee has been meeting in secret for about three weeks, preparing the village's application which, along with hundreds of others nationwide, will be submitted by Sept. 8.

Committee members are Jackie Kruse of the Community Action Plan (CAP) ICE House; Ernie Spears of the CAP Pump House; Jerry Schutt, Lions Club president; Paul Dasso, Rotary Club president; Ray Johnson, Chamber of Commerce president; John D. Weber, past Historical Society president; Tom Leo, graphic arts; and Bruce Goat, Jaycees president.

"I consider that a very good spectrum of service activity in the town," Eppley said Friday. "This contest is based upon citizens' programs and progress which fill a need. I think Mount Prospect has an extremely worthy story to tell."

Each entrant can submit up to three projects for the contest jury's consideration, Eppley said. Mount Prospect, he added, has chosen to concentrate on only two projects. He would not say what they were.

Should Mount Prospect be chosen one of the 22 finalists sometime late in October, Eppley said the village would then have to make a 10-minute presentation in November at a National Municipal League conference.

School Board To Meet In Various Areas

In an effort to foster greater communication between the schools and the community, the River Trails School Dist. 26 Board has agreed to schedule one of its two school board meetings each month in a different school in the district.

By going out into the various schools each month the board hopes to gain a greater understanding of each of the schools while at the same time encouraging residents to see what actually happens at a school board meeting.

Board members will continue to meet at the school administration offices, 1900 E. Kensington Road, the first Tuesday of each month. They will travel out to the different schools in the district on the third Tuesday of each month.

The schedule for meetings to be held in the district schools is as follows: Sept. 19, Euclid School, 1211 Wheeling Rd.; Oct. 19, Bond School, 350 Wolf Rd.; Nov. 21, Indian Grove School, 1348 N. Burning Bush Ln.; and Dec. 19, Fosherville School, 1400 E. Foundry Rd.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Already musing who their 1976 candidate might be, Republicans worked off-camera Sunday in Miami Beach to patch up the party's sole remaining squabble before the start of a well-rehearsed, three-day television spectacular starring President Nixon. On the eve of the GOP National Convention, party chairman Robert J. Dole said "there is a compromise afoot" to resolve a liberal-conservative struggle over future delegate strength before it spills onto the convention floor — and a nationwide broadcast audience — a few hours before Nixon is renominated tomorrow night.

President Nixon weighed the still secret results of Henry A. Kissinger's around-the-world peace mission and polished the speech he will make to accept the Republican party's nomination for a second term. Nixon was working in the seclusion of Camp David, the presidential retreat in the Catoctin mountains of western Maryland.

As the next step in relaxing Soviet-American tensions, the administration hopes to welcome Russian warships to U.S. ports for the first time since World War II. Navy Secretary John W. Warner outlined the idea in an interview in Seapower, a monthly magazine published by the Navy League.

The State

James Aschenbach, 26, Blackburn, Va., was killed in an automobile accident near Elk Grove Village. Three other persons were injured in the accident, at Illinois 83 and Oakton Street. Also injured was Aschenbach's brother David, 25, Lake Zurich.

The World

A Protestant man was shot in the head Sunday in Belfast and beaten by a "psychopath" until his body was "just like jelly." He was the latest victim in a five-month string of Northern Ireland assassinations. The unidentified man died en route to a hospital. Belfast police said he was so severely beaten he succumbed before anyone discovered that he also had been shot in the head.

Bobby Fischer, holding an official protest in his breast pocket and complaining three times onstage during the game, finally offered a draw to titleholder Boris Spassky after 60 moves of a "crazy" 16th game in the world chess championship.

Radio Hanoi said that the trip to Saigon by presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger was a "cunning trick" to give the illusion that major changes were developing at the Paris peace talks. "It is obvious that the smoke screen spread by President Nixon at this moment is aimed at the presidential race," it said.

The War

Communist troops have overrun a district county capital and a South Vietnamese artillery base in the Que Son valley south of Da Nang, and may be jockeying into position for an artillery attack against South Vietnam's second largest city. Military sources said North Vietnamese soldiers captured Que Son city and artillery base Ross. Que Son is 25 miles southwest of Da Nang and Ross is three miles farther away.

Request For Teacher Housing Called Fantastic

The response to a request for housing for 17 student teachers in Dist. 21 homes this fall has been "fantastic," according to Robert Gerry, administrative intern.

Gerry said he has had requests from 30 residents to house the student teachers, and all but two or three of the 17 students have been placed. "We could still use a few families in the Longfellow and Hawthorne school areas. This way all the student teachers will be within walking distance to the schools," he said.

Gerry added that any homes that were not filled this time may be used in the future. "Just because we have found housing for this group doesn't mean we are going to throw away any names. We are going to form a bank of names for future use."

"Therefore," he said, "if people would still like to give their names to us they should feel free to call me."

DIST. 21 entered into an agreement earlier this year with Northern Illinois University (NIU) for its student teaching program. Twenty-nine sophomores from NIU will begin their teaching careers by observing teaching techniques and classroom management at the Hawthorne and Longfellow schools. This will take place during nine-week periods throughout the school year.

The program also offers Dist. 21's staff members graduate level courses from NIU instructors who will be in the schools observing and evaluating the student teachers.

Residents who house the student teachers in the program will either be paid full room and board or only room costs during the students' stay. Gerry can be contacted for more information by calling 537-8270.

Track Park Programs To Be Expanded

by KEN KOZAK

It's a strange place to find a park. You have to look hard to find it at all, tucked in among red, yellow and blue barns, a lot full of long, shiny house trailers and a place called "SMITH'S Kitchen."

It's the backstretch at Arlington Park Race Track, and it rings more often with the sounds of horsemen playing their trade than with kids playing games.

But Salt Creek Rural Park District is trying to bring what amounts to a complete park program to the kids in the track backstretch.

ALL THEY HAVE there now is a small green recreation building that the track has donated for their use. And the kids.

The kids come from the families who live in the backstretch trailer lot from May through August and then move out on the different southern racing circuits.

Park district director Jim DeVos feels it's time some kind of programs were offered to the families who live at the track, which is within the Salt Creek District's boundaries.

With the track's cooperation, the park district brought recreation programs, arts and crafts and softball to the kids at the track about six weeks ago. DeVos said about 30 kids participate in the programs, which will be expanded next year.

"Next year whatever we do in the other parks we are going to be doing here," DeVos said.

The programs are offered free of charge to the kids from the track, who are also included in outings and field trips that the district sponsors for its residents.

The track and park district share a peculiar relationship. Since it is within the district's boundaries, the track pays about $20,000 in taxes annually to the district. It also provides use of the Arlington Park Towers hotel swimming pool and golf course for park programs.

BUT THE TRACK benefits too, both from good publicity that grows from its community involvement, and from the fact that Salt Creek has one of the lowest park tax rates in the area.

The important part about the relationship, however, according to DeVos, is that it is finally beginning to benefit the families in the backstretch with the program that will end in two weeks when the track closes for the season, but will resume next May.

"We're very happy to be offering them some good things to do in the summer," DeVos said.

Expect This Year's Tax Rate To Drop 2.76 Cents

The tax rate for the Village of Arlington Heights is expected to drop 2.76 cents per $100 assessed valuation next year because of an increase, over original estimates, in the village's total assessed valuation.

The village board tonight will be asked to approve a tax levy ordinance for fiscal 1972-73 that carries an estimated village tax rate of 67.24 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

The village tax rate this year was 70 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

Arlington Heights Finance Dir. Kenneth Bonder said the drop in next year's estimated tax rate was due to revised estimates of the total assessed valuation of all real property in the village.

Earlier estimates were for a total assessed valuation of $270 million. That figure has been increased to $300 million based, in part, on the 1972 quadrennial reassessment of real estate in Wheeling and Elk Grove townships, Bonder said.

THE LOWER RATE estimate does not, however, mean that residents will be guaranteed lower tax bills when they are mailed out next May.

For one thing, the Village of Arlington Heights is just one of many taxing bodies that contribute to the total real estate tax rate.

Secondly, expected increases in property assessed valuations after the quadrennial reassessment this year may offset tax rate deductions.

The increases in assessed valuation largely will result from a new system of assessing land based on a percentage of the fair market value of the property rather than the cost of reproducing a given building.

The new assessment practice is also expected to raise the assessment on vacant land by taking into account the fair market value of such property.

Notices of reassessment began arriving in Palatine Township last week and are expected to be mailed to property owners in Wheeling Township in about two weeks.

Dundee Road Restaurant

Yankee Doodle On Agenda

A Yankee Doodle restaurant proposed for the south side of Dundee Road opposite the future location of the Buffalo

Grove High School and several plats of subdivision will be considered by the village board at its regular meeting set for

The request for rezoning for the Yankee Doodle restaurant was denied by the plan commission July 26. The restaurant is being proposed for the south side of Dundee Road approximately 450 feet west of Arlington Heights Road.

Also on the agenda is approval of an 86-lot single-family subdivision known as Berkley Ridge and owned by the 3-H Building Corp. The subdivision is located on 27 acres of land bounded by Rte. 53 on the west, the Commonwealth Edison Co. right-of-way on the north and Greenbrier subdivision on the south.

A second subdivision request involves 2 lots on the south side of Dundee Road approximately 300 feet east of the proposed relocated Arlington Heights Road.

LANCER INDUSTRIES, Inc. is seeking rezoning of the two lots for future development of an office building.

The trustees are also scheduled to hear a spokesman from the environmental quality committee of the League of Women Voters which is asking the village board to adopt a resolution in support of the Illinois Environmental Protection Act.

Two bids for the purchase of paramedic equipment for installation in Arlington Heights' two ambulances also will be reviewed tonight.

Theater Unit Seeks Volunteers For Survey

Friends and patrons of Arlington Heights Village Theatre are needed to help with a telephone survey that will help determine whether a $350,000 theater building will be included in an upcoming $2.4 million park district referendum.

Persons interested in helping with the survey are asked to call Mrs. Robert Zeller at CL 5-2669.

Mrs. Zeller said each surveyor will be asked to call between 10 and 20 residents and ask them three questions regarding their feelings on the proposed building.

Drinking Fountains To Bubble In Parks In '73

Parched kids will be glad to know that drinking fountains will be installed at neighborhood parks during the coming year. Picnic tables, now a scarce item in the parks, also will surge in numbers.

"They're expensive, and we haven't had the money to install drinking fountains in the past," said Angelo Capulli, superintendent of parks for the Arlington Heights Park District. Fountains will

GOP Looking For Candidate

by ROBERT LAHEY

MIAMI BEACH — Republicans are assembled in this sweltering city to select a candidate for President, and the only question appears to be what year they are talking about.

There is no conversation whatever among delegates concerning the candidate for 1972 — they already have him in the White House — but speculation is rampant about who will capture the party's nomination four years hence.

And the name most frequently mentioned, despite the conventional disclaimers by him and his staff, is that of Sen. Charles H. Percy of Illinois. Percy is at the center of the only real question expected to ruffle the surface of this otherwise serene gathering of the GOP. That question concerns how delegates are to be selected in 1976 and what representation will be allotted to the various states.

Percy called it yesterday "the only basic decision to be made by this convention."

The senior senator from Illinois is laboring mightily against strong conservative opposition to put across a plan which would increase the representation of the large urban states and to widen the spectrum of the delegates who will choose a successor to President Richard M. Nixon as the party's candidate.

Republicans here have refused to follow the lead of the Democrats who met here a month ago and opened all their meetings to the press and the public.

A caucus of the Illinois delegation yesterday morning was closed to reporters and lasted for approximately an hour and a half, with the only substantial business being a discussion of Percy's proposal on delegate selection. The extent of conservative opposition to Percy's plan was evident in the fact that his home state failed to endorse the plan, although the delegation also chose not to endorse the program put forth by conservative senators John Tower of Texas and Jack Kemp of New York.

The Tower-Kemp plan, which would favor the smaller, more conservative states of the West and South, has been adopted as the majority report of the party's rules committee. Percy neither won nor lost his plea to his own delegation for support of his reorganization plan. Instead, the delegates emerged with a compromise, appointing a 12-member committee with instructions to arrive at a position which Percy and state central committeewoman Hope McCormick could present to the rules committee. As this was written, that committee was meeting in Percy's room at the Playboy Plaza hotel, and Percy told reporters earlier that he had committed himself to the decision of the committee, which was to report to the rules committee late yesterday.

At the same press conference, Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie told reporters there was general agreement among the delegation that "Illinois is not now equitably represented in this convention."

The governor was reticent, however, about what objections had been raised to Percy's plan to enlarge representation for his state.

Percy and Ogilvie agreed that whatever proposal on delegate selection is approved by this convention, it will result in nearly doubling the number of delegates who convene in 1976.

There are 1,346 delegates in Miami Beach. Percy's proposal would result in 2,130 delegates while the Tower-Kemp proposal would mean a convention of cost the district about $150 each. Another problem with drinking fountains is the vandalism factor, said Capulli.

"They're easy to vandalize by clogging them with sand or sticks, or breaking the bubbler," he said. "From experience I know they are a major maintenance problem."

CAPULLI PLANS to cut the initial cost of installing drinking fountains by making obtaining cooperation from the village to put in water lines. He expects to make the fountain molds during the winter.

Fountains probably will be installed near tennis courts and near play areas, if the play areas are not near a tennis court.

"We probably won't need more than two fountains in any park," Capulli said. During the past two years, Capulli has only received two or three calls from residents requesting fountains in the park.

Though the park district owns about 60 picnic tables, Capulli says there are not enough of them.

"We buy the hardware then make them ourselves," he said. "I expect there will be about 25 new and replacement picnic tables next year."

Rev. Wille Named Associate Pastor

The Rev. Arthur H. Wille has been appointed the new associate pastor of St. John United Church of Christ, 308 N. Evergreen Ave.

A native of Milwaukee, Rev. Wille was graduated from Elmhurst College in Elmhurst and Eden Theological Seminary, Webster Groves, Mo. He was ordained June 4 at Oconomowoc, Wis., by the Southeast Wisconsin Association of the United Church of Christ. He began his ministry at St. John Church July 1.

As associate pastor, Rev. Wille will place emphasis on youth work and Christian education.

Money Mint's Mistake Is No Cause For Rush On Banks

Maybe the word just hasn't spread to the suburbs yet, but the majority of local banks report no rush on pennies.

A rush on pennies? What the heck for? Aha, you haven't heard.

Better check your change. As many as 100,000 of the small copper pieces from Philadelphia mint have been "double struck," which means the lettering on the face of some pennies have a double image. The 1972 error is the first of its kind since 1955.

Since word leaked out a few days ago about the mint's mistake, the price tag on the coins has shot up to $100, and some coin dealers think it will go even higher in the next week or two.

A check of banks in Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows and Palatine reveals that there has been no unusual demand for pennies. Only tellers at the First Arlington National bank, Arlington Heights, have noticed more requests for the coins.

BUT DON'T GET YOUR hopes too high, thinking a quick trip to the bank Monday morning will make you several hundred dollars richer by nightfall.

Most local banks never get any new pennies. Bank officials explain that change from daily transactions provide plenty of coins for bank business, making it unnecessary to order new money from the Federal Reserve Bank in Chicago.

And when suburban banks do get those rare shipments of new coins, they are usually minted in Denver, not Philadelphia. No errors have been reported coming out of either the Denver or San Francisco mints. Pennies from those sources bear either a small D or S beneath the date. Coins minted in Philadelphia have no identifying letters.

If that isn't enough to quash your hopes, the Bank of Rolling Meadows reports that a supply of pennies received a few days ago had already been sifted for the rare error.

Mini-Workshops To Better Teachers

The administration of Elk Grove Township School Dist. 50 will establish a series of "mini-workshops" to improve teachers' skills.

Erwin Stevenson, assistant superintendent of instruction, said workshops will assist a teacher in developing a certain specific skill.

Stevenson said teachers receive enough theory and rhetoric during their college education, but they do not get an opportunity to prove they have acquired basic teaching skills.

Stevenson said it was not the fault of the individual teachers that they have not acquired practical experience in some of the basic skills. He blamed the teacher education process in the colleges and universities, saying teacher education courses were oriented too much toward lectures and not enough toward practical training.

THE WORKSHOPS will give the teachers the opportunity to add to their skills. Before completing the workshop, teachers will be required to demonstrate they have actually acquired the abilities taught during the workshop, through either actual classroom work or simulated problems.

Stevenson called the "mini-workshop" program, "relatively unique" in the country.

Workshops will be conducted for math, reading and art. A special consultant will lead the workshops.

Plans call for the workshops to run in sessions from two to a possible maximum of 15 hours. Each workshop will be limited to a small number of teachers. Popular workshops will be repeated during the year.

Stevenson said the workshops are part of the district's program to "humanize" education. He said studies have shown that the organization of the classroom and the choice of material presented was not as important as the learning process as the ability of the teacher.

A survey was taken in February among the teachers, asking what topics they would like taught in the workshops.

One of the most popular requests was for workshop training in diagnosis of problems. The teachers wanted help in recognizing and handling learning problems of the students.

Request For Teacher Housing Called Fantastic

The response to a request for housing for 17 student teachers in Dist. 21 homes this fall has been "fantastic," according to Robert Gerry, administrative intern.

Gerry said he has had requests from 30 residents to house the student teachers, and all but two or three of the 17 students have been placed. "We could still use a few families in the Longfellow and Hawthorne school areas. This way all the student teachers will be within walking distance to the schools," he said.

Gerry added that any homes that were not filled this time may be used in the future. "Just because we have found housing for this group doesn't mean we are going to throw away any names. We are going to form a bank of names for future use."

"Therefore," he said, "if people would still like to give their names to us they should feel free to call me."

DIST. 21 entered into an agreement earlier this year with Northern Illinois University (NIU) for its student teaching program. Twenty-nine sophomores from NIU will begin their teaching careers by observing teaching techniques and classroom management at the Hawthorne and Longfellow schools. This will take place during nine-week periods throughout the school year.

The program also offers Dist. 21's staff members graduate level courses from NIU instructors who will be in the schools observing and evaluating the student teachers.

Residents who house the student teachers in the program will either be paid full room and board or only room costs during the students' stay. Gerry can be contacted for more information by calling 537-8270.

Three Injured In Auto Crash

Three persons were injured in an auto crash at Wilke Road and Euclid Avenue Saturday night.

Pat Deck, 36, 1207 N. Wilke, Arlington Heights and her daughter Kathy Deck, 11, and Carl Gustafson, Forest Park, were injured in the accident at 10:21 p.m.

Gustafson was a passenger in a car driven by John Murphy, River Forest, which collided with the Deck auto. Police ticketed Murphy for failure to obey a stop sign.

Pat and Kathy Deck were treated by a family physician. Gustafson was treated and released at Northwest Community Hospital.

Adventures of your Garbage

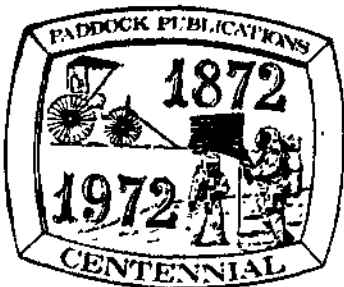

Most residents are familiar with the details of our service, but many do not understand the practical reasons for certain aspects of it.

Take garden waste — grass clippings, etc. Why must it be at the curb, instead of the back door? . . . The reason is simple. Our work day (and therefore our service rate) is based (as it is in every community where back-door service is provided) on making only one trip to the back door.

That's where the time goes — the walk to the door and back. Our crews make that trip 300 times daily. If on a given day every home needed two trips (as could happen after a lawn-mowing weekend) it could take up to 16 hours to finish a route, instead of the allotted 8 hours.

Putting garden waste at the curb insures that only one trip to the door is needed in most cases.

Austerity Budgets Linked To The Austerity Budgets

by KATHERINE BOYCE

The Maine Township high school superintendent Friday warned of "marked deterioration" in school programs if Dist. 207 must continue to operate under austerity budgets.

The warning, by Supt. Richard Short, came with the release by school officials of the district's tentative budget for 1972-73, which is down 4.5 per cent from last year despite a projected increase of 330 students.

The proposed $21 million budget is $966,819 less than last year and $49,121 lower than the Dist. 207 budget for the 1970-71 school year.

"It would be well for the taxpayers to realize that maintaining these program limitations over an extended period of time, and introduction of further austerity measures, will lead to a marked deterioration of our instructional program,"

Short said.

The decrease in the budget was made to hold the line on a $3.8 million deficit in education spending, according to school officials. Maine Township voters last December turned down a referendum asking for a tax levy increase.

Officials said the tax rate under the proposed budget will remain the same as last year, $1.63 per $100 assessed valuation, the maximum allowed the district without a referendum-approved increase.

IN A PRESS statement, Short said, "The cumulative effect in the years ahead, particularly if progressive modifications are required, will seriously erode the quality of education heretofore provided to students in the Maine High Schools."

The deficit in the district's education spending rose in 1970 after the district opened its fourth high school, Maine

North. The addition of another teaching and administrative staff plus building and schools supplies put a heavy burden on spending in recent years, according to Harold Markworth, Dist. 207 business manager.

EDUCATION SPENDING will be reduced by 2.25 per cent, from $16 million to $15.5 million. The $400,000 decrease represents a cut in total instruction costs of about one per cent. Administrative costs were dropped 6 per cent. Operating expenses were hiked 6 per cent and fixed charges were raised by about 13.8 per cent.

The Dist. 207 board of education announced last spring that 40 teaching positions would be eliminated resulting in a reduction in the instructional staff of 27 faculty members. Of the $11.7 million in instructional costs, $10.14 million has been allocated for instructional salaries next year an increase of less than one per cent.

Markworth told the board of education finance committee earlier this month, "We hope to spend about the same number of dollars for staffing the classroom this year as last. The reduction in size of the teaching staff and a decrease in the amount of educational supplies used during the year offsets regular pay increments and a 2.25 per cent raise in pay for all teachers approved by the Maine Township Teacher's Association June 9.

In a report to the board of education July 17, Ralph J. Frost, assistant superintendent, said that of the 27 teachers whose jobs had been cut back, only six remained without positions for the coming school year.

Twelve of the 27 have been assigned to meet staffing needs brought about by increased enrollment, or will replace other teachers who have resigned or been granted leaves of absence. Four of the 27 have submitted resignations, two have left the Chicago area, and three have positions with other school districts.

Frost said that it was expected that as other resignations are received, it will be possible for the district to reassign the remaining six.

Council To Eye Senior Citizen Housing Plan

The Des Plaines City Council tonight will consider a resolution declaring the city's preference for local residents in the assignment of housing in a proposed senior citizen apartment building.

Although eligibility requirements for obtaining housing in the proposed 125-unit building will not be changed, the resolution says the city's policy will be to give preference to eligible persons who have been residents here for at least two years.

Apartments in the building will be available to persons or couples 62 years of age or older whose income and assets fall within certain limits. The resolution will be submitted to the Cook County Housing Authority (CCHA), which is acting as the city's agent in developing the building.

Owners of a site proposed for the building at Lee Street and Ashland Avenue have been unable to agree with the CCHA and federal housing officials on a price for the property. The CCHA recently asked for federal permission to file a condemnation suit to obtain the 1.2-acre site.

In other action, the council is expected to approve final passage of ordinances regulating dogs, cats and swimming pools.

The cat ordinance declares free-roaming cats to be a nuisance and provides for fines against owners if their cats interfere with the rights and property of others. The new dog law requires owners to certify that their pets have been inoculated for rabies when they apply for annual city dog licenses.

The new pool law will require licensing and regulation of privately-owned swimming pools 18 or more inches deep and holding 500 or more gallons of water.

The council will meet at 8 o'clock in city hall, 1412 Miner St.

Middleton Denied 3 Post-Trial Motions

Circuit Court Judge Robert J. Downing denied three post-trial motions Friday filed by Dr. James G. Middleton as the Des Plaines physician continued his attempt to have his conviction overturned.

Dr. Middleton, 46, of 989 S. Elmhurst Rd., Des Plaines, was convicted earlier this year of drugging a 23-year-old patient and then sexually assaulting her in his office.

He has been sentenced by Judge Downing to five to 10 years in prison, but has been allowed to remain free on $25,000 bond.

During several scheduled hearings held the past few weeks, Dr. Middleton has alleged that many items taken from his office by arresting policemen Dec. 1, 1970, were never inventoried by the police nor returned to him, as ordered by the court. In one of his motions, he sought recovery of the items, including cash, patient records, personal papers, three handguns, handcuffs, a sword and pyrotechnic devices.

JUDGE DOWNING said the doctor, acting as his own attorney in recent months, had failed to prove the police are in possession of the items, except those categorized as weapons or ammunition. The judge ordered those items be held by the state's attorney's office pending the final disposition of the case.

The judge also denied two other motions filed by Dr. Middleton — one asking the court to impound all records and reports held by the sheriff's office and another asking the court to vacate the motion and the sentence.

Judge Downing said he had already ordered all the records impounded, so there was no need to do so again. He then denied the motion to overturn the verdict, explaining only that he reviewed the record and so there was no reason to reverse the jury's decision and his sentence.

The rulings on the motions — the last outstanding before the court in the case — were expected to signal the end of Dr. Middleton's appearances before the judge in his efforts to win freedom.

Following the rulings Friday, however, the doctor told the Herald he expects to file at least one more motion with Judge Downing's court before taking his case to the appellate court.

Dr. Middleton said news from Chicago television stations will prove arresting sheriff's policemen Donald Shaw and Richard Lundgren had some of the items under discussion in their possession the day after he was arrested.

Republican Bernard Pedersen, a delegate to the convention from the 12th Congressional District, is greeted by the official Republican reception committee.

... For The 1976 Election

GOP Looking For Candidate

by ROBERT LAHEY

MIAMI BEACH — Republicans are assembled in this sweltering city to select a candidate for President, and the only question appears to be what year they are talking about.

There is no conversation whatever among delegates concerning the candidate for 1972 — they already have him in the White House — but speculation is rampant about who will capture the party's nomination four years hence.

And the name most frequently mentioned, despite the conventional disclaimers by him and his staff, is that of Sen. Charles H. Percy of Illinois. Percy is at the center of the only real question expected to ruffle the surface of this otherwise serene gathering of the GOP. That question concerns how delegates are to be selected in 1976 and what representation will be allotted to the various states.

Percy called it yesterday "the only basic decision to be made by this convention."

The senior senator from Illinois is laboring mightily against strong conservative opposition to put across a plan which would increase the representation of the large urban states and to widen the spectrum of the delegates who will choose a successor to President Richard M. Nixon as the party's candidate.

Republicans here have refused to follow the lead of the Democrats who met here a month ago and opened all their meetings to the press and the public.

A caucus of the Illinois delegation yesterday morning was closed to reporters and lasted for approximately an hour and a half, with the only substantial business being a discussion of Percy's proposal on delegate selection. The extent of conservative opposition to Percy's plan was evident in the fact that his home state failed to endorse the plan, although the delegation also chose not to endorse the program put forth by conservative senators John Tower of Texas and Jack Kemp of New York.

The Tower-Kemp plan, which would favor the smaller, more conservative states of the West and South, has been adopted as the majority report of the party's rules committee. Percy neither won nor lost his plea to his own delegation for support of his reorganization plan. Instead, the delegates emerged with a compromise, appointing a 12-member committee with instructions to arrive at a position which Percy and state central committeewoman Hope McCormick could present to the rules committee. As this was written, that committee was meeting in Percy's room at the Playboy Plaza hotel, and Percy told reporters earlier that he had committed himself to the decision of the committee, which was to report to the rules committee late yesterday.

At the same press conference, Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie told reporters there was general agreement among the delegation that "Illinois is not now equitably represented in this convention."

The governor was reticent, however, about what objections had been raised to Percy's plan to enlarge representation for his state.

Percy and Ogilvie agreed that whatever proposal on delegate selection is approved by this convention, it will result in nearly doubling the number of delegates who convene in 1976.

There are 1,346 delegates in Miami Beach. Percy's proposal would result in 2,130 delegates while the Tower-Kemp proposal would mean a convention of (Continued on Page 5)

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Already musing who their 1976 candidate might be, Republicans worked off-camera Sunday in Miami Beach to patch up the party's sole remaining squabble before the start of a well-rehearsed, three-day television spectacular starring President Nixon. On the eve of the GOP National Convention, party chairman Robert J. Dole said "there is a compromise afoot" to resolve a liberal-conservative struggle over future delegate strength before it spills onto the convention floor — and a nationwide broadcast audience — a few hours before Nixon is renominated tomorrow night.

President Nixon weighed the still secret results of Henry A. Kissinger's around-the-world peace mission and polished the speech he will make to accept the Republican party's nomination for a second term. Nixon was working in the seclusion of Camp David, the presidential retreat in the Catoctin mountains of western Maryland.

As the next step in relaxing Soviet-American tensions, the administration hopes to welcome Russian warships to U.S. ports for the first time since World War II. Navy Secretary John W. Warner outlined the idea in an interview in Seapower, a monthly magazine published by the Navy League.

James Aschenbach, 26, Blacksburg, Va., was killed in an automobile accident near Elk Grove Village. Three other persons were injured in the accident, at Illinois 88 and Oakton Street. Also injured was Aschenbach's brother David, 25, Lake Zurich.

The World

A Protestant man was shot in the head Sunday in Belfast and beaten by a "psychopath" until his body was "just like jelly." He was the latest victim in a five-month string of Northern Ireland assassinations. The unidentified man died en route to a hospital. Belfast police said he was so severely beaten he succumbed before anyone discovered that he also had been shot in the head.

Bobby Fischer, holding an official protest in his breast pocket and complaining three times onstage during the game, finally offered a draw to titleholder Boris Spassky after 60 moves of a "crazy" 18th game in the world chess championship.

Radio Hanoi said that the trip to Saigon by presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger was a "cunning trick" to give the illusion that major changes were developing at the Paris peace talks. "It is obvious that the smoke screen spread by President Nixon at this moment is aimed at the presidential race," it said.

The War

Communist troops have overrun a district county capital and a South Vietnamese artillery base in the Que Son valley south of Da Nang, and may be jockeying into position for an artillery attack against South Vietnam's second largest city. Military sources said North Vietnamese soldiers captured Que Son city and artillery base Ross. Que Son is 25 miles southwest of Da Nang and Ross is three miles farther away.

Paddock Carriers To Win Prizes

Auction, Garage Sale Planned Friday

Paddock Publications newspaper carriers will have a chance to win more than 1,000 different prizes at their second annual garage sale and auction. The event will be held Friday from 10 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. The Paddock garage next to the editorial office, 217 W. Campbell St., Arlington Heights, will be used. The prizes are earned on the basis of new subscriptions sold by each carrier. About 900 boys and girls between the ages of 12 and 14 have been collecting subscriptions for a week.

So far, new subscription sales have been outstanding, and are even better than last year, according to Jim Byrnes, assistant director of circulation.

THE CARRIERS receive certificates for the number of new sales made. They can redeem these certificates for their choice of new merchandise. The prizes are given to the carriers on a first come, first served basis.

Each time a carrier redeems his certificate for a prize, he is also given an auction dollar. At 12:30 p.m. the carriers can bid for prizes not bought with certificates, plus special prizes, using auction dollars.

Special prizes added to the auction items include a portable television set, typewriter, electric watch, walkie-talkies, radios, and wrist watches.

Favorite prizes last year were sporting equipment, cameras, watches, and model kits. Among this year's more unique prizes are two metal detectors for searching for lost coins or buried treasure.

Free hot dogs, soft drinks, popcorn, cotton candy, and sno-cones will also be provided during the sale.

IN ADDITION to receiving prizes and having fun, the carriers also receive experience in salesmanship, said Byrnes. Last year's sale was such a success that this year's sale is being held at the request of the carriers.

"We were just finishing the first one, and the carriers were already asking when we could have the next sale," Byrnes said.

Some of the carriers were so eager for prizes they were waiting in line three hours in advance.

Carriers who don't participate in the garage sale, or those who don't find the prize they want, can use their certificates for the regular catalog prizes.

efficient data processing system, a decrease in the size of the secretarial staff, and increased mechanization in the office, according to Short.

This increase in operational costs results from a rise in telephone and electricity rates, said Markworth. Markworth said he plans to investigate the increase in telephone costs. He said that $104,000 had been budgeted for telephone expenditures last year but actual expenditure was $124,000.

Employee medical insurance is the reason for the 11 per cent increase in fixed charges, said Short. Premium rates for the Blue Cross-Blue Shield insurance were raised this year due to an increase in claims by district employees, said Short.

Estimated property tax revenue for next year is $8.5 million. The assessed value of Dist. 207 has increased from $694 million last year to $736 million this year resulting in an increase in anticipated tax revenue of $650,000. The increase in assessed valuation is due to an increase in the amount of taxable property in the district, said Markworth.

GENERAL STATE aid for education pending has increased from $1.7 million last year due to an alternation in the state aid formula by the state legislature and an increase in enrollment at Maine High Schools, said Markworth.

SUMMER SCHOOL expenditures were cut by about $8,300 due to drop in the summer school enrollment this year. The tuition for summer school at Dist. 207 was raised last year, said Markworth.

Salaries for teacher aides increased from $30,500 last year to $60,000 next year. More teacher aides were employed said Markworth, but no salary raises were given for next year. Tea 444cher aides are being used in study halls and cafeterias and are also used to do much of the clerical work for the teacher.

Library supplies were cut back by about $36,000. The high schools are "quite well supplied with books," said Markworth, so school officials decided not to buy as many this year.

BY TRIMMING expenses connected with the operation and maintenance of the four high schools, the building expenditures have been cut by about $200,000. Most of the decrease is in building additions and remodeling.

Expenditures in bond and interest spending decreased from $2.33 million to $2.30 million, transportation expenditures increased from $96,600 to $134,200 and Illinois Municipal Retirement monies were increased from $220,400 to $440,400.

The tentative budget will be presented to the board of education at its regular monthly meeting Aug. 21. It will be on display at the administration center and at public libraries throughout the township until Sept. 18 when a public hearing will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the Faculty study at Maine East High School in Park Ridge. At the hearing, the board of education will welcome discussions with interested citizens concerning any of the recommendations in the 1972-73 tentative budget. Official consideration will be given to its adoption at the regular board meeting immediately following the public hearing.

Jean Lytle In Nursing Post

Jean Lytle, former medical-surgical instructor in the associate degree in nursing program at Harper College in Palatine, has been named associate director of nursing, Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines.

Mrs. Lytle was graduated as a registered nurse from Columbia Hospital School of Nursing, Milwaukee. She also received a bachelor of science degree in nursing from Marquette University and a master of science degree in nursing from Northern Illinois University.

A member of the American Nurses Association and National League of Nursing, she has been past president of Dist. 18 of the Illinois Nursing Association. Presently, Mrs. Lytle is secretary of Dist. 18 INA and a member of the nominations committee of the state association. She is also a member of St. Mathew's Home, Park Ridge Service League and past president of the Arlington Heights Nurses' Club.

Mrs. Lytle's medical-surgical nursing experience includes service at Milwaukee, Columbia and Children's hospitals in Milwaukee, Sacred Heart Hospital, Spokane, Washington and University of Illinois Research and Education Hospital, Chicago.

Her husband, Jack, is associated with Skil Corp. and is an Ohio State graduate in ceramic engineering.

Rev. Massie Named Hospital Chaplain

The Rev. Stephen Massie has been appointed a staff chaplain in the pastoral care department of Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge. He had completed Lutheran General's one-year residency in clinical pastoral education in June.

Massie is a graduate of Brite Divinity School, Fort Worth, Tex., and is an ordained minister of The Christian Church (Disciples of Christ). He received a bachelor's degree from Texas Christian University, Fort Worth. Pastor Massie has served as assistant chaplain of Moline Lutheran Hospital, Moline, as associate pastor of First Christian Church, Moline, and as pastor of First Christian Church in Corsicana, Tex.

The pastoral care department at Lutheran General includes full-time chaplains representing various religious faiths. Chaplains have received training and certification in clinical pastoral education so they can minister to the special needs of people in stress and crisis situations.

Track Park Programs To Be Expanded

by KEN KOZAK

It's a strange place to find a park. You have to look hard to find it at all, tucked in among red, yellow and blue barns, a lot full of long, shiny house trailers and a place called "SMITH'S Kitchen."

It's the backstretch at Arlington Park

Race Track, and it rings more often with the sounds of horsemen playing their trade than with kids playing games.

But Salt Creek Rural Park District is trying to bring what amounts to a complete park program to the kids in the track backstretch.

ALL THEY HAVE there now is a small green recreation building that the track has donated for their use. And the kids.

The kids come from the families who live in the backstretch trailer lot from May through August and then move out on the different southern racing circuits.

Park district director Jim DeVos feels

it's time some kind of programs were offered to the families who live at the track, which is within the Salt Creek District's boundaries.

With the track's cooperation, the park district brought recreation programs, arts and crafts and softball to the kids at the track about six weeks ago. DeVos said about 30 kids participate in the programs, which will be expanded next year.

"Next year whatever we do in the other parks we are going to be doing here," DeVos said.

The programs are offered free of charge to the kids from the track, who are also included in outings and field trips that the district sponsors for its residents.

The track and park district share a peculiar relationship. Since it is within the district's boundaries, the track pays about $20,000 in taxes annually to the district. It also provides use of the Arlington Park Towers hotel swimming pool and golf course for park programs.

BUT THE TRACK benefits too, both from good publicity that grows from its community involvement, and from the fact that Salt Creek has one of the lowest park tax rates in the area.

The important part about the relationship, however, according to DeVos, is that it is finally beginning to benefit the families in the backstretch with the program that will end in two weeks when the track closes for the season, but will resume next May.

"We're very happy to be offering them some good things to do in the summer," DeVos said.

LWV To Decide Today On Referendum

Three local League of Women Voters groups are expected to decide today whether they will go ahead with efforts to abolish Maine Township government through a referendum in the November elections.

Today is the deadline for filing petitions to have the referendum question put on the Nov. 7 ballot. Supporters of the measure were planning to circulate petitions over the weekend in a last-minute effort to obtain the estimated 5,000 needed signatures, a league spokesman said Friday.

The spokesman, Mrs. Peter Rose, said that if enough signatures are obtained, the three league groups will file the petitions by registered mail because Maine Township Clerk Philip Raffie's office is closed today.

Raffie said Friday he would be willing to open his office and accept the petitions if the league groups would get in contact with him and ask him to do so.

If they don't contact him, Raffie said, his office won't be open.

Should the petitions be sent in by registered mail, Raffie said, he might have to seek a legal opinion to determine if they are acceptable. But, he added, "in all probability I'd accept them anyway."

"Normally, our office isn't open on Monday. If they want to make an appointment with me on Monday, it will be my pleasure to meet with them," he said.

"I'LL BE GLAD to meet with them at midnight," said Raffie. "To tell you the truth, I've never heard from these gals. They have never called me. All they have to do is call me and I'll be delighted to meet with them. As of this very moment, I have never heard from the League of Women Voters."

The league organizations of Des Plaines, Park Ridge and Morton Grove-Niles announced earlier this month they would push for the abolition of the township government, charging it is antiquated and duplicates services provided by other agencies.

Similar drives are under way in Palatine, Niles and Northfield townships. In Palatine, the local league group Friday submitted petitions assuring the abolition measure of a place on the ballot.

The groups are acting under a provision of the 1970 Illinois Constitution which they say allows townships to be abolished or merged through referendum votes.

The league groups, which have formed a citizens committee to push for the referendum vote, apparently planned at one point to seek a court order requiring Raffie to open his office today and accept the petitions.

HE SAID FRIDAY that he had heard about the proposed order, but maintained that such a move would be unnecessary.

Raffie also questioned the legality of the referendum, saying the move may be illegal because the new constitution does not provide for some other agency to take over the township duties.

"Who is going to step in and provide the services for the people?" he said. According to Raffie, the town government provides 25,000 to 30,000 residents of the unincorporated areas with street maintenance, voter registration and welfare services.

"You can't just tell 30,000 people 'You're up on cloud nine. Nobody wants you,'" he said.

Raffie also said costs will go up if other government agencies are forced to take over township duties. Since the township clerks were deprived of their tax collection function under a court order and the county treasurer has assumed that role, suburban collection costs have jumped to four times their previous level, he charged.

MRS. ROSE said the league groups don't foresee any problem in transferring township duties to other agencies.

"I think what we're hoping for is that the appropriate areas will be either taken care of by the county or by the cities, whichever governmental body is closest to that particular area that is in need of the services," she said.

The league has been in contact with state legislators who will submit bills providing for the takeover of township duties by other governments, she said, but this won't be done until after the referendum vote.

"We can't do anything until we know what's going to happen," she said.

Friend Of Friendly Town

Editor's note: Scores of suburban residents each summer take part in the Friendly Town program — opening their homes for a brief period to children from the inner city. One participating family this summer was Mr. and Mrs. Robert Strawn of Rolling Meadows. He is a staff photographer for the Herald; she — before becoming a mother — public relations representative for Western Electric. Here, in words and pictures, is their portrayal of a Friendly Town experience.)

Story by Mary Ann Strawn
Photos by Bob Strawn

Thank you Yvette.
Thank you Veronica.

Thank you for two weeks of learning and laughs, frustration and sometimes impatience.

Yvette and Veronica came to live with us in Rolling Meadows for two weeks through the Friendly Town program.

Yvette, age 5, was princess of the magic tennis shoe. No matter how many times she tied them, the laces were always dragging in the dirt.

VERONICA AT 8 was the wise mother. She knew almost as much about taking care of our infant son as I did.

Early in the summer I talked with Betty Ginger, one of the coordinators of Friendly Town. "We like to place children with families who have children of a similar age," she told me. "Otherwise, we want you to take two. That gives them a playmate, and relieves you of the burden of trying to entertain them constantly."

Since Bob and I had only six-month-old Steven, we signed up for two children for the second of three sessions.

As the time got closer, I decided I had been crazy when I talked to Mrs. Ginger. The fact that the children would be black, Puerto Rican or Spanish-American had nothing to do with my feelings. Two strangers were going to be running through the serenity of my ordered life. There would be two extra people to share with.

I was a little uneasy and nervous as we drove to the Faith Community Church in downtown Chicago. A storefront, its pastor, Rev. E. Turner, began the Friendly Town program almost 17 years ago.

THE BUILDING VIBRATED as the choir sang, but I couldn't concentrate. I kept scanning the faces in the room wondering which children would be ours.

Finally we met our visitors and their families.

No one talked much during the drive home. Steven, with a skill peculiar to a six-month-old, charmed the girls. They lavished him with attention and he loved it.

In our neighborhood reaction ranged from, "We can stand anything for two weeks," to "What a great opportunity for my children to have a black playmate."

There was the other extreme too. One family made it clear that their children should stay away from our house.

I was still feeding Steven the first morning when the girls ran out to explore their new neighborhood. In 10 minutes they were back, elated.

"We've found a friend! We found a friend!" Our next door neighbor was the first of many.

In the afternoon they helped another neighbor rake her lawn, although I'm not sure help properly describes the squeals, laughter and chaos that resounded.

AFTER THE WORLD'S longest bath and numerous glasses of water, Yvette and Veronica finally fell asleep after our first full day together. I couldn't believe life was going to rush at such a pace for two weeks. But I too had decided I could stand anything for two weeks.

My jerry-rigged clothesline turned into a jump rope, a far more suitable use. The laundry basket became a basketball hoop. We accumulated 18 jars of lightning bugs. Checkers I had borrowed from a friend kept appearing in the kitchen and under the couch. Bandages were consumed almost as fast as cookies and the bathroom was tied up for hours.

But suddenly the two weeks were almost over, and I wasn't sure I wanted our new friends to leave. Steven didn't. They had become a part of our family.

One minute they wanted to stay. The next they were anxious to return to their home.

TWO WEEKS IS just about right. It can be a long time for a young child, but it gives you time to know one another, to establish a routine and to build relationships.

But what do I do with all the quiet now? Nobody is going to run through the house giggling or spill milk on the patio. There are no more skinned knees to medicate. And what do I do with all the lightning bugs?

Bob and I learned a lot about ourselves. What we learned had nothing to do with color — but with children and patience and giving and sharing.

Thank you Yvette and Veronica.

It's party time

Yvette and Steven: Getting to know you

A special treat

Veronica's bubble is Steven's curiosity

Dear Dorothy: We lived in a small apartment up to now and so could never accommodate overnight guests. But now not only are we in a house with the extra room, but we face the prospect of a relative moving in for a little time. I'm puzzled as to just what to get so that the room is not only attractive, but still serves the basic purpose. The convertible sofas are attractive, but are they comfortable for night-after-night sleeping? — Diane S.

Let's put them in proper order: (1) real bed; (2) day bed (also called studio couch); (3) convertible sofa. The convertibles fold up and so can't come with full springs and mattresses. The day beds come in 33-inch widths, have a good mattress and also a box spring. They sleep very well. You can make up one of these ready for sleeping, put on a throw cover and either a bolster or attractive pillows and, presto, you have a sitting-room effect.

Dear Dorothy: I've got a cocktail party coming up and wonder if I have to worry about the warm weather spoiling a dip made with sour cream? — Abby M.

Sour cream will stay fine at room temperature for two to three hours. In other words, it is a little more resistant to spoilage than related dairy products.

Dear Dorothy: If you want to stretch a pair of shoes that are made of man-made materials, put a slightly damp cloth over the part to be stretched. Then hold a hot steam iron over it until the material is warm and soft. Then easily and carefully pull the material until the fullness is just right. Synthetic patent leather responds especially well. — Barbara H.

CHINESE CHECKERS is the name of the fashion game for toddlers. Whether the lady chooses pants or a dress, she's a charming picture in a tricolor mix of cheerful checks. Dirndl-styled dress (left) has attached white collar and sleeves, plus matching green pantyhose. Quilted overall (right) has separate button-back white blouse. Both have handy pockets in green and checks with bright red poppy embroidery accent. Both are permanent press polyester and cotton fashioned by Nannette for toddler sizes 2 through 4.

Household Product Ads Under Fire From FTC

by MONICA WILCH
Did you ever wonder what the "catch" is in these TV commercials that conduct an experiment before the cameras to "prove" the superior qualities of a particular product?

The Federal Trade Commission, in a recent order prohibiting American Home Products Corp. from using deceptive advertising for its various household products, released descriptions of the offending procedures.

For instance, in the case of "Easy-Off Window Cleaner," half a window is sprayed with Easy-Off, the other half with "brand X." Both are allowed to dry, and the announcer points out that the Easy-Off half is spotless while the other side has spots. According to the complaint, if the brand X half had been wiped as directed, no spots would have formed.

SIMILARLY, in another ad two crystal bowls are shown, one filled with Aerowax, which dries clear, and the other with another wax, which dries cloudy. But Aerowax is a polishing wax, the complaint says, and was compared with a cleaning wax. Furthermore, neither was used in its intended manner.

A more subtle technicality operates in commercials for the firm's insecticide, Black Flag Ant and Roach Killer. Cockroaches are put in two containers, one treated with Black Flag, the other with a leading brand insecticide. The roaches in the Black Flag container die, but the others do not. According to the complaint, the roaches in the competitive brand containers were a type known to have developed a resistance to that product's active ingredient.

Black Flag, incidentally, was judged "too hazardous for household use" by Consumer Reports in its August issue. The consumer testing organization said that Black Flag contains dichlorvos, a chemical that is both toxic and persistent, producing long-lasting fumes that are harmful when breathed.

THE FOURTH product named in the complaint was Easy-On starch. A shirt is sprayed with Easy-On, and the other side with another brand starch. A hot iron is then placed on both, and when lifted, the Easy-On side stays white while the other side is scorched. The complaint charges that no scorching would have occurred if the shirt had been ironed in the normal manner.

NOW Observes Anniversary Of Suffrage

Chicago Chapter for the National Organization for Women (NOW) is observing the 52nd anniversary of women's suffrage with a week-long schedule of activities.

The observance began yesterday with "Columbia Day," a gathering at the Columbia statue in Jackson Park that included a wreath laying at the statue constructed for the 1893 Columbia Exposition. It was at this site that a women's building was constructed to house the Women's Congress of 1893. Intended to be a permanent building devoted to women's arts, politics and education, it is no longer standing.

Different emphasis will be placed on each day of the week relating to various aspects of women's rights. Monday will be "Yellow Arm Band Day" with all women urged to wear the official yellow arm band in support of legislative changes to achieve such rights as the Equal Rights Amendment.

THE WEEK will end Saturday with a women's fair at Church of Our Savior, 530 W. Fullerton. Booths on the themes stressed during the week will be featured along with other community interest groups, women artists and craftswomen.

Specific issues to be highlighted during the week include birth control, and abortion, marriage and divorce, child care, job discrimination, stereotyping in education and the media and women in religion.

Area Construction Women Will Head For Convention

The 17th annual convention of the National Association of Women in Construction (NAWIC) will open in Portland, Ore. on Thursday, Sept. 21.

Jayne Baker Spain, vice chairman of the U.S. Civil Service Commission, will present the keynote address on "Women Can Be People" to an estimated 1,000 members. On Sept. 22, Mrs. Marjorie M. Wintermute, Portland architect, will address the delegates and alternates from 184 NAWIC chapters in 42 states and the District of Columbia.

Delegates to the convention from the northwest suburban area will include Des Plaines resident Geraldine Conrick of Charlson Co. Plumbing, Des Plaines, who is the Chicago Chapter president; and Wheeling resident Cathy Anderson, of L.S. & S. Construction Corp., Chicago. Alternates will include Buffalo Grove resident Arlene Snyder who is employed by the Egyptian Construction Co. in Des Plaines; and Lorraine Wiegand, employed by Jay's Hy-Lift Mfg. Co. of Wheeling.

Members of NAWIC are employed in one of the following phases of construction: architecture, general construction, subcontracting, material supplying, construction engineering, construction news services, and construction trade associations.

WAC Increases Size, Job Opportunities For Women

The Army has announced plans to nearly double the size of the Women's Army Corp (WAC) by 1978 and open all jobs except combat to women joining the United States Army.

The number of women in the Army will be increased from the present 12,400 to 15,900 during fiscal year 1973. By 1978 this figure is expected to be 23,500, an increase of 100 per cent, according to Secretary of the Army Robert F. Froehle.

Froehle said many more assignments have been opened to women in the Army. Out of 482 enlisted Military Occupational Specialties (MOS), 434 are now available to the WAC. Only the 48 jobs directly related to combat are now barred to women.

Among the enlistment options now open to women are the U.S. Army Security Agency, Special Intelligence duties, the U.S. Army Language School, Strategic Communications and — to be added soon — a Training and Travel Enlistment Option, which allows a woman recruit to choose her Advanced Individual Training (AIT) and duty station, either stateside or overseas.

EFFECTIVE IMMEDIATELY, enlisted women will receive their AIT with men at Army training Centers and Service schools. WAC officers will also attend advanced courses with male officers.

Because of additional women recruits, Froehle said that training facilities at the WAC center at Ft. McClellan, Ala., will be reorganized and expanded.

Improvements in the female uniform were also announced. Changes include a new stylish black felt beret, patent leather shoes and white shirts.

An important new policy will allow a woman to be assigned overseas after completion of her Advanced Individual Training. In the past, a woman had to serve at least one year in the United States before becoming eligible for assignment to an overseas area.

Union Oil Monday Captures Team Honors In 23rd Paddock Golf Meet

Palatine Hills obviously is a good place to tune up for the Paddock Publications Inter-League Handicap Golf Tournament.

Teams that call Palatine Hills their home in the twilight season placed a solid 1-2 yesterday in the 23rd edition of the Paddock headliner.

Union Oil Monday of the Union Oil Co. division toured the Golden Acres Country Club layout in 293, four shots ahead of American Can of the American Can Co. League.

Thirty-three teams accepted the Golden Acres challenge, and scores were generally higher than expected on this warm August afternoon.

Union Oil Monday, projected to be among the tourney iron-runners after the first nine holes Sunday, didn't let up over the final nine.

Dennis Harrod, carrying a seven handicap into the competition, paved the way for the 1972 champs with a sharp 79 gross 68 net. Harrod had nine of 40-35 over the par 72 course.

There were other heroes on the champs with Bob McGowan, a 21-handicapper, coming in at 91 for a 70, Frank Castleberry with a 102-29-73, and Dan Pemberton at 102-20-82.

American Can remained in contention until the finish with a quartet of Scott Johnson, Fred Kudert, Pat Urso, and Wayne Nixon.

Nixon led the way with an 86-10-70 and Johnson was right behind with 96-24-71. Rounding out the strong showing of this Palatine Hills entry were a 76 (91-15) by Pat Urso and 80 (106-28) by Fred Kudert.

The two Palatine Hills outfits had fairly comfortable advantages for the top spots with third place Arlington Elks of the Elk division at Arlington Country Club 12 strokes off the winning pace.

The Elks made a good run for the top prize with particular thanks to the hot-shooting of Nick Barkulis and Ed Rogan II. Barkulis, a 26-handicapper, came in at 93 for a net 67 that took home a dozen golf balls. Rogan had a 93-24-69.

Also contributing to the third place effort were an 83 by Tony Schiller (101-18) and 86 by Dick Steffens.

The winning total of 293 was the lowest ever shot in the three previous Paddock headliners at Golden Acres. Busse Texaco had won in 1958 with a 296 (84 handicap) and Tioga VFW took the 1966 prize at Golden Acres with a 358-84-294.

Jack Dages, playing for the Buffalo Grove Men's league, took low gross honors for the day with a sizzling 74.

Dages was steady with a pair of 37s. He had 6s on the first hole of each nine but then settled down for some remarkably consistent scoring that featured five 3s, eight 4s, and three 5s.

Jack had three birdies in his round and favored the long holes, cashing for a 4 on the 490-yard 9th on the Red Nine and a 4 on the 510-yard White Nine 4th.

Nicklaus Saves The Show; Cancer Research Benefits

In show biz tradition of "the show must go on" Jack Nicklaus made a surprise visit to the Chicago area to rescue the American Cancer Society's Benefit Golf Exhibition recently at Thorngate Country Club.

The exhibition's original billing featured Lee Trevino, Glen Campbell, and local celebs Wally Phillips and Johnny Morris, but an early morning call dropped the bombshell that Trevino had been hit with a throat infection and would be unable to appear.

"The call came at about 8:30 a.m.," said Phil Emmons, co-chairman of Special Events for the Cancer Society. "There were a few moments of panic to say the least—but then we decided to take a long shot and give Jack Nicklaus a try."

Less than 24 hours after winning the Westchester classic, the golf's greatest name was contacted and accepted, Nick-laus left Florida by air immediately and at 2 p.m. arrived in the Thorngate driveway.

Moments later, he was on the first tee with Campbell, Phillips of WGN and TV sportscaster Morris, a resident of Inverness.

Phillips, wearing what he claimed to be the latest in knickers, provided the comic relief in the absence of the fast-talking Trevino.

He created fear in the large gallery when his first ball went straight into the crowd after a flight of about 40 feet. "Is he really that bad?" asked one of the spectators.

The super golfer Nicklaus launched some exhibition balls down the fairway. The crowd applauded appreciatively.

A storm stopped the show after only three holes, but the stars remained in the clubhouse to meet their fans and to sign autographs. The ticket holders went home well satisfied.

Close to $20,000 was raised for the fight against cancer due to a top team of Chicagoans and volunteers. Leaders who donated their time and effort were Raymond J. Schmidt, President, Thorngate Country Club; Robert Doran, Special Events Chairman, American Cancer Society; Mr. and Mrs. Wally Phillips; Harold Sortor, 1972 Chicago Unit Crusade Chairman; Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Morris; Earl L. Falcons To Issue Grid Gear Today

Football equipment will be issued at Forest View High School today, according to head coach Paul Jordan.

Juniors and seniors should report from 1 p.m. to 2 p.m. in the boys gymnasium; sophomores from 2:00 to 3:00; and freshmen at 3:00.

Boys should bring parent permission cards, physicals, and insurance when they report for equipment.

Nixon Sizzles 'Y' Twilight

Ed Nixon nearly copped everything in sight for the YMCA Twilight Golf League as he carded low gross honors with a one-over-par 36, low net with a 33 and steered home two birdies on No. 19 and 17.

Joining Nixon on the birdie parade were Bart Kenny and Mike Gotham on 13 and Cliff Stock on 12. Bruce Campbell ranked behind Nixon in both low gross (38) and low net (35).

Kre-Ken Patterns and Bank & Trust of Arlington Heights share the team standings with 20% points apiece. Members of Kre-Ken Patterns include Captain Harold Schlichting, Dick Hoyt, Bart Kenny, Ed

FIRM STANCE FOR PUTTING

THE IDEAL PUTTING STANCE COMBINES COMFORT AND STABILITY.

TO REMAIN RELAXED, YET WELL-BALANCED AGAINST THE OCCASION OF GUSTY WINDS, I FIND KEEPING MY WEIGHT ON THE INSIDE OF MY FEET WORKS BEST.

FORE AND AFT STABILITY IS BEST ACHIEVED BY DIVIDING WEIGHT EVENLY BETWEEN THE BALL AND HEEL OF EACH FOOT. THIS IS THE AREA OF GREATEST SUPPORT.
